JAM ST. PETER'S SQUARE; 60,000 AT 5 HOUR MASS

Crowning of Pontiff Is Colorful.

VATICAN CITY, March 12 [Sunday].—(AP)—More than 500,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's square this morning as Pope Pius XII. began in an impressive procession the five hour coronation ceremony that will complete his investiture as the 262d pontiff of the Roman Catholic church. The weather was clear and cold.

The ceremony began at 8:30, when attendants assisted the pontiff into the papal mantle and miter. Bishops and members of the Vatican chapter paid him homage and filed by him in the Chapel of the Sacrament to kiss his slipper.

Exactly at 9 a. m. [2 a. m. Chicago time] the pope, wearing the tall cloth of gold miter of the bishop of Rome, was carried in the portable throne along the front porch of St. Peter's and into the nave through the center door.

Greeted by Roar of Vivas.

A roar of "Vivas!" greeted his appearance. Formally dressed guests in the tribunes applauded the holy father. A procession of red robed cardinals, prelates and papal dignitaries preceded the pontiff, beside whose throne marched a group of Swiss guards in burnished armor and gala uniformed noble guards.

Immediately after the pope came the college of cardinals, brilliant in crimson and ermine. One woman broke through a rail to try to kiss the hem of the soutain of the aged dean of the college, Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte.

Pius, his face an ashen gray and solemn, lifted his hand in blessing as the crowd roared.

Ambassador Kennedy Attends.

While the hundreds of thousands crowded St. Peter's square for the ceremony, 60,000 persons gathered in the cathedral for the pontifical mass. Other thousands were refused request for admission.

Among those who attended the mass was Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, who represented President Roosevelt.

The coronation is one of the longest Vatican ceremonies, requiring the presence of the papal court almost a full half day. It is filled with religious symbolism, inspiration for the devout, and awesome solemnity.

Splendor and Solemnity.

The ceremony in the old days was not confined within the limits of Vatican City, 109 acres in size. Then pontifs had civil, military, and spiritual rights of rule and were drawn by white mules and accompanied by mounted knights in sumptuous military procession to take possession of St. John Lateran, Quirinale palace, and other seats of the old Roman government. The processions today are held within St. Peter's and awesome splendor and solemnity replace military displays. The pope was to receive his tiara on the balcony of St. Peter's.

Outside the Basilica soldiers and carabinieri stood in ranks to hold back the spectators. Hats and other objects were thrown into the air in jubilation and roars of "Viva il papa!" ["Long live the pope!"] from the spectators resounded through the enormous structure as the pope entered.

Crowd Breaks Railing.

At the rear of the Basilica several thousand persons broke the railing against which they were pressing and stampeded into an aile kept open for the procession. More than fifty guards were required to get them back into place.

A French prelate, Cardinal Pierre Gerlier, archbishop of Lyon, officiated at the mass. Named as his assistants were two cardinal deacons, Cardinal Nicholas Canali, who was assigned to take the bishop's miter from the pope's head, and Cardinal Camillus Caccia Dominioni, whose honor it became to place the crown there.

The throne occupied by the new pope was in front of the altar of confession. It was upholstered in silk and velvet and trimmed with sashes of gold. Covering the altar steps was a long red carpet, the pres-

SLAYER-RAPIST, FREE 8 MONTHS, HELD AS ROBBER

Vernon Royals, rapist and ex-convict who once was convicted of murder, has been out of prison eight months. Yesterday he was seized by Rogers Park police as the terrorist who invaded a northwest side home, threatened a housewife with death, and robbed her at the point of a gun.

Good detective work by Sergt. Thomas Kelly and Policemen Joseph Korzyk and Martin Gibbons and the responsive memory of Royal's victim, Mrs. Gladys Marinier, brought about his arrest. Police immediately recognized him as the boy giant of 1931 who was tried for the brutal murder of Mrs. Agnes Lavander. He was then about 17 years old. Today he's 24, and 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Poses as Phone Repair Man.

Last Thursday Royals called at Mrs. Marinier's home at 2942 Chase avenue. He represented himself as a telephone repair man. He tinkered with the telephone until her son, Albert, 22, had left. Then, without warning, Royals drew a revolver. He forced Mrs. Marinier, under threat of death, to give up $25, a watch and a revolver. Then he locked her in a bedroom, stole a radio, and fled.

Mrs. Marinier called police. She said she had seen the bandit before. As she recalled it, the robber visited her home two months ago with a refrigerator repair man. With this clew, police began a search for refrigerator repairmen, and finally called on John Anastasi, 4935 North Western avenue. He had fixed the Marinier refrigerator, he said, and a tall young man whom he knew only as "Raincheck" had accompanied him. "Raincheck," the policemen discovered, lived near Montrose avenue and Mozart street.

Admits Robbery; Gives Up Loot.

The detectives canvassed that neighborhood and were finally directed to the Royals home at 4410 North Mozart street. The young ex-convict was arrested there. He speedily confessed robbing Mrs. Marinier, and gave up the stolen radio, watch, revolver, and money.

Royals told police he has been unemployed since his release from prison last July. He conceived the idea of robbery on his first visit to the Marinier home with the refrigerator repair man. "I thought I would get lots of money," he said. He insisted he used a toy pistol and not a real one in the holdup. Mrs. Marinier signed a robbery complaint against him.

Royals was arrested in October, 1931, for the murder of Mrs. Lavander, who was slain in a lonely spot near the Forest Glen station of the Milwaukee railroad in February, 1930. He made three confessions. He also confessed raping a middle aged woman, this attack taking place, he said, shortly before his arrest.

Gets 25 Years in Murder.

Royals was tried on the murder charge, convicted and sentenced to twenty-five years in prison. The three confessions were used against him. He repudiated them during the trial and said they were obtained by duress. He was also tried and convicted on the rape charge and sentenced to five more years in prison. He had already served two years of the murder sentence when the Illinois Supreme court reversed the conviction. The reversal nullified the confessions. The rape conviction stood, however, and Royals was required to serve the full five year sentence.

Prosecutors reviewed the old murder case last night in view of Royals' robbery arrest. They said it would be impossible to retry him for the murder because of the Supreme court's ruling on the confessions. Without them, they said, a conviction would be doubtful.

Mother Uses a Rake to Fish Son from River

Among the many boats docked in the Chicago river at 27th street, near Wolcott avenue, is the one time palatial yacht Doris, 180 feet long. Its living quarters now are a home for Lee McCoy, an ex-student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, his wife, and their children, Richard, 6 years old, and Lillian, 7 months.

Yesterday there was a sudden plop in the water alongside the Doris. Edward Popek, member of a neighboring boat crew, heard it. He turned in time to see a boy's head disappear beneath the surface. He recognized Richard. The boy had slipped while playing and had fallen into the river between the boat and the dock.

Thinks and Acts Quickly.

Popek jumped from the deck of his boat to the dock and from the dock to the deck of the Doris. He yelled for a boathook. His shouts brought Mrs. McCoy from below deck. When she learned that her son was in the river, Mrs. McCoy wasted no time. She had no boathook, but she grabbed a common garden rake. She jumped to the dock, which was lower than the deckline, and leaned over the water.

Coolly and deliberately she swept the water with the rake, hoping she would find Richard. She was rewarded. The prongs of the rake hooked the boy's coat. Gently Mrs. McCoy held his head out of the water and finally, aided by Popek, pulled Richard ashore.

Revives Unconscious Child.

The boy was unconscious. The mother carried his limp form to the boat railing. She rolled him back and forth upon the rail until he began to gasp. Then she put him in hot towels.

Police later took Richard to the County hospital, where physicians said he was in as good condition as ever.

BRITISH EAT THEIR BIT OF A JOKE ON PEACE UMBRELLA

LONDON, March 11.—(AP)—Britons can now eat Prime Minister Chamberlain's "appeasement" umbrella. London stores are displaying miniature brown and black candy umbrellas with this slogan:

"You muss enjoy a peace of Chamberlain rock! Umbrella fuhra tanner."

This specimen of British humor involves both punning and slang. The "muss enjoy" refers to Premier Mussolini. Then comes a play on the words "Peace" and "Piece." "Rock" refers to rock candy.

SMOKE BOTHERS HER, BUT SHE IS NOT EASY SCARED

Harrison, N. J., March 11.—(AP)—Mrs. William Snow's daughter, 8 years old, entered fire department headquarters today and handed the chief this note from her mother:

"The legs on the back of my stove in the kitchen fell off and the stove has tipped over. The place is filled with smoke and gas and I have an infant and am afraid there may be a fire. My canary has dropped in its cage. Would you please come up and put out the fire in the stove for me?"

With the child on the front seat the truck raced to the Snow home. There was no damage.

TENANTS' UNION QUITS C. I. O. TO AVOID RED RULE

Memphis, Tenn., March 11.—(AP)—Southern Tenant Farmers' union headquarters today announced the union's immediate withdrawal from the C. I. O. The announcement said a referendum vote of members showed an "overwhelming" majority for disaffiliation. The union claims 35,000 members in six states.

J. R. Butler, president, said the union will return to an independent status, "free from communist domination."

Town's Dream of WPA Park Is a Nightmare

Prairie du Chien, Wis., March 11.—[Special.]—Prairie du Chien's new five acre park, a $50,000 beauty spot on the Mississippi river, is ready after five years of work to be turned over to the people. Whether it ever will be was in doubt tonight.

Somebody made a mistake on the WPA project, and the city has just awakened to the fact that the park was constructed on property of the Milwaukee railroad.

Dream Proving Nightmare.

Mayor William J. Rider, who took office after the work was well under way, said:

"The blunder will cost the city about $7,500, and the WPA will have to shoulder the rest of the loss, which I understand will be about $50,000. Unless the city is able to get a long term lease from the railroad, which I believe can be done, our dream of a city park will be just a nightmare."

School children were all ready to hold a memorial tree planting program at the park. This has been called off.

Plans for the park were drawn six years ago as a result of civic demand. The city council, then under the late Mayor Mike Shurada, according to Rider, authorized the land to be filled in at an expense of $5,000.

WPA Pours Out Cash.

The city apparently took it for granted it owned the land and, after a casual discussion with army engineers, built a retaining wall and began the fill. The WPA's financial assistance was obtained. The WPA put thousands of the people's cash into the project, it develops, without seeing that the city had title to the property.

The discovery that the city does not own the land came when Mayor Rider asked the Milwaukee road to move a siding from the park. "Why should we move our tracks from our own land?" asked the railroad.

"I find the railroad does own it," said the mayor ruefully.

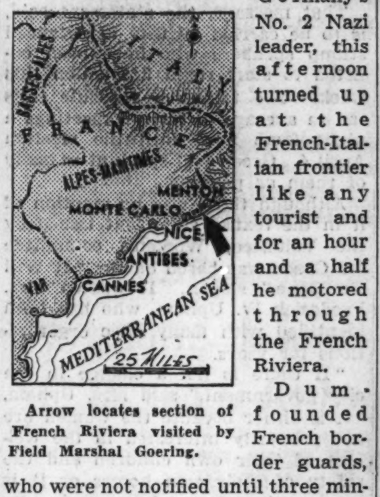
Goering, No. 2 Nazi, in France—Just a Tourist

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, March 11.—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's No. 2 Nazi leader, this afternoon turned up at the French-Italian frontier like any tourist and for an hour and a half he motored through the French Riviera.



Arrow locates section of French Riviera visited by Field Marshal Goering.

Dumfounded French border guards, who were not notified until three minutes before the air marshal's arrival, waved his motorcade through without glancing at passports. There was no time to organize any kind of police escort or to take any normal precautions against accidents.

Seven German plain clothesmen, who accompanied Goering, were all the police guard he had. A nephew, Lieut. Goering, and Col. Connrad, with two chauffeurs, completed the party.

Not a Medal on Him.

Eight Italian detectives escorted Goering to the frontier and remained there awaiting his return. An Italian police official crossed the border three minutes before the Goering party reached Menton and informed French border authorities of what was about to happen, thus saving them the embarrassment of having to ask Goering for his passport.

Goering, without medals and in civilian clothes, sat in the back of a big open Mercedes and gave the French authorities the Hitler salute as he crossed the barrier. By an ironic coincidence, just as Goering's car crossed the frontier bridge, eighteen Italian-Jewish refugees—fifteen men and three women—were being sent back to Italy by the French. Several in the band of refugees were weeping.

Inspects Casino—from Outside.

From Menton the Goering party motored along the coastal highway to Monte Carlo, pulling up in front of the sporting club casino which Goering inspected from the outside. Then the group strolled along the promenade where a battle of flowers was in progress and watched the festivities for twenty minutes.

A Monaco citizen, recognizing Goering, doffed his hat and said to him: "Long live the battle of the flowers. I hope that is the only kind of battle there is going to be." Goering smiled and returned a hat salute with a military one.

Then the party entered its automobiles again and, following the traditional tourist itinerary, headed back for Menton along the famous upper Corniche road. The tourists stopped a few minutes at La Turbie where Goering viewed with interest the celebrated Roman ruins.

Delayed by Trafic.

Arriving back at the frontier a little after 5 o'clock after an hour and a half ride in France, Goering was held up a few minutes by trafic blocking the road. During the halt he chatted amiably with the French police.

When the road finally was cleared and his car started again, Goering did not give the Nazi salute, as he did on entering French soil, but simply doffed his hat to the French officials.

On the strength of this gesture, one mustached policeman remarked:

"French air is good for him."

Visit Believed Well Planned.

Goering's visit is believed to have been carefully planned and to have nothing impromptu about it, although the French were not notified. There is a tendency to link it with the arrival in Paris of Prince August Wilhelm, the former kaiser's Nazi son, who will preside at a ceremony for German war dead in Ivry cemetery tomorrow morning.

Prince Wilhelm later will participate in another ceremony at the local Brownhaus. It is presumed the French government will not pass up this opportunity to demonstrate publicly the improved relations with Germany.

Paducah, Ky., March 11.—(AP)—Three years ago John Reber, 75 year old farmer, lost his false teeth while hoeing corn. Yesterday he found them bottom side up. "They still fit perfectly," he said.

LEADERS ASSAIL DOUBLE DEALING IN LEGISLATURE

Warn: Back Party or Get Out.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Republican state representatives from Chicago were warned yesterday by the city's organized Republicanism that they are expected to support the Republican legislative inquiry into Democratic state spending. The purpose of the G. O. P. investigation of pay rolls, budgets and contracts is to lay a foundation for a reduction of 10 per cent in the state budget.

Edward F. Moore.

The Republican city central committee gave the warning to Republican representatives. The committee's statement condemned "alignment of any Republican legislators with Democratic members on measures which may in any way hinder the passage of constructive and beneficial legislation." The slap was aimed at eight Chicago members of the house who voted with the Democrats last Wednesday for a Democrat inspired economy investigation.

In a second resolution the committee directed that a survey be made to determine whether any of their number are failing to give 100 per cent loyalty to Dwight H. Green for mayor.

Replacement Threatened.

Behind this resolution was the threat to replace any lax or double dealing committeemen. The executive committee will make the survey. It is directed to "see that men are put to work in such [suspicious] localities to fully and completely protect the Republican vote against the raids of the Kelly-Nash machine."

A two hour fight was required before the twin actions were taken in the La Salle hotel meeting room. Leading the forces advocating censure of bipartisanship was Edward F. Moore, county chairman.

Moore called the conclave in a letter to the 50 ward committeemen. He charged the Republicans who switched votes last week had been traitors to their party. This was denied in the meeting by two of the eight who also are ward committeemen—Michael A. Ruddy [15th] and William S. Finucane [11th].

Moore Censures "Traitors."

Chairman Moore opened the meeting in a fighting mood. Speaking of his "treason" letter summoning the gathering, he declared he had taken a position and was prepared to defend it.

"I realize some people are saying that they'll 'get' me later," he said. "But I'm going to be a Republican. This campaign has turned into a question of who is loyal to this committee.

"The people of Illinois elected a Republican house of representatives in Springfield last November because they believed in our party's platform. It is the duty of the Republican representatives to stand with the party and with the platform for economy adopted at the state convention in Peoria last summer."

Moore turned and pointed in the direction of the city hall a block away.

"I'll not lose anything in that building by being a Republican," he asserted, "because I've nothing to lose. We'll elect Green if fifty of us are on the square.

"I feel the Republicans in the legislature who voted with the Democrats made a mistake. Now, I've spoken my piece and I'll answer any questions."

Amazed at Charge.

Ruddy, Finucane, and John A. Pelka, a third representative, joined in a statement declaring that they were amazed at Moore's charge. They said they voted for the Democratic-inspired investigation because of charges that "graft and corruption were rampant during Republican administrations prior to 1932."

"Any attempt by Republican legislators to forestall or prevent an investigation of alleged graft and corruption by Republican state officials prior to 1932, would be tantamount to an admission by the Republican party that its officials prior to 1932 were unworthy of public trust," their statement read.

"As a result we voted for the joint resolution which provided for the investigation of Republicans as well as Democrats. We refused and still refuse to permit such a shadow to be wrongfully cast upon the Republican party. We can only gain the confidence of the people by a comprehensive investigation of all charges."

Elaborate on Position.

Finucane and Ruddy, in speeches before the committee, elaborated on their defenses. Both said no caucus of Republicans had been held prior to the action last week to determine the collective stand G. O. P. members should take.

Ruddy has been a ward committeeman for twelve years and Finucane for twenty years. Each said their Republicanism couldn't be questioned, that they had worked hard for Green in the primary, and were extending their efforts in his behalf in the election campaign.

They were followed by Committeeman George F. Barrett [21st], who spoke in Pelka's belhalf. Pelka, Barrett declared, had been elected by the people of his district, to whom he was solely responsible.

Assails Committee's Stand.

"It is no business for this committee or its chairman to dictate to Pelka," Barrett said. "Any person who advised the issuance of this [Moore's 'treason' statement] was not interested in Green's candidacy.

"Ruddy, Finucane, and Pelka were not voting Democratic, but Republican. They wanted a fair investigation, not one to 'investigate the other fellow, but not me.' The chairman's statement lost more votes for Green than anything that has happened in this campaign."

Committeeman Charles Fleck [45th] jumped to Moore's defense.

"In my ward," he shouted, "the chairman's statement has added impetus to Green's campaign. Ed Moore, as long as you take the stand you are taking today you will have my complete coöperation.

"I hope a committee will be appointed to see if any committeemen are not on the square with Green, and, if there are any, let's get rid of them."

Fight Over Wording.

Committeeman George Fisher [18th] then introduced the resolution censuring any Republican legislators who engage in a bipartisan combination. As introduced, it condemned "the" alignment of Republicans and Democrats. Barrett fought this wording as unjustified. It was changed to "any" alignment.

Committeeman Frank R. Leonard [47] then introduced his resolution for an investigation of double dealing by committeemen. It was adopted almost without debate.

Green and Ferre C. Watkins, his primary campaign manager, had been silent spectators at the meeting and when the smoke of battle cleared away both spoke briefly.

"This has been interesting," Green told the committeemen. "I think it is healthy to have a scrap and fight it out in the open. There has been a great deal of talk about various committeemen selling out. All I ask is a fair and square deal. If there is any reason at all why any of you can't support me I will have more respect for you if you will come and tell me so."

Asks United Front.

Besides Pelka, Finucane, and Ruddy, the Chicagoans who voted with the Democrats last Tuesday were James J. Adduci, Arthur T. Broche, Peter C. Granata, William J. Warfield, and Stanley E. Martynowski. One downstater, Calvin Johnson, Belleville, cast a similar vote.

DETECTIVES SPOT THEIR MAN AFTER 5 MONTH SEARCH

For nearly five months Detectives Russell Richards and Jerry Pierce have kept a license number posted inside their squad car. It was the license of an automobile in which a man fled after taking $10 from Mrs. Blanche Benning, a grocer at 3217 North Racine avenue, in a money change swindle on Oct. 23.

The license was issued to a George Oulette, but the detectives found that Oulette had moved to the neighborhood of 61st place and Blackstone avenue. Patiently they kept watch. The new year came, and with it, new license plates. But yesterday, in front of 6050 Blackstone avenue, they saw a car with the number they wanted on a 1938 plate. They arrested the driver. He was Oulette. Victims of similar swindles will be asked to view him.

WIFE DIES OF BLOOD POISONING.

Mrs. Marie Leith, 19 years old, 644 Surf street, died yesterday in the Jefferson Park hospital of blood poisoning which doctors said developed from an attack of intestinal influenza.

IT WILL BE DONE! GREEN'S WAR CRY FOR MAYORALTY

50 Speakers Take Stump for G. O. P. Nominee.

Headquarters of Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for mayor, announced yesterday that the post-primary slogan "It Can Be Done" has been changed to "It Will Be Done."

"Statistics combined with cross-section reports," read a statement by Frank M. Kalteux and George F. Barrett, co-chairmen of the halls and speakers' bureau, "indicate definitly that the Kelly machine not only can but will be broken and that Green will be elected.

"The 1,220,000 registered voters who did not support Kelly in the primary are turning solidly toward Dwight Green. Now it is merely a matter of getting our message to them."

Fifty Speakers Take Stump.

That message, the statement said, is to be carried by fifty experienced stump speakers who have been enlisted to start rapid fire action this week. The tentative schedule calls for an average of sixteen meetings a night from now until the election April 4. Green will speak at as many of them as possible.

Although there was no mention of it in the text, a statement issued by the Volunteer Women's committee for Green was based on the "It Will Be Done" slogan. It quoted Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, who has been identified with many civic organizations for years.

"If there is not a change in the city government," said Mrs. Upham, "it is either because the women are not primarily interested in the welfare of their own children and the safety of their own homes or it is because they do not know their own power.

Women Large Taxpayers.

"The women of Chicago are the largest stockholders in the city government. They pay 52 per cent of all the taxes that go into the city treasury and there are more women than men of voting age in this city.

"In 1937, the women of Chicago paid approximately $171,809,000 in taxes. They own 40 per cent of the real estate and in their names stand 65 per cent of all the savings accounts. The average Chicago family spending $1,688 a year actually hands to the city government $422 in taxes.

"Women have a big stake in the Chicago political scene. It is in our power to dominate the running of the city government. This is the time to do something.

"Chicago is at the crossroads and the women can decide whether we are to go on in our slipshod, unheeding fashion of allowing graft and corruption in the city hall or are going to follow Dwight Green and vote for an administration headed by an intelligent, honest, and capable man."

March Registers Decline in Diphtheria Cases

The board of health reported yesterday the number of diphtheria cases in Chicago is decreasing. During the first nine days of March fifteen cases and two deaths were reported. During January there were 100 cases and seven deaths and in February sixty-two cases and ten deaths.

JAIL 2 IN ATTACK ATTEMPT AFTER FARMER'S CHASE

Two young men, accused of attempting to attack a 19 year old girl, were in police custody last night. One of them was captured by a farmer after an automobile chase of more than ten miles.

The farmer is Leo Balenski, who lives in Norwood township, near Cumberland and Montrose avenues. Early yesterday he saw the girl jump from an automobile and run towards his house, screaming for help. Two men drove away in the car. Balenski started after them in his car and overtook them at Grand and Central avenues.

Balenski captured one who said he was Everett Mathes, 19 years old, of 1514 Chicago avenue. His companion and cousin, Donald Mahoney, 19 years old, 144 South Sacramento avenue, was arrested later by Lieut. George Le Grue of the Morton Grove highway station.

The girl, who was treated at a Des Plaines hospital, said that the two took her for a ride Friday night.

ROB TWO JEWELRY SALESMEN.

Two salesmen for the Crown Jewelers company, 120 South State street, were robbed of $44 and watches and rings valued at $400 yesterday by bandits who forced their car into an alley behind St. Anthony's hospital. The victims were Leo Schubert, 1437 South Avers avenue, and Albert Chalmers, 4436 Grenshaw street.

SPRAGUE REFUTES CHARGE INDUSTRY DRIVEN FROM CITY

Cites Steady Gains Under Kelly Administration.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the All-Chicago committee, issued a statement yesterday saying that a constant stream of new industries and new businesses have poured into Chicago under Mayor Kelly's administration.

The statement came only a few hours after Dwight H. Green, Mayor Kelly's opponent in the mayoral election April 4, charged that the Kelly administration and its high tax rate are keeping industries out of Chicago. Green mentioned as an example the announced removal of the main office of the Standard Gas and Electric company from Chicago.

Cite Trade Association.

Both Green and Sprague cited reports of the Chicago Association of Commerce as the authority for their contentions. Col. Sprague said that in 1938 thirty new enterprises made their appearance in metropolitan Chicago and that their land and buildings plus expansions by existing concerns represented a total of $28,727,735. In addition, he said, fifty other manufacturing concerns are now negotiating for Chicago sites.

He said that in 1937, according to the commerce association's figures, there were 189 new industrial projects in the metropolitan area with a total plant investment of $21,762,700.

"Business leaders of Chicago are convinced that the reason we are making giant strides in building up our local industries is the fact that Mayor Kelly has restored Chicago's prestige in the eyes of the world," Sprague said.

Tell of Mayor's Aid.

The statement said Mayor Kelly's insistence on the second year of A Century of Progress, his aid in developing the city as a convention and recreation center, his encouragement of pageants celebrating the glories of the city and similar activities have boosted immensely the number of visitors to Chicago.

"Learning all this, business men among the visitors are amazed to discover that Chicago pays less for its city government than any comparable large city," Sprague continued. "He finds that Chicago has been singularly free from labor trouble because Mayor Kelly has given fair treatment to both capital and labor. He learns that the mayor has constantly shown his willingness to counsel with business, and that he has demonstrated that he knows and appreciates the problems of business.

"It is my belief that Mayor Kelly's administration is the beacon that is attracting fresh blood to industry in our city."

PADEREWSKI

Grand Monarch of the Piano

writes: "The supreme qualities of the Steinway piano have been for many years universally recognized. Public and individuals, amateurs and artists look upon them as upon a standard of perfection."

In the early autumn of 1892, a dynamic young Polish pianist electrified his audience in Carnegie Hall with his tremendous talents. . . . Soon the young Paderewski was embarked upon a concert tour of 75 American cities that remains a living tribute to the man and his piano (the Steinway which is illustrated above).

When he sailed away, the beloved Steinway was shipped to his home in Morges, Switzerland, where it became the daily companion and inspiration of the great Paderewski for more than forty years. . . . In 1934 the master presented the piano to Steinway Hall as a memento of his esteem to the makers of such glorious pianos. . . . Now on view at Lyon & Healy's for a limited time.

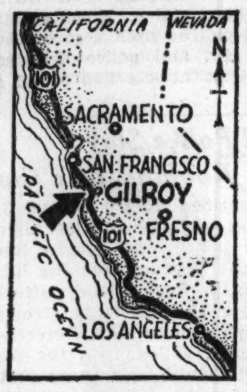
VAGABOND HILL GETS STARTED ON CALIFORNIA TOUR

Moves Almost Two Miles and Marches On.

Gilroy, Cal., March 11.—(AP)—A "moving mountain" was creeping steadily tonight toward the Pacific coast's main Canada-to-Mexico highway.



Map locates Gilroy, near where mountain is [or was].

On a front about a quarter of a mile long, the 125 foot high mass from the "Deal Hills" of San Andreas earthquake fault was advancing down a slope toward U. S. highway 101, about five miles from here.

It was traveling at the rate of more than a foot an hour and engineers said it was about a half mile from the road. The spectacle attracted hundreds of sightseers.

No Smoking, Please.

"No smoking" signs were placed in the area to prevent explosion of natural gas that might be freed from its pocket in the earth.

The "moving mountain" started on its way on Monday after heavy rains had soaked it. It broke loose at the 1,130 foot level about two and a quarter miles from the highway. In five days it has covered a mile and three-quarters and is at the 150 foot elevation.

Boulders, trees and everything else in the way were enveloped in the mass or dropped into huge fissures created by the downhill pull of the slide. One of these fissures swallowed up a young bull.

Sliding on Clay Base.

M. H. Ayres, state highway engineer, said the mass was sliding on a base of clay made slippery by seepage from the rains. Dr. Albert J. Newlin, Santa Clara university seismologist, said recent tremors in the San Andreas fault undoubtedly initiated the movement.

The San Andreas fault runs almost the length of California and was responsible for the San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

Guides Rescue 73 Swiss Soldiers Marooned in Alps

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 11.—Eighteen officers and fifty-five men of an Alpine brigade, marooned by snow slides in a hut 8,000 feet up the Wildhorn, were rescued today by guides. Bringing the bodies of two lieutenants and a sergeant who were killed Wednesday when an avalanche engulfed a supply train, the detachment started its descent this morning and reached Lenk, a village near the base of the mountain, six hours later.

LINK STALIN'S SPEECH TO MOVE FOR NAZI PACT

MOSCOW, March 11.—(AP)—The possibility of a rapproachment between Russia and Germany was discussed in diplomatic quarters tonight as a result of Josef Stalin's vigorous condemnation of what he called efforts to embroil the soviet union in war with Germany. Such a war, Stalin told the opening session of the eighteenth all-union congress of the communist party yesterday, would seem to be "without any visible basis."

His speech, reviewing international and domestic affairs in the last five years, also was described as remarkable for its lack of invective against either Germany or Japan. Germany, Italy, and Japan, however, were charged with pulling wool over the eyes of the western democracies.

Their anti-comintern pact, Stalin observed, was a good screen behind which to attack vital interests of Britain, France, and the United States.

MORGENTHAU AID SNOOPS ON MEN IN U. S. TREASURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Employés of the United States treasury are mighty careful these days about what they say while they're on duty. If they have any secrets they keep them unspoken.

They have learned that Herbert E. Gaston, press secretary for Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., has installed a listening device in at least half a dozen offices. It has microphones so sensitive that a whisper rolls back to Mr. Gaston's ear with a big boom—and sometimes the employés don't know he is tuned in.

Curb Office Gossip, Too.

This is just the press secretary's way of making sure that all the news of the treasury doings goes out under his supervision. Subordinate officials, under the circumstances, keep even the office gossip for their leisure hours.

There's a return system which permits Mr. Gaston to roar out messages. Some of the employés have related, after they have left the stately portals of the treasury, that his voice startles them frequently.

"It always comes unexpectedly," one informant said, "and scares the wits out of you. It's too loud."

Rifle Senator's Desks.

There is some resentment at the Gaston snooping, but the workers don't know what they can do about it. They recall that the New Deal hasn't been hesitant about listening in on private conversations of business men, nor about searching the desks of senators who opposed the administration.

In 1936 Postmaster General Farley complained of wire tapping activities by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

SLOVAK CABINET FORMED; VICTORY SEEN FOR NAZIS

New Government Opposes Secession Movement.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 11.—A compromise solution of the Czecho-Slovak crisis was reached in Prague tonight. A new cabinet was formed for the autonomous province of Slovakia, where the central government declared martial law yesterday after disorders flared in Bratislava, the Slovak capital. The demonstrators had demanded complete independence from the central government.

The new cabinet is headed by Karl Sidor, vice premier of the central government and Slovak representative in Prague. The compromise is regarded as a victory for the pro-Nazi faction of the Hlinka movement in Slovakia, since the new cabinet is composed of the most conservative adherents of the movement.

[The Hlinka movement is named after the late Father Andreas Hlinka, founder of the Slovak People's party and leader of the Slovak fight for autonomy, which was granted last year after the Munich agreement carving up Czecho-Slovakia. Father Hlinka died last August.]

Cabinet Opposes Secession.

The central government in Prague hopes the compromise will save Czecho-Slovakia from complete dissolution, since the members of the new Slovak government favor enforcement of the Pittsburgh treaty of 1918, which provides for coöperation between the Czechs and the Slovaks and guarantees Slovak autonomy.

Premier Sidor and his ministers oppose Slovakia's secession, which had been favored by Joseph Tiso, a Roman Catholic priest, who was deposed as Slovak premier yesterday by Emil Hacha, president of the central government. Not a single member of the ousted Tiso government was included in the new lineup.

The selection of Sidor as premier came after the Slovak parliament recommended that Tiso be reappointed to the post. Tiso's German friends also were eager to see him reinstated, but it is assumed they are satisfied with the conservative lineup.

Prague believes the radical faction of the Hlinka movement, which has been crying for secession, will accept the compromise and that the conservative group will be strong enough to oppose any further independence plans for the moment.

In addition to Sidor as premier, the new Slovak government is made up as follows:

Minister of interior—Dr. Martin Sokol, chairman of the Slovak parliament.

Minister of education and public enlightment—Josef Sivak, who was interim premier for two days following the overthrow of Tiso, although he was in Rome for the coronation of Pope Pius XII.

Minister of justice—Senator Gesa Fritz.

Hitler Warns Czech Foes.

The new government was formed soon after Reichsfuehrer Hitler had warned three nations in connection with the crisis. The Nazi diplomatic representative in Prague warned the Czech government it must reach a compromise with the Slovaks. The Nazi representatives in Warsaw and Budapest warned Poland and Hungary not to attempt to exploit the situation and attempt to seize Slovak or Ruthenian [Carpatho-Ukrainian] territory from Czecho-Slovakia.

On the road between Dresden and the southeastern border of Germany a detachment of between 4,000 and 5,000 motorized Hitler guards was seen by automobile travelers. The travelers had difficulty in getting through because the road was blocked by the men. German officials said these men were merely engaged in "normal small scale night maneuvers necessary for their training."

Slovak Tension Grows.

BRATISLAVA, Capital of Slovakia, March 11.—(AP)—Demands for an independent Slovakia increased in volume among Slovaks tonight and a German party demonstration heard its main speaker attack the central government of Czecho-Slovakia.

About 8,000 persons attended the demonstration, called originally to celebrate the first anniversary of the German annexation of Austria. Before it started several hundred men gathered about party headquarters and received rifles as police watched idly.

State Secretary Karmasin, spokesman of the German community in the Slovak government, told the German party demonstrators that "Czech overlords" were seeking "to meddle in our affairs again." He said that under former Premier Tiso "we Germans and Slovaks had attained a measure of freedom."

Slovaks Have a Martyr.

"After what happened yesterday it appears that unconditional freedom is the only proper solution of Czech-Slovak relations," said Jan Davchik, a leader of the Hlinka guard.

Davchik sat in a blood spattered office room where a 27 year old Hlinka guardsman was shot and fatally wounded yesterday. The guardsman, Anton Kopal, was shot as he charged at a machine gun which Czech soldiers had set up in the headquarters.

"We will make Kopal a Horst Wessel of Slovakia," one of his comrades said. Horst Wessel was the martyr killed in the early Nazi attempts to gain power in Germany.

Picketing Succeeds

Elvin Hanback, the boy friend, gives in.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Miss Alicia Butler, 17 years old, and her admirer, Elvin Hanback, 18, had a spat a week ago. Elvin stayed away from Alicia seven long days after that. Alicia didn't like that. She painted a sign saying, "Elvin is unfair to Alicia," hung it on her neck, and began to picket the young man's home last night. It wasn't long until Elvin stopped the picketing with a kiss.

NAZI PRESS HITS AT ROOSEVELT'S UNDECLARED WAR

Says Results of 'Battles' Are Dubious.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 11.—The Frankfurter Zeitung said today that President Roosevelt is "waging an undeclared war against the authoritarian states." The paper, which frequently is used as the mouthpiece of the German foreign office, added that Mr. Roosevelt "has fought many battles in this war though with dubious results."

"In Chicago he wanted to place Japan in quarantine," it said. "In Kingston he promised the Canadians armed support against the 'intervention of a foreign power'; in Lima his secretary of state was to unite the South American nations in a 'defensive alliance against Fascism'; and now Roosevelt is assailing the neutrality act which allegedly compels him to watch inactively the happenings in Europe and the Far East."

Slaps at New Neutrality Bill.

Claiming that the "spirit of Wilson has arisen from its grave and indefatigably dictated speeches to his successor," the newspaper declared that the "suspension of the neutrality bill and its possible replacement by a new law in the near future would place congress at the mercy of Roosevelt's despotism and political prejudice. It would be left to Roosevelt's judgment to decide which state was to be aided by America's material and land power reserves."

The Boersenzeitung, organ of the armed forces, also attacked the President, referring to the "destructive policy of Roosevelt, who tills the democratic soil to prepare it for the reception of bolshevist seed."

British Plans Anger Nazis.

The British plan to create an expeditionary force for the European continent in case of war, and the suggestion of a British foreign legion to include foreign refugees also aroused Nazi anger.

It is also felt here that in the forthcoming trade negotiations between Britain and Germany, England will refuse to agree to Nazi demands for colonies. Germany is determined to obtain the return of these colonies without "any strings attached to them, such as the possible restriction of armaments, which may be desirable but cannot be coupled with the return of the German colonies," it is pointed out.

QUEZON WILL FIGHT LABOR VIOLENCE, HE WARNS PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., March 11.—(AP)—President Manuel Quezon today warned Filipinos he was determined to enforce the laws, maintain order and would use government police powers to deal with "so-called labor agitators."

In a nation-wide radio broadcast the commonwealth president appealed for patience by the people while he attempted to carry out his long range social improvement program. He said it could be carried out only if there was peace and order.

"I am determined," he said, "to prevent and suppress all kinds of violence and lawlessness."

The chief executive said strikes were legal but unnecessary in the Philippines, where machinery has been provided to settle disputes.

21 ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAIDS BY GARY POLICE

Gary police made two gambling raids late last night in furtherance of the new city administration's pledge to drive out gambling. Squads struck at an alleged policy collection house at 135 West 18th street and arrested Melvin Zachery as the operator, five men and a woman, all colored.

Detective Van Johnson said the place was the clearing house for two policy wheels in Gary and one each in Indiana Harbor and Calumet City. The other raid was made on the Calumet poolroom at 756 Broadway, where a numbers game allegedly was being played. Twelve patrons, the owner, Nick Cagianpas, and a clerk were arrested.

Havana Dock Laborers Fight Over Work; 9 Hurt

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, March 11.—Nine workers were injured today on the Ward Line docks during a quarrel over distribution of the day's work. They fought with fists and clubs until police and marines dispersed them by firing into the air.

FIRES AT FLEEING BANDITS; ONE IS BELIEVED SHOT

One of the three "dirty faced bandits"—so called because of their dirty faces—who have committed numerous small robberies on the south side in the last week, was believed wounded last night in a gun fight with a hold-up victim.

The latter, Michael Chalek, was robbed in his grocery at 3455 West 59th street. The bandits took $5 from the till, and one fired three shots at Chalek when Chalek drew a revolver. Chalek fired six shots into the back of the bandits' car as they sped away.

A few minutes later the young bandits stopped Joseph Kessler, 6438 South California avenue, in his car at 57th and Richmond streets and made him get out. They drove away in his car, abandoning their own, which had been stolen. Blood stains were found on the back seat of the abandoned car, and police believed one of Chalek's bullets had found a mark.

Railroad Police Slay Negro Robbing Box Car

An unidentified Negro, about 31 years old, was shot to death last night by railroad police who caught him and two other Negroes breaking into a box car in the Rock Island railroad yards at 41st and La Salle streets. Lieut. Joseph Condit and Detective Frank Schuster called upon the trio to halt, and Condit fired three shots when the thieves fled. Police said the slain man dropped six stolen electric clocks.

KILLS SELF WITH POISON.

Samuel Epstein, 73 years old, was found dead of poison, apparently self-taken, in his home at 1324 South Harding avenue last night.

FRANCO OUTLINES SCHEME TO MAKE SPAIN A UTOPIA

Would Abolish Poverty and Also Great Wealth.

(The French and Italian rivalry for land in the Mediterranean basin is told in today's Graphic Section.)

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

José Antonio Primo de Rivera. [A. P. Photo.]

BURGOS, Spain, March 11.—Details of how Gen. Francisco Franco's Nationalist Spain intends to build itself into a self-sufficient, coöperative state, independent of foreign domination or financial aid, were learned today.

Foreign prognosticators frequently have said that the need for cash to reconstruct the country when the civil war is over would keep Spain under the thumb of foreign nations. This the Spaniards deny.

It will be a state where unemployment and great wealth will be equally unknown, they say, but where, if the rich do not exist, there at least will be no poor.

Plan Taxes on Wealth.

Under the "twenty-six points" laid down by José Antonio Primo de Rivera as the program of the Spanish Falangist movement, it is stated that every Spaniard has a right as well as a duty to work. Primo de Rivera is a son of the late dictator during the Spanish monarchy.

The present plan to accomplish this program without importing capital is to employ every worker and pay him, if necessary, with paper money good for the purchase of food and other necessities.

"Industry will flourish," said a statement published here today. "The farmer will see himself compensated for his hard labor, public works will be intensified, and all without cost or effort by the state, or loans, or costs to the taxpayer."

Necessary tax measures will be enacted to prevent great accumulations of wealth, it was stated. This means, presumably, that a confiscatory tax will be imposed upon profits above a certain level considered a fair return on investment. It is described as "leveling in the middle as against communism, which levels at the bottom."

Plan Trade by Barter.

Complete self-sufficiency is impossible in any country, the Spaniards say. They regard this merely as an ideal. As the next best thing they intend to keep clear of foreign money lenders by refusing to buy abroad except where a barter arrangement is possible under which they can pay for imports with Spanish fruits, olives, ores, and other products. This, presumably, will clash with Secretary of State Cordell Hull's trade treaty policy in trade with the United States.

Pointing out that Bank of England notes, for example, are good only because the people have faith in credit rather than on the basis of the bank's gold reserve, the Spaniards say their financial system, too, will be based on credit without that gold reserve, which in the present war they found it possible to dispense with.

At present there is no silver in circulation in Spain. Denominations as small as ten cents are in the form of notes. But the money is stable, it is pointed out, because the people have faith in it and because it is protected against speculation.

Place Emphasis on Honesty.

Credit, it is declared, even if backed up by gold, can only be maintained and money kept stable as long as the state is headed by men of honor, intelligence, and energy who direct it wisely and honestly.

It is on this basis that the Spanish nationalists intend to give the lie to observers who predict foreign domination of this country through finance.

Sales Star to Wed

Mrs. Jean Shassere, only steel saleswoman, who'll give up job to be married.

Mrs. Jean O'Haver Shassere, long known as the only woman steel salesman in the world, is about to give up her business career. She will be married during the last week in March to Fred I. Mills, a merchant of Robinson, Ill.

"I always said I'd retire," Mrs. Shassere said yesterday, "when I found a man who could support me in the style to which I am accustomed. And I think I will be quite content to cook Fred's meals and superintend his home."

Among the buildings for which she sold the steel are the Merchandise Mart, Passavant hospital, Board of Trade, and the new Field building in the loop. She is also a journalist and a poet, and has been a frequent contributor to the Line o' Type or Two and the Wake of the News. Mrs. Shassere's address is 4044 Melrose street.

RED REVOLTERS GAIN IN MADRID; ATTACK PALACE

Republicans Lose Ground; May Call for Help.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], March 11.—(AP)—Communist rebels gained ground today in the western area of Madrid, where they attacked the royal palace. The communist gains wer made despite the capture of one of their headquarters by Gen. Jose Miaja's Republican troops. This was the sixth day of the red revolt.

In the afternoon the Republican radio station announced that "the revolt is finished." Later in the evening, however, it was said over the same station that the communists, who are in rebellion against Gen. Miaja's proposal to seek peace with Gen. Francisco Franco, had made such progress in the western parts of the city that Gen. Miaja was considering calling further reinforcements from outside Madrid.

Fight for Strategic Buildings.

One of the main centers of fighting was about the Chilean embassy in the eastern section of the city near the Calle de Alcala.

Communist soldiers who left fortifications around Madrid to join the internal struggle against Gen. Miaja set up four batteries of artillery in the Ventas quarter.

Miaja's forces held the postoffice and the ministries of navy and war, and the bank of Spain building,

The Calle de Alcata, which is one of Madrid's main streets, was fortified by communists from the limits of the Salamancan quarter on the Paseo de Ronda to the Plaza de la Independencia.

The Paseo de Prado, running from the war ministry to the Southern railroad station, was deserted and turned into a no man's land by communist attacks through the nearby botanical gardens.

Before the old royal palace, and within sight of Gen. Franco's army lines, communists and Gen. Miaja's troops fought for possession of the Plaza de Republica.

Franco Guns Shell Madrid.

The peace seeking National Defense council felt the fury of the Nationalist guns while it fought a communist revolt within the city.

The boom of guns on the Republican-Nationalist front mingled with the din of artillery and machine gun fire within the city. Then, around 11 a. m., the fighting at the Republican-Nationalist front died down.

CITY ADDS 3,300 STREET LIGHTS IN TWELVE MONTHS

Economies Save Further Cost to Taxpayers.

Without additional cost to taxpayers, the city installed more electric street lights during 1938 than in the preceding six years, Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt said yesterday. The work was financed through savings in the department of streets and electricity, of which Hewitt is acting commissioner, and utilization of money left over from improvement bond funds.

At the beginning of 1932 there were 92,913 electric street lights in Chicago. By Jan. 1, 1938, only 2,505 more had been added. In the next twelve months, 3,300 new lights were installed at a cost of $536,500.

2,200 More Now in Use.

Of the lights installed last year, 2,200 are now in use, while the other 1,100 will be in service within the next month, Hewitt said.

The cost of operating and maintaining the city's street lights is the chief item of expenditure for the electrical department.

The money spent for new lights in 1938, records show, was the first substantial sum made available since the beginning of the depression. In other years the installation of lights was paid for through the sale of bonds. But after the city was found to have exceeded its constitutional debt limit, no more bonds could be sold.

Extension of the street lighting system had to be curtailed. Then economies in the electrical department began to produce $150,000 annually that could be used for additional lights.

New Type Lamp Used.

Most important of the economies was the replacing of old lamps requiring an expensive outer globe with new open fixtures. The new lamps have a lower maintenance cost and, according to Hewitt, give better light.

The present administration also secured passage of a law by the legislature permitting the use of unexpended balances in improvement bond funds for any other permanent improvement, thus making the funds available for street lighting purposes.

Another source of funds is the motor fuel tax fund, but it is limited to state highways within the city. Hewitt said an application already has been made for $271,000 to be used for lights during 1939. This would enable the city to install 2,000 additional lamps.

There still are 4,750 gas and 550 gasoline street lights in outlying sections of Chicago. These will be replaced gradually, officials have indicated. But, as each new lamp costs nearly $175, a total of $927,500 will have to be spent before this work is completed.

Making City's Streets Brighter

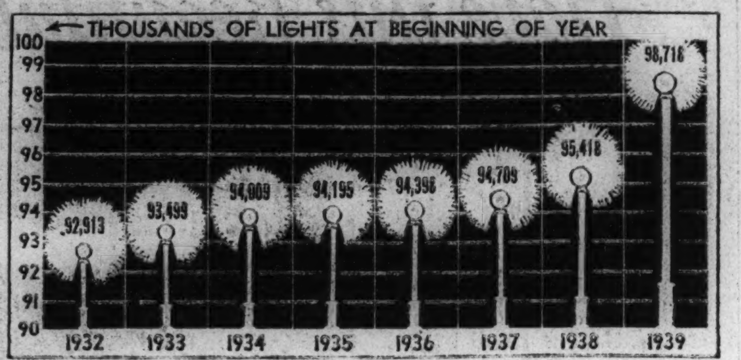

Diagram indicates progress made in recent years in improving the city of Chicago's lighting system. A total of 3,300 new lights were installed last year. The $536,500 job was financed through savings in department of electricity.

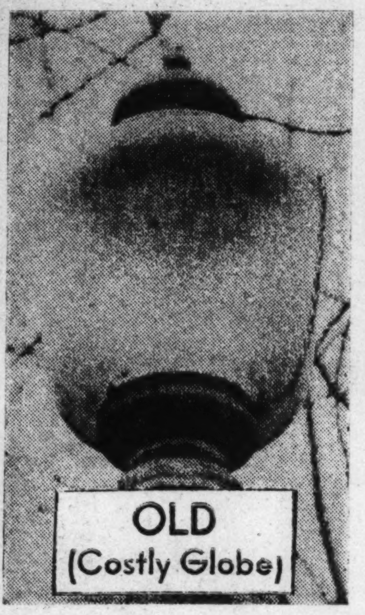

Old type lamps, whose globes were expensive and also easy to break, are being replaced.

NEW (Less Expensive)

City engineers designed the new type lamps, which have lower maintenance cost and give better light.

6,000 JEWS STILL IN ITALY AS EXIT DEADLINE PASSES

ROME, March 12.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Expiration of Italy's midnight deadline for an estimated 6,000 foreign Jews to leave the country came today without any immediately apparent action against those still in this country.

Diplomatic circles believed there would be additional days of grace for those unable to arrange residence abroad. Individual concessions ranging from two weeks to a month were known to have been granted.

About 2,000 non-Italian Jews have complied with the order issued six months ago to wind up their affairs and leave the country. Those remaining are subject to arrest, but there was no indication of such action. Many observers considered Italy's anti-Jewish campaign had moderated noticeably.

IRISH TERRORISTS FORCE KING TO POSTPONE TOUR

LONDON, March 11.—[U. P.]—King George VI. of Great Britain has postponed a scheduled tour of Lancashire because of threats of violence by the outlawed Irish republican army, sources close to Buckingham palace disclosed today. The threats were not against the king himself, but against vital public buildings and factories.

His majesty acted on the advice of Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, who told him that the Irish republican army had threatened to avenge the heavy sentences imposed in Manchester yesterday on seven Irish terrorists.

Sir Samuel said vast police forces would be required to guard various parts of the country and it would be better for the king to defer his trip until the situation is quieter.

The king was to have visited the $50,000,000 government munitions factory at Chorley in Lancashire and two aircraft factories at Newton Heath and Stockport.

NEW TALKS FAIL TO SOLVE RIDDLE OVER PALESTINE

Jews Fight British Plan for Arab State.

LONDON, March 11. — (AP) — New talks between Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald and Jewish delegates today left the Palestine peace conference still deadlocked over Great Britain's plan to make the Holy Land an independent Arab state.

A British spokesman said the talks, begun unexpectedly yesterday at MacDonald's request, would be continued tomorrow night.

The spokesman said MacDonald wished to discuss with the Jews points raised in their "final appeal" memorandum submitted to the British government last night. There also was inconclusive discussion of the possibility of creating a federated Palestine of Jewish and Arab cantons.

Talks with Arab Leaders.

After the Jews departed MacDonald received the Arab moderate leaders, Bey Ragheb Nashashibi and Bey Fakhri Nashashibi, with whom he was said to have discussed the Jewish memorandum. The memorandum was understood to have stressed that the idea of an independent Palestine state was wholly unacceptable and that any proposal which failed to guarantee the organic growth of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land could not be considered by the Jewish delegates as a basis for further discussion.

Today's talks with the Jews continued uninterrupted for 2 hours and 45 minutes. MacDonald's experts meanwhile suspended drafting Britain's "final plan" for peace in Palestine, which both the Arabs and Jews will be forced to accept if they fail to reach a compromise at the St. James palace conference table.

Minority Position for Jews.

The government decided last Wednesday to impose its own Palestine control plan after a month of conferences failed to compose differences between the rival groups. This plan was expected to provide for the creation of an Arab state in Palestine, with Jews constituting a permanent minority. It was to have been submitted to both sides early next week.

In the talks today the Jews were believed to have stressed their view that Britain should provide alternative guaranties for equal Jewish rights in the Holy Land if she renounced her league of nations' mandate to form an Arab state there. Heretofore the Jews have regarded Britain's mandate as a safeguard of the principle of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land, as promised in the Balfour declaration of 1917.

KING AND QUEEN TO FOLLOW U. S. CUSTOM ON TRIP

George Will Shake Hands; There'll Be No Curtsying.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—When King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth visit the United States next June, the king will shake hands at social functions and there will be no curtsying to the queen. The social trappings of royalty will be modified and the royal couple will unbend, following the American way of social life as far as possible, according to information received at the state department today.

In England the king never shakes hands. The proffer of such a greeting at the Court of St. James would be considered even more familiar than slapping the President on the back in this country. In England the queen always receives a curtsy from a woman visitor. In America this salutation, according to the state department, will be regarded as an affectation on the part of the curtsier.

Tentative plans for the visit were sent to England tonight in the brief case of a court official, who has spent several weeks in Washington making arrangements.

Will Come in at Niagara.

The king and queen will enter this country at Niagara Falls on June 7. They may be met by President Roosevelt, but if he does not go to the honeymoon city, Secretary of State Cordell Hull will welcome the visitors.

The royal party will arrive at Union station here the morning of June 8. An official welcome will take place in the presidential waiting room. As dignitaries file by, the Marine band will serenade the party.

Cavalry will escort the party down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House, where the king and queen are to be house guests during their stay in the capital. They will remain in Washington until the night of June 10, when they will leave for New York to visit the World's Fair.

From New York they will proceed to Hyde Park, N. Y., where they will be guests at the President's family home on the Hudson. The monarchs will leave this country June 12.

Assigned Historic Rooms.

At the White House King George will occupy a suite consisting of the Pink room, a smaller bedroom, and a bath. The queen's bedroom will be the old Lincoln study, which the civil war President at one time used as his office.

They will share the Monroe room as a sitting room. The Monroe room is at the top of the marble steps leading from the main floor of the White House.

An inscription in the marble fireplace explains that the room first was used for cabinet meetings during the administration of President Johnson. Portraits of President Monroe and Mrs. Monroe hang on the walls. A plaque notes that the treaty of peace, which ended the Spanish-American war, was signed within its walls.

Only a few members of the royal entourage will be quartered in the executive mansion. Most of the forty odd members of the retinue will go to hotels or the British embassy.

Monarchs Will Give Dinner.

The king and queen are expected to give a dinner and reception in honor of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the British embassy. They will visit Mount Vernon during their stay.

While every effort will be made to give the visit a democratic note, the informality which at times bordered on rowdyism in the visit of the late Queen Marie of Rumania, will be barred.

King George will be the fifth reigning monarch to visit this country and the first to sleep in the White House. The first crowned head to visit this country was Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil, who came to Washington shortly after the civil war. King Albert of Belgium came shortly after the world war, during the administration of President Wilson.

Build-Up for Loans.

Queen Marie was the third reigning monarch to make a visit. Her tour was a theatrical build-up for loans to her country. The fourth royal visitor was King Prajadhipok of Siam, who first came incognito and later returned for an eye operation. He since has abdicated.

King George's visit was arranged by some skillful angling on the part of the British foreign office for an official invitation from President Roosevelt. British leaders hope the visit will bring the United States closer to Britain.

Witty Justice

[Acme Photo.]

Prince's, Swanky London Club, Is Forced to Close

LONDON, March 11.—(AP)—Prince's, one of London's swankiest clubs, will close tomorrow because it cannot pay its way. Four British kings have been among its members. The club was the frequent haunt of King Edward VII., George V., the former Edward VIII. when he was prince of Wales, and George VI. when he was the duke of York.

HE'LL GREET KING WITH GLAD HAND AND NIMBLE WIT

Montreal Has Full Faith in Justice Greenshields.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 11. — When King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain visit Canada in May, one of those who officially will greet them in Montreal will be a distinguished looking gentleman wearing a top hat, a double-breasted vest and a flower in his button hole. He is Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields of the Superior court of the province of Quebec.

Chief Justice Greenshields, who is 78 years old, will be able to tell King George of a hot summer day in Regina, Sask., in 1885 when, as a young lawyer, he stood before a court and defended the half-breed, Louis Riel. Earlier in that year, Riel had raised the northwest in rebellion against the representatives of the king's greatgrandmother, Queen Victoria, and attempted to set up a republic in Saskatchewan.

Tells a Story on Himself.

Greenshields, then a young lawyer, lost the case, however, and Riel was hanged on a charge of treason.

"He wanted to be king of the northwest," Justice Greenshields now says, "but he was a coward."

Justice Greenshields' wit has cut sharply into many a lawyer and overconfident witness, but he is always ready, too, to tell a joke on himself.

"Toward the end of Riel's trial," he said, "the more experienced counsel for the defense suggested that I plead insanity on behalf of our client. When I put forward the plea, I looked around to find that my colleagues had deserted me and, as I spoke on, Riel finally understood what I was saying. The man rose from his seat and in great anger shouted: 'The only insane man in this room is my attorney.'"

Another Court Exchange.

He also remembers a young Irish witness in another case who seemed to know everything about court procedure.

"You think you're a very clever man," the chief justice remarked to him.

"Yes," he says the young man replied, "and if I wasn't under oath, I'd say the same thing about you."

The chief justice, as he sits in his chambers today with the inevitable flower in his lapel, probably is the most colorful person in the Canadian courts. He is the envy of other judges and lawyers who would like to have some of his wit and keen thinking. He is the most popular after dinner speaker in Montreal.

Another of his distinguishing characteristics is his devotion to the color brown—a devotion that affects particularly his preference for a brown derby and brown overcoat.

As a lawyer Greenshields participated in some of the most celebrated criminal cases in Canadian history. His own firm specialized in civil cases, but Greenshields had a fondness for the criminal side of the work.

Few of his judgments ever have been reversed. The last time he gained wide notice in Canadian newspapers was a few months ago when he delivered a judgment affecting marriages between Protestants and Catholics in the province of Quebec. Another judge had been annuling such marriages which had been performed by a Protestant clergyman on the grounds that Quebec civil law recognized that the Canon law of the Catholic church prohibited them.

Chief Justice Greenshields refused to accept this contention and he would not grant an annulment. The conflicting points of view in this predominately Catholic French-Canadian province have created a controversy of considerable proportions.

PRIZES AND PRICES

By CALEB

"AND so you want to be a great surgeon?" The gray-templed man, whose name held professional magic, looked thoughtfully at the expectant-eyed young student in the chair across the way. He saw fine, clear eyes, keen with determination; but behind that look, another: a shadow of concern and inquiry. The man of fame chose his words with care. . . .

"The world needs great surgeons, Ernest," he began. "It needs 'greats,' in fact, in every line of human endeavor I know—more so today, moreover, than ever in its hectic history. But whether it be in surgery, in engineering, in law, in literature, in architecture, in education, in business—there are so many 'part-wayers' on the high-road to accomplishment! You've seen them and know them: men and women who wanted life's prizes, the name and place and wealth that reward great doers—but who did not want to pay the price required to possess them.

"Take my own specialty, of which I have finally reached a certain mastery. As I look back over the years consumed in climbing to the pinnacle which my prominence seems to you—I see their course strewn with an untold amount of labor. Innumerable nights when the oil of toil was burned till gray morning; vacations, enjoyed by others, that I devoted to study, and still more study; personal privations undergone to buy expensive books and apparatus, or visit far-away clinics; months spent in charity work that gave me no compensation but the skill developed under trying conditions . . . All this I see, looking back. One long vista of price-paying; a painful abundance of it. And I cannot help but wonder."

He pointed to an array of portraits, a fine company of The Great, clustered on the walls around them. "Pasteur . . . perhaps you saw his story of price-paying, as Paul Muni portrayed it on the screen? Koch—Osler — Lister — Noguchi—Banting—the Curies—scores of individuals preeminent in this healing art: of every one of them biography reveals a price paid for eventual fame that dwarfs the prizes in comparison. All of them, remember, were also originally rich in native equipment and resource; yet none could escape the rigors of this ultimate law of survival.

"Years ago, Arnold Bennett summed up the matter when he said that 'Most people do not want success.' He meant, of course, that most people were unwilling to pay the price demanded by the prize. I hope you will prove a happy exception. For the world needs, and badly needs, the greatest surgeons, lawyers, engineers, teachers, statesmen, executives, merchants, it can find. Enough of them it will never find . . . so long as most of those who crave distinction are unwilling to slave for its attainment."

ent of Emperor Bonaparte of France to the church.

The short distance between the throne and the altar was covered with a green carpet and 100 lighted candles and 100 small bouquets of flowers were on the balustrade of the altar. The altar candelabra of gold were designed by Benvenuto Cellini, the famed renaissance goldsmith.

The pontiff sat in the gestatorial [movable] chair and the cortége moved slowly to the royal hall and thence to the large front entrance of the basilica. The cortége included the Sistine choir, the Swiss Guards, and the master of ceremonies.

Carried by Four Men.

A chaplain escorted by two guards carried the coronation tiara, which has eleven diamonds and six rows of pearls. Two secret chamberlains carried the miter which the pontiff wore during the coronation ceremony. The auditor of the apostolic rota, dressed in white robes, carried a huge papal cross and he was escorted by seven candle beares. Then came the deacon, who read mass in Latin, followed by a Greek deacon, who signed the gospel in Greek. Then a long procession of prelates followed.

The pope descended from the chair and made his way to the throne before the holy door, which was opened in jubilee years only. When he was on the throne the cardinals gathered around him, seated on rough wooden benches. The cardinal archpriest of the basilica of St. Peter's, after a short speech of welcome to the pope, knelt on the marble floor and carried out the symbolism of kissing the foot of the new pontiff.

Chant by Sistine Choir.

Again the pope sat in the gestatorial chair and the procession went to the Trinity chapel while the Sistine choir chanted "Tu Es Petrus" [Thou Art Peter]. There the pope descended from the chair for brief ceremonies in front of the sacrament and thereafter he was carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where the throne was placed. There he received the obedience act again from the cardinals, patriarchs, bishops, and prelates, the cardinals kissing his hand and the others kissing his foot.

The pope then intoned the "nona" which was repeated by the choir of Benedictine monks. the pope took off his mantle and put on the sacred robe to recite mass, after which the cortege proceeded to the altar of confession where he recited high mass.

The final high point in the ceremony came as the cortege halted before the bronze statue of St. Peter and before the altar directly above the tomb of St. Peter. Each time the pope was confronted by the chamberlain who, holding a handful of burning flax, knelt and said, "Peter sancto sic gloria mundi"—meaning that world glory is but the shadow of smoke. Then followed the high mass recited by the pope.

Returning to the throne, three cardinals placed the pallium on the shoulders of the pope and later the prince assistant to the throne held a basin of water in which the pope washed his hands. The pope then received communion while standing in front of the throne and reciting: "O, Lord, I am not worthy."

Half an hour after the mass, the pope was to appear on the balcony and sit on the throne in view of the throng outside. There, following ritual prayers, the miter was to be removed from his head and Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni was to place the tiara upon his brow, slowly pronouncing in Latin the sacred formula:

"I bestow upon you the tiara adorned by three crowns: Let it be known by you that you are the father of princes and kings, the director of the entire world, and vicar of our Lord, Jesus Christ, to whom only honor and glory in century and century is due. Amen."

Five United States bishops were assigned places in the procession and were privileged to kiss the pope's slippered foot and white robed knee. They were Bishop Joseph McCarthy of Portland, Me.; Bishop Moses Kiley of Trenton, N. J.; Bishop Daniel Desmond of Alexandria, La.; Bishop James Cassidy of Fall River, Mass., and Bishop Ralph Hayes of Pittsburgh, Pa., rector of the American college in Rome.

LOOP FIRE KNOTS TRAFIC; SMOKE FILLS STREETS

Early morning trafic at State and Jackson streets was tied up and the south end of the loop was blanketed with heavy smoke as the result of a stubborn fire which broke out in the basement of the five story building at 12-18 West Jackson street.

The fire was so difficult to combat that additional equipment and men were summoned by a 4-11 alarm. Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan assumed charge. In spite of the rain a crowd of nearly 1,000 men and women, many of whom had just left night clubs, stood outside and watched the fire.

Street Cars Rerouted.

Street car trafic in State street was halted for several blocks, making it necessary to reroute the trolleys in Dearborn street and Wabash avenue. Motor trafic in Jackson street was stopped.

The fire started in the basement of the Tip Top grill at 12 West Jackson street and quickly routed a dozen patrons and employés. Smoke next drove employés and customers out of the John R. Thompson restaurant at 18 West Jackson.

Firemen Become Ill.

First firemen arriving turned streams of water into the basement, causing heavier clouds of smoke to develop. Several firemen became ill. One was slightly injured. Efforts to confine the fire to the basement failed and flames eventually ate through the upper floors and finally the roof. Hose towers were employed to quench the roof flames.

Among the tenants in the building are the Chicago Garage Owners Exchange, Inc., the Mador Johnson School of Dancing, Schrader & Rydell, tailors, and a large hat cleaning establishment.

NOVACHORD

It's an instrument abounding in pleasant surprises. On the six-octave keyboard, one may play a piano or organ selection . . . twist a control switch (just above the keyboard) and the tone instantly becomes that of the violin . . . another control changes it to the ancient clavichord . . . or the flute or Hawaiian steel guitar, cornet, cello . . . Novachord is the most versatile instrument we know of . . . and decidedly fascinating for amateur and artist.

Novachord, like the Hammond electric Organ, is compactly housed in a handsome spinet-style walnut case . . . (and only 4½' square). . . . It is ready to be played when connected to an electric outlet.

GRAND JURY PINS LAW BREAKDOWN ON LAX OFFICIALS

Ends Boss Rule Inquiry in K. C.; 166 Indicted.

Kansas City, Mo., March 11.—[Special.] — Blame for "a widespread breakdown in law enforcement" in Kansas City was placed on the public and officials alike in the final report today of the most active Jackson county grand jury of recent years.

The investigation was ordered by Judge Allen C. Southern after Gov. Lloyd C. Stark charged that crime and rackets flourished openly in this stronghold of his Democratic factional foe, Tom Pendergast.

The grand jury returned twenty-nine indictments today, bringing its total to 166 for the thirty-five days it worked.

Besides known gangsters, tavern operators and gamblers, the grand jury named many officials high in Boss Pendergast's political councils.

Henchmen Face Trial.

W. W. Graves, a Pendergast henchman who has been prosecutor for six years, headed the list. Another is David E. Long, presiding judge of the County court—the body in Missouri which handles all fiscal and business matters for the county. J. W. Hostetter, supervisor of county buildings, is another Pendergast follower who faces trial.

Warning of the "consequences" of a "wide-open town," the jury stated:

"From our investigation, we find a situation which should impress the community conscience much deeper than does the mere question of whether somebody wants to gamble or the question of whether some one wants to buy a drink of liquor at an unlawful hour.

"We believe that the term 'a wide-open town' implies a degree of corruption of public officials that is incompatible with their oaths of office."

Raps City Hall Waste.

In a paragraph concerning the city hall, the jury report said:

"It was a surprise to this jury to learn that it is difficult, if not impossible, to correct violations of the provisions of the city charter other than at election time."

The jury said it attempted to examine city finance records "and gave up its intention only when, after three days of effort, the sherif's office was unable to find any one in authority on whom they could serve subpœnas."

Hardly had the report been handed in when police rounded up ninety persons in a raid on a race horse book shop.

The raid was ordered by Otto P. Higgins, director of police. Both Higgins and City Manager H. F. McElroy were summoned by the grand jury in its closing days.

"Curtain Raised" on Corruption.

Judge Southern, who in summoning the grand jury echoed the lax law enforcement charges of Gov. Stark, praised the jurors highly as they ended their work.

"The public should commend you and place you on the pedestal where you belong," the judge said. "While organized crime and open violation of the law has been publicly known for some time, you have raised the corner of the curtain which enveloped the underworld and exposed a mass of corruption."

DIVORCES THOMAS FORTUNE RYAN FOR DESERTION

Casper, Wyo., March 11.—[Special.] —Mrs. Mayme Ryan was granted a divorce today from Thomas Fortune Ryan II., member of a socially prominent and wealthy New York family. She charged desertion. Her property rights are to be decided at a future hearing.

Mrs. Ryan, the former Mayme Cook Master, daughter of a mine weighmaster, was married to Ryan in July, 1931. A month later Ryan was quoted as saying he had been disinherited by his father, John Barry Ryan, financier, because of the marriage.

Late in 1937 Mrs. Ryan filed suit for divorce in Cheyenne, but subsequently withdrew the action. She sued again not long afterward. Ryan has been married before, having married the former Margaret M. Rea of Pittsburgh in 1929. He obtained a divorce at Sheridan, Wyo., a year later. Newspaper files also show that he married a Miss Alberta Eaton in El Paso, Tex., in 1924.

Slain in Check Row

Harvey Huggins, manager of currency exchange, shows how he said he was about to club Fred G. Hatheway with pistol when it was discharged, killing him.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Florence Hatheway, who identified the body of her estranged husband.

Fred G. Hatheway.

Fred George [Roxie] Hatheway, 33 years old, a bartender, was shot and killed late yesterday afternoon in a struggle with Harvey Huggins, cashier of the Ogden Hill Currency exchange at 6236½ South Ashland avenue.

Hatheway had asked Huggins to cash a check for $49.50, made out to John Paulson. Huggins, suspicious, demanded an identification. The proof offered was insufficient, and Huggins held the check passer in conversation while another employé slipped out to call a policeman.

"The man wanted his check back," said Huggins. "I held onto it. He came around the counter and started a fight. I seized my pistol and tried to hit him with it. In the struggle it went off and he was shot. I think Hatheway is the man who passed a bogus check here a few weeks ago."

Huggins' story was corroborated by an employé, Louis Rund, who grappled with Hatheway. The body of the slain man was identified by his estranged wife, Florence, of 3546 North Halsted street. She said that Hatheway, who had lived recently at 4145 Broadway, had been unemployed for weeks.

Six months ago or more a representative of ours went to some of the country's finest mills and to several of the New York custom tailors with a proposition. We would agree to take their bolt-ends, swatch-ends, and odd lots each month, providing they would dispose of them to us at a low figure. Fortunately few mills or tailors like bolt-ends; they cannot use them in the trade. In slightly less than six months we had accumulated approximately sixty pieces—in round figures enough for 700 coats. Each month these bolt-ends or short lots were delivered to one of New York's best makers; he made them into topcoats. One month he made fifty-three, another month seventy, another month ninety-four, and so on. The result . . . just 678 topcoats made of some of the world's finest fabrics and tailored by one of New York's best makers at a price that in some cases represents less than half the ACTUAL WORTH. You'll agree THESE are topcoat values the LIKES OF WHICH YOU'VE NEVER SEEN!

'BUSTERS' SAIL TO TAME TOUGH ST. LAWRENCE ICE

Little Fleet Will Break Up 71 Mile Front.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 11.—The "ice busters" are at work again. A stout little fleet of grey hulled vessels, flying the ensign of the Canadian government, steamed up river from Quebec this week to start the spring drive against the tough St. Lawrence river ice and to open the lower link of the immense waterway that extends from Chicago to the sea.

In less than a month, if the fates are with them, the ships will have smashed their way through 71 miles of solid ice to the harbor of Montreal, and the green waters of the St. Lawrence will be flowing freely for the first time in 1939.

Three ships are making the drive, led by the 3,000 ton N. B. McLean, which each summer carries out the Arctic patrol on the shipping route through Hudson Strait to the northern port of Churchill. She is accompanied by the smaller vessels Saurel and Lady Grey, both veterans in this tricky and important business of "ice busting."

Safety of Many at Stake.

The job means more than early opening of St. Lawrence navigation. It means more than the reawakening of Canada's largest port, Montreal. The owners of scores of farms that dot the banks of the St. Lawrence place their safety in the hands of the men who buck the ice.

The motto of the icbreaking service is "It's better to be ten days too early than ten minutes too late," and the men have served it faithfully for years. The floodwalls erected along Montreal's waterfront in the reign of Queen Victoria now stand with their gates open in the spring. Once, before the ice breakers came into being, the ice used to pile over the water front streets, causing heavy damage, and farms along the river banks were inundated by floods. At times, in later years, the same thing has threatened, but the ice breakers have always go through.

Ice Breaking Task

Arrows define the extent of water in which the ice must be broken up to permit ship trafic in the St. Lawrence waterway.

Icebreaking on the St. Lawrence is a difficult assignment. It requires skill and expert judgment. There is a channel, sometimes no more than 300 feet wide, which winds its way up from the town of Three Rivers to Montreal. If the big N. B. McLean moves out of this channel a foot or so, she is certain to be grounded, and releasing a grounded vessel in an ice-locked river is an almost hopeless task. Her pilots, therefore, must be on their guard every second. In most cases they must trust to their expert knowledge of the river, for many of the winter buoys have been swept under the ice or carried out of position.

Buoys under the ice are a constant danger, and many a propellor blade has been smashed to pieces in collision with one of the spars. A broken blade means delay, and delay here is an ominous word.

Ice 14 Feet Deep.

From Three Rivers the ships smash their way up into Lake St. Peter, where 140 square miles of ice must be broken up and kept moving through the narrows at the lower end of the lake. Above Lake St. Peter, and almost to Montreal, the channel winds in and out of a series of islands, with the ice sometimes extending to depths of fourteen feet.

One ship, usually the N. B. McLean, works at the head of the cut. Capable of sixteen knots, she takes a start of several hundred yards and hits the ice at all possible speed. The big ship runs up on the ice, breaking it with her hull, and sometimes travels a length and a half, rolling heavily, before she stops. She then backs out, full astern, her wash breaking off huge chunks of ice and widening the cut.

The Job They All Dread.

The sister ships keep the broken ice moving. Jams frequently occur, and the dread of the service is that the vessels will be caught above a jam. To break a jam from the upper end is the hardest job of all, and may mean days on a job at which minutes may count.

The operations are directed from Montreal and Quebec through the efficient telephone and wireless networks of the Dominion government signal service. Look-out stations along the river report jams immediately they occur, and radio messages crackle out to the masters of the ships.

For Montrealers, icebreaking is one of the big spectacles of the year. Hundreds go to the banks of the St. Lawrence to watch the ships battle their way. The only persons who possibly bemoan icebreakers' progress are farmers whose winter roads across the river ice are smashed to bits by the vessels.

Early April Opening Likely.

The port of Montreal will be open in early April if all goes well. The "busters" probably will have the first cut completed in three or four weeks, but much clearing of the channel will remain before commercial vessels can use the route safely.

Their job done, the icebreakers will escort the first ship into Montreal, and the St. Lawrence season in 1939 will be open.

QUIZ 8 IN TAVERN SHOOTING.

DENY PROVISO SCHOOL FACES CLOSING THREAT

The Proviso Township High school in Maywood is in no immediate danger of shutting down or being unable to pay teachers' salaries. This assurance was given to students and teachers yesterday by Jerome J. Greenberg, chief accountant for Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. On Friday Greenberg said the school, with an enrollment of 3,900 pupils, was one of several in the county facing financial difficulties.

"The school was listed with the others," Greenberg said, "because it received no funds for maintenance and operation of school buildings from 1937 building taxes and has had to rely mainly on reserves in the building maintenance fund. As far as educational funds are concerned, the school is in a good condition. The statement was intended as a long range warning rather than one denoting an immediate emergency."

The other schools listed bn Greenberg were Thornton Fractional High school in Calumet City and Bloom Township High school in Chicago Heights. The former, it was explained, is distinct from the Thornton Township High school at 150th and Broadway, Harvey, a larger school whose finances were reported to be in good shape.

INDIANA HIGHWAY HAS PARKWAY AS SAFETY FEATURE

Many Improvements Can Be Built Into Roads.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles by The Tribune's automobile editor on questions of highway policy facing the state administration.)

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 11.—[Special.]—The No. 2 plank in THE TRIBUNE's editorial platform for Illinois reads, "Build deathproof highways." Obviously, no roadway can be designed on which a motorist, regardless of his conduct, could not be killed. By deathproof highway is meant a pavement free of physical characteristics contributing to the risk of a fatal accident.

For construction within Chicago away from the lake front, the proposed elevated highway system constitutes such a design. On such a structure, the types of accidents that account for 98 per cent of the fatalities on Chicago's surface streets are physically impossible.

The life saving value of elevated design is fairly obvious. For example, 75 per cent of the city's motor victims are pedestrians; there would be no pedestrians on elevated highways.

Collisions Eliminated.

Other common causes are crossing collisions, head-on collisions, and collisions with street equipment such as lamp posts and signal standards. On the elevated, there is no cross trafic, no physical contact between opposing streams of trafic, and no conventional street equipment that can be reached from the roadway.

On Chicago's lake front, sections of the Outer drive are deathproof highway. Their functional characteristics are those of an elevated highway. Pedestrians and cross trafic have been eliminated. Opposing streams of trafic are separated.

Accident statistics on these Outer drive sections demonstrate the value of these design features. Chicago park district records show one accident per 1,300,000 miles of travel. In contrast, on South parkway, a broad pavement at grade, there is a record of one accident for each 55,000 miles of travel.

Plan for Country Use.

For highways outside cities, there is a similar opportunity for deathproofing through refinement in designs. The safety requirements are similar to those within a city, but they are of varying degrees. The justification for costs varies also.

The most dreaded type of automobile accident in both city and country driving is the head-on collision. The risk is inherent in a pavement carrying trafic in opposing directions. Opposing streams on most sections of the Outer drive are separated physically by a center parkway. On elevated highways, where conservation of width is an economic necessity, a center curb is used. Such a curb is on the approaches to the outer link bridge.

In Indiana, deathproof highways are being built with 30 and 40 foot center parkways, providing adequate stop space for turning or crossing vehicles.

The typical main highway radiating from Chicago is a forty foot slab on a sixty-six foot right of way. This right of way is too narrow for a center parkway and for open drainage ditches on the fence lines. As a deathproofing measure, the Chicago Motor club is advocating a center curb for these four lane slabs.

The four lane deathproof highway is proposed for the main cross state trafic carriers.

For Chicago it has been calculated that 100 miles of elevated highway would carry 65 per cent of all automobile travel and eliminate about 65 per cent of the city's toll.

Deathproofing rural roads would have a similar benefit, although not to such a great degree. However, it is recognized that the construction of deathproof highways for the main trafic carriers would bring about a substantial saving of lives now lost in country driving.

Mother Gives Up

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Ruth Swanston, who walked into police station last night and asserted poverty compelled her to abandon her two children.

Nurse Anna Duggan of St. Vincent's orphanage with the Swanston children, Janet, 3 months old, and Robert, 3½ years old.

Mrs. Ruth Swanston, 24 years old, who abandoned her two small children in a rooming house at 549 West 60th street on Friday, appeared last night at the Englewood police station.

"I didn't want to leave," she said, "but I was desperate. I haven't a cent and I can't seem to get things straightened out so I can get on relief. If I could feed my children I'd never leave them."

The youngsters, a boy 3½ years old and a girl of 3 months, were sent to St. Vincent's orphanage by the police. Mrs. Swanston, who said her husband deserted her ten months ago, will be held until the Court of Domestic Relations can pass on her case.

DRIVER HURLED IN WATERFILLED DITCH BY CRASH

Saved from Drowning by Nearby Resident.

Peter Lehmann was saved from drowning early yesterday when he was hurled into a water filled ditch by a collision of two automobiles. The accident was at the intersection of state routes 59A and 63, southwest of Mundelein in Lake county.

Lehmann, who lives at 3435 North Mena avenue, was north bound. At the intersection his automobile collided with that of Roy Watterman of Barrington, who was headed east on route 63. The impact knocked Watterman unconscious. Lehmann, seriously injured, was thrown out of the car and into a ditch. His head was submerged in the mud under more than three feet of water.

Rushes to Rescue.

Joseph Pierce, living nearby, was awakened by the crash. He dressed hurriedly, ran outside, and pulled Lehmann out of the water. At the Condell Memorial hospital in Libertyville, Lehmann was found to have internal injuries and a brain concussion. Watterman, only slightly injured, was charged with disregarding a trafic signal.

Raymond R. Olson, 50 years old, 542 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, was fatally injured during a heavy rain in a head-on collision between his car and another in Route 45, two miles south of Paxton, Ford county. His son, Raymond Jr., 19, was slightly hurt. The other car was driven by John Bull of Valparaiso, Ind., who was seriously hurt.

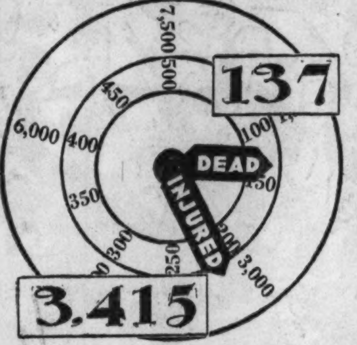
Dies of Injuries.

Warren Monahan, 46, 1419 Fargo avenue, died in the Northwestern hospital at Des Plaines of injuries incurred Friday when his automobile collided with the Hiawatha, crack streamliner of the Milwaukee road, near Northbrook.

Mrs. Emily Metzinger, 74, of 1906 Bissell street, died in the County hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 27 when she was struck by an automobile at Sheffield avenue and Wisconsin street. The driver was John Oshanna, 2106 Dayton street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 172 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 137 were killed in Chicago, where 3,415 were injured in the same period.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Municipal Court to Issue New Procedure Manual

A new 600 page Municipal court manual, designed to simplify and expedite legal actions in the largest poor man's court in the world will soon be distributed free to lawyers. This announcement yesterday explained that attorneys should make reservations for copies of the manual in the office of Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby. Several years ago Republican judges criticized Sonsteby, a Democrat, on the ground that he had needlessly complicated the procedures of the court. All present judges are Democrats.

BULK OF PLANES EXPORTED GO TO BRITAIN, FRANCE

Purchases Are Revealed by License Report.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has been highly successful in his drive to link the United States with Great Britain and France in a virtual military alliance against the dictatorship nations, a state department report revealed today.

Encouraged by Mr. Roosevelt's orders, over war department protests, that British and French emissaries be given access to new types of fighting planes being developed in this country, the two nations have embarked on an extensive buying program of war materials here, the report disclosed.

In January and February alone, the two countries obtained export licenses for more than $17,000,000 worth of American airplanes and parts, according to a report of the arms control division of the state department.

Only Early Orders Shown.

France was granted export licenses covering $5,594,428 worth of airplanes, motors, and parts. Great Britain obtained licenses during the two months covering $11,711,030 worth of war materials, of which $11,115,000 went for military airplanes.

Together, the two nations characterized as the European democracies by Mr. Roosevelt with whom we must stand against the totalitarian governments, accounted for more than three-quarters of the total war materials licensed for export to all parts of the world during the first sixty days of this year.

Total export licenses issued during January and February covered $22,513,917 worth of materials. Approximately one-half of this material was shipped abroad during the two month period. Total exports of war materials were valued at $11,002,337 in January and February.

The bulk of the shipments to France, valued at $3,210,297, was in military airplanes. Duing the same period Great Britain received shipments worth $3,314,208 of which $2,819,566 went for military airplanes.

Rumania ranked third in the list of war materials purchasers. She obtained licenses covering $1,295,050 worth of war materials, most of which were hand grenades, bombs and like munitions.

Speculation on Financing.

China arranged for licenses covering the export of only $223,224 worth of war materials. Japan obtained no licenses, although airplane parts worth $139,490 were shipped under licenses previously issued.

The disclosure renewed speculation in congress concerning the method of payment for the war materials which may have been arranged in behalf of the two countries as a result of Mr. Roosevelt's program. President Roosevelt told the senate military affairs committee at a secret White House session six weeks ago that France and Great Britain must pay cash for their airplanes. The suspicion persists on Capitol hill that unusual credit arrangements may have been made.

NEIGHBORS ACCLAIM HEROISM OF WOMAN WHO SAVED 2 IN FIRE

Jacqueline Kros.

Mrs. Kirner was burned while saving two children when her small frame cottage at 756 East 130th street was destroyed by fire Friday.

The children are Jacqueline Kros, 2 years old, 754 East 130th street, and Edward Tamraz, 4, an orphan being reared by the Kirners.

Mrs. Kirner was washing clothes in the rear of the cottage when Edward's cries brought her running to the house, which was in flames. She carried Edward to safety, then returned for the baby, who was sleeping in a crib. She was cut off by smoke and flames near the rear for a time, but finally made her way out the front door.

Mrs. Kirner and the children, whose burns were less serious, were taken to the Roseland Community hospital.

WEATHER BUREAU EXPECTS MUCH OF NEW GADGET

Washington, D. C., March 11.—(AP)—The weather bureau promised today to use the word "probably" less frequently in daily weather forecasts.

F. W. Reichelderfer, chief of the bureau, said development and extensive use of a new instrument for upper air observations would eliminate much of the present guesswork of forecasting. The instrument is carried aloft by a balloon.

Known as the "radio-sonde," the apparatus transmits radio signals which indicate air pressure, temperature, and humidity of upper air levels, so that the ground observer may know these important items in making forecasts. Such readings are being taken at ten stations in various parts of the country.

STORM DELAYS MERCY HOP OF BOSTON PLANE

Newark, N. J., March 11.—[Special.]—The snowstorm here today grounded a plane from Boston which was carrying a remedy that may save the life of a Denver nun severely burned in a fire. The remedy "gentian violet," a healing agent perfected by Dr. Robert Henry Aldrich of Boston was put on a Pennsylvania train which arrives tomorrow morning in Chicago, whence, it is hoped, it can be carried by air to Denver. The patient is Sister Mary Josephine, a Catholic Sister of Charity from a New Mexico convent, who was burned Thursday by an electric iron while doing some work at St. Joseph's hospital in Denver.

"Some manager I'll say"

"But what I want to know is, how do you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Well, take this rent check, for instance—we've never lived in a nicer place and we're paying less rent than we ever did."

"O, I just watch the ads."

"What ads?"

"The Tribune want ads."

"Is that how you got a line on this apartment?"

"Sure."

"And where, may I ask, did you pick up that fancy hall rug I noticed when I came in?"

"Same place—only that did not cost me anything—I traded for it through a Tribune Barter and Exchange ad."

"What's this I hear about a music teacher for Junior?"

"Well, he advertised in the Tribune want ads, too—and we can pay for a lot of lessons with what we are saving on the rent, can't we?"

"Astonishing! All I can say is that if Tribune want ads are such good reading, I'm going to start reading them myself."

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

ARMY PREPARES TO TRAIN FLYERS FOR NEW PLANES

Private Schools Will Give Early Instruction.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—The war department is ready to begin the training of the commissioned and enlisted personnel who will man and maintain the expanded air force of 6,000 planes as soon as funds are voted by congress.

To obtain the needed men in sufficient numbers and train them rapidly enough to man the new planes as they are rolled out of factories virtually constitutes a war problem on a small scale.

War would make necessary a vast increase in training facilities. The army high command, however, plans to carry out its expanded air training program on a peacetime basis, using existing facilities so that their operations may return to normal after the program is completed.

Use Commercial Schools.

The plane bill provides for utilization of commercial flying schools to give flying cadets the first three months of primary flying training now given at Randolph field.

In this training students will be classified as military personnel and if they prove satisfactory in the early training will be obligated to continue training through the basic and advanced stages at the training center.

The army use of commercial schools has no relation to the civilian pilot training program, which is to be carried out by the civil aeronautics authority and which has no military aspects. The CAA program is to be carried out in schools and colleges where flying fields are available for training.

The air corps expansion program authorizes an increase in commissioned personnel to 3,203 regular officers and 3,000 reserve officers. The war department aims to reach a total of 4,663 regular and reserve officers on active duty in two years. The regular officer strength of the air corps, now 1,638, will be increased to 3,203 over a ten year period.

At the outset of the program a large number of reserve officers will be placed on active duty. During the ten year period the proportion of reserve officers will be reduced gradually. However, the war department proposes to keep about 1,400 reserve officers on active duty after the regular officer goal is reached.

The regular enlisted personnel is to be upped from 21,500 to 45,000.

Three Phases in Training.

Under the present setup at the air corps training center there are three phases to pilot training: Four months' preliminary flight training at Randolph field, four months' basic training at Randolph field, and four months' advanced training at Kelly field.

Under the new plan candidates accepted and qualified as flying cadets will be sent to one of the existing accredited civilian flying schools, where they will be given a three months' course in primary training. On the successful completion of this course they will go to Randolph field for a basic course of three months duration and then to Kelly field for the three months' advanced course.

As part of the expansion program the army has evolved a new classification for army officers. The new ratings are:

Command pilot—All air corps officers with twenty years' service in the corps and 2,000 hours of flying or fifteen years in the corps with 3,000 hours of flying.

Senior pilot—All officers with ten years' service in the corps and 1,800 hours of flying.

Combat observer—All graduates of the combat observer course at the flying school.

Technical observer—Air corps officers who have not received a higher rating or who will fly under this category in temporary circumstances when their physical or professional condition will not warant their flying under a higher rating at a particular time.

BUILDING NAVAL SHIPS IN U. S. FOR OTHERS INDORSED

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said today the administration favors the general objectives of legislation proposed by Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the foreign relations committee, to authorize construction of naval vessels for Latin American countries in United States government navy yards.

This country's own national defense program would take precedence, he pointed out, and work for Latin American governments would not be permitted to interfere with the rearmament program of the United States.

Welles' statement gave rise to the general assumption that naval building for other nations was an integral part of administration efforts to tighten hemisphere defenses.

DEMOCRACY IN AFRICA.

For a better understanding of what's going on in Europe these days we recommend a study of the map of Africa, and to make it easy we have published one in bright colors on the cover of the Graphic section this morning. We believe that the time spent in examining that map and reading the short article which accompanies it will not be wasted.

The map shows what Europeans got from their previous wars. It shows what they're getting ready to fight about next time. That happens to be something which Americans don't want and wouldn't take as a gift.

Some people think the last war was fought for democracy; others that it was fought for the rights of small nations, freedom of the seas, or something else of the sort. The condition of the world today goes a long way toward proving how insincere those wartime slogans were, but there is no need to start that argument all over again. Everybody can agree and everybody who looks at the map must agree that the last war and most of the other wars in recent centuries have resulted in transfers of colonial real estate to one nation or another. Whatever the wars were started for and whatever slogans were concocted to inspire the people who had to do the fighting, the wars ended in gains or losses of colonial possessions.

The present war in Asia is being fought for colonies; the present war in Spain is important to the rest of Europe chiefly because of its bearing on colonial questions; the Ethiopian war was a colonial war; the present row between Italy and France is over African colonies, and Herr Hitler's recent anniversary speech shows that his mind is on the same subject. For centuries, ever since the era of the great navigators, colonial ambitions have been an obsession of European statesmen. Colonies have been a principal business of European diplomats and soldiers [and it is always unfinished business] for hundreds of years. And that is as true today as it ever was.

In urging that America side with the so-called democracies in the war that is in the making Mr. Roosevelt is asking this country to forget all about the map of Africa. He told us in his speech at the dedication of the Outer bridge in Chicago and in subsequent speeches and interviews that we have a duty to take sides in the approaching conflict, as if it made much difference to us which nation issues hunting licenses in Tanganyika and which nation makes soldiers out of the Senegalese. He thinks about the next war as naively as President Wilson thought about the last one. He foresees a crusade of the Powers of Light against the Powers of Darkness. To the diplomats of Europe his naiveté must be amusing, but to the American people the consequences of it may again prove extremely costly.

Africa presents the most striking illustration of the ambitions which drive Europe to war. There is only one little corner of the entire African continent which hasn't been grabbed by one or another of the European colonial systems, and even Liberia has been threatened from time to time. But Africa, of course, is not unique in this respect. The British flag flies over nearly 2 million square miles in Asia, with a population of 365 million people. Besides India, Ceylon, and the Malay States, there are Aden and Borneo, Palestine, Hongkong, the Straits Settlements, and some lesser dependencies. Britain's imperial partner, France, rules the millions of French Indo-China and makes them like it. Madagascar in the Indian ocean is also French.

In all the French empire covers much more than 3½ million square miles and the subject peoples number more than 60 millions. The British empire covers more than 13 million square miles with a population which at last estimates was only a few millions short of half a billion. Both empires include American possessions. France lost Mexico, but retains her hold on French Guiana in South America, as well as her islands off our coast. Britain also has her South and Central American possessions in Guiana and Honduras, together with her much longer list of American islands, including Bermuda, the Bahamas and Barbados, the Leewards and Windwards, Jamaica and Trinidad and, far to the south, the Falklands.

Millions and hundreds of millions of the people included in these vast territories are held within the imperial systems only by military force. This force is exerted by the so-called democracies which Mr. Roosevelt believes we should support in the next war. We don't want any part of Africa or Asia, but if he has his way we shall play a leading rôle in the next war for imperial real estate.

THE LAST OF THE ANARCHISTS.

The dissolution of the Spanish Popular Front government under defeat probably liquidates the wildest of European political sects and philosophies. Spain, and more particularly Catalonia, was the last region which could be called a stronghold of doctrinal anarchy. The anarcho-syndicalists in Catalonia were the last numerous following of the anarchist philosophers once represented in France by Proudhon, in Russia by Bakunin and Kropotkin, in Italy by Malatesta. America knew them through the Haymarket experience in Chicago and later in our own time in Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

Emma and Alex were among the revolutionaries who thought that the bolshevist revolution had created a free Eden. They were deported to Russia and took the ride with great expectations and high hopes, only to discover that one of the first things the proletarians under Lenin had done was to dispose of the anarchists who had had a moment of ecstasy and then had been swept violently from the scene. Emma and Alex went to Paris, where all despairing revolutionists make their way in defeat. Many have had their evening glow in the cheaper cafés on such drinks as surviving sympathizers could provide.

The anarchists had taught the bolshevists some tactics and also some philosophy. But they hadn't taught the comrades how they could rule without a government when it was their purpose to set up an entirely ruthless dictatorship. One of the irritated bolshevists said that the anarchists were undoubtedly the looniest of all people because, being at heart nothing but bourgeois liberals, they thought they could live without policemen.

In Spain they were the most unruly elements of the Popular Front. They were numerous enough in Catalonia to queer the aspect of republican reputability.

The anarcho-syndicalists could not have much to do with the government without acknowledging that there was one. They tried to fight it and its war at the same time. As a historical movement anarchy would seem to have had its final fling and to have run its course in the Spanish conflict. It had its effect upon both the philosophy and the maneuvers of revolutionaries who fought it to death wherever they encountered it in rivalry. It produced some gentle dreamers as well as the terrorists with bomb, torch, and pistol.

THE AMERICAN INSANE ERA.

The report of one of the largest and best managed American corporations with over 600,000 stockholders shows that in 1938 it had 155 million dollars revenue applicable to stock dividends and that 147 million dollars were required for taxes. It got off easy. So did its investors. Another great corporation reported that in its distribution of revenue $5 were taken for taxes for every $1.90 available for the stockholders. Both these corporations are favorably conditioned in comparison with most others.

Only a few of the railroads have anything for the stockholders. Many of them have nothing for their bondholders and are in receivership. All of them are bled by taxation. Mr. Amlie has the cure for that. It is socialism.

In any large income the federal government is the largest share taker. In the highest brackets it will take over 75 per cent, and the residue is liable to a variety of other taxes, state and local.

On the scale of present day expropriations and in the theory of government now applied in the United States old notions of taxes disappear. The federal government works in lieu of private enterprise. It carries out its plans by seizing what would be used in private investment, increasing its borrowings to take up the residue not expropriated. Then it puts such obstructions in the channel of profitable enterprise that whatever is left in the end in the hands of the revenue producing people of the country stagnates in a sterile pond.

As a result of these procedures American economy has remained in a deadlock for over six years and the purported new economic policy, recently expounded in hurrah speeches by Mr. Hopkins and in bland words by Mr. Roosevelt, cannot be taken as well meant or of any honest intent. The demand that the national debt limit be increased didn't fit very well into the announcement that there had been a change of heart and that the New Deal was, as Mr. Hopkins said, putting reform on the shelf to allow recovery to take its course. In that remark there was a confession which ought to have been shamefaced and wasn't. There was an admission that the reformists had been riding their wild hobbies, knowing that the country couldn't make its recovery so long as they were going rough shod over it.

If the American people are not in a stupor or a trance they will and can successfully revolt, through their representatives in congress, against the play boys who have been making a game for their own delight out of the needs and resources of the country during all these semi-starved years. The uses to which the wealth of the United States has been put in this period will seem in retrospect entirely too crazy to be believed. When the people come out of the stupor they will think it impossible that they wittingly could have permitted the creation of such a bedlam. They will not understand how the perpetrators had the audacity to do it and they will be unable to explain their own acquiescence. This thing could have happened only in the imagination of some jocose creator of impish fiction, in which popeyed gnomes used wizardry to blind people and throw them into a fantasy of confusion. It will be difficult to understand how the realities of the United States could have been woven into such a nightmare.

In the name of reform the New Deal has prevented recovery and it has botched relief. It has expropriated the income of the country to create new special privileges. The inequities are greater than the absurdities. The play boys will spend a half billion in the Tennessee valley to give a few people electricity below cost of production and in another section spend a few millions to take butter off the market and make the consumer pay more for it.

A few city blocks are transformed into model dwellings which pay no taxes, and the new underprivileged in the homes surrounding may try to understand, if they can, the theory of this discrimination. When a play boy wants to make a toy out of a green belt he has his country gentleman's instincts satisfied by an appropriation and the treasury pays while he enjoys himself with an architect and a landscape gardener.

Long after the play boys have gone the ruins and monuments of the insane era will be all about in the land and the biggest will be the national debt.

AMERICANS AT ARCHANGEL

An article on the Archangel expedition, written by Mr. Guy Murchie of The Tribune staf and published in The Sunday Tribune Graphic Section of Feb. 26, elicited the communication below. It was written by Capt. Robert P. Boyd, of Foth and Boyd, consulting engineers, Green Bay, Wisconsin, who was a member of the American contingent at Archangel and comments upon his personal experiences of that deplorable and mysterious enterprise.

We hope Capt. Boyd will some day write the book he mentions. It should be a thriller and throw an interesting light, as does his letter, on a chapter of our war to end war that has not been sufficiently recorded.

Dear Mr. Murchie: Your article in yesterday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE was of particular interest to me, as I had command of the left bank Dwina river force at Toulgas from October to April; was nominally company commander of B company, 339th infantry, but was under British orders for that time and had about two-thirds of my command British. Toulgas was the only front in northern Russia which was not driven back, and your reference to Trotzky's being in command at one engagement, as well as the bolsheviks' refusal to reattack, etc., I believe were both Toulgas episodes.

John Cudahy, present minister to Ireland, was one of my first lieutenants and for some time had command of Company B. I believe it is his book to which you refer. The regimental history of the 339th infantry is very much more in detail and has a large number of illustrations. There is also a small book by "Dad" Albertson, a Y. M. C. A. man, which deals principally with the Vaga front.

One large factor which you did not stress in your article is the gross indifference, not to say incompetence, of two of our high ranking officers. Their indifference to the welfare of the American troops was appalling.

From my contacts with British and Russian intelligence officers, etc., I believe I acquired a more comprehensive viewpoint of the entire expedition than was the privilege of the average American officer. Contrary to the experience on most fronts, our relations with the British were not strained and we received 100 per cent cooperation from them.

Gen. Ironsides was one of the finest officers I have ever known and showed absolute impartiality in his dealings with the Americans. He had a number of American captains in very responsible positions of command and at the same time had scores of higher ranking British officers in positions of minor responsibility. Capts. Odjard, Moore, Ramsey, and myself, and Majs. Donahue and Nichols all had independent commands.

I think perhaps the toughest individual larger combat was that at Toulgas from Nov. 11 to 14. We were attacked from the front, the flank, and the rear, and heavily shelled from gunboats and rafts on the river. There were approximately five to six thousand against us. We had about 450 men, with only two 18-pounders—167 casualties in three days. The 18-pounders, a Canadian outfit, realized the artilleryman's dream, running their guns out of their emplacements and firing muzzle burst shrapnel against advancing infantry.

This two gun section and one American Lewis gun team stopped 600 bolsheviks. We counterattacked at the end of the third day and drove the Bolos back when it seemed absolutely hopeless and a hand to hand fight in the streets the only apparent outcome.

I remember saying to a Russian officer, formerly a colonel of the Imperial Dragoons at the czar's palace: "Lerckhe, do you think we will ever see Archangel?" He shrugged his shoulders, pointed to the sky, and said "Tuda," meaning up there.

We had a number of British artillery officers who had been through the Ypres campaign and later through Gallipoli. They both said that they would rather be back in either than in the position we were facing.

Some time after the armistice I wrote a letter through military channels to the United States ambassador, stating that, while we realized our military duties and were fulfilling them to the best of our ability and would continue to do so, the question was asked of me every day: "Why are we fighting in Russia after the armistice has been signed and there is no declaration of war?"; that it had always been an inherent American principle that every nation was entitled to her own internal administration without interference, and that we could not keep our morale up unless we knew for what we were fighting.

Needless to say, I received no answer. I knew I was courting a court martial, but was willing in order to try to bring the situation into the open.

On March 1, after the armistice, I preached the funeral sermon over eight of my men killed in action, among them Sergt. Bowman, whom I loved like a brother, and to whom, incidentally, Cudahy's book is dedicated. I would hate to be the man or men responsible for that when it could have been so easily avoided. A mere statement from the United States and Great Britain that all aims and purposes of being in Russia had been terminated by the armistice, and that all troops would be evacuated when navigation resumed, would have been sufficient.

The Russian campaign, especially after the armistice, can be summed up as a struggle against extermination, with no ideals to fight for; no assistance, no morale, no fresh meat or vegetables; no recreation, discipline dependent upon the individual officer's personality and leadership, and utterly useless. I feel that the men who went through that frozen hell have something to be proud of as individuals, but the United States and the high command responsible for that fiasco should have their full measure of shame.

I remember a bit of British propaganda by Lord Milnar, entitled "Honor Forbids," which enlarged on the theme that, having entered Russia, etc., we were in honor bound to see it through. One of my British officers wrote a comment on it in which he said: "One would think that honor would forbid two powerful nations like Great Britain and the United States sending a handful of troops, poorly equipped and underarmed, against a hostile army holding every material advantage."

Some day, if I think I have enough enemies, I am going to start a book on this expedition, not particularly emphasizing the historical or diplomatic side, but dwelling more on the little incidents, tragic or humorous; the conversations, personalities encountered, the psychological reactions on the average soldier, and the little things that go toward making up a background. I think this should be more readable and also give a clearer picture than the conventional campaign history.

Hope I haven't bored you completely with this long letter. As Abraham Lincoln said: "I didn't have time to write a short one."

Thanking you for your very readable article, I am, sincerely, R. P. BOYD.

HINES' OFFENSE.

[Detroit News.]

In the closing minutes of a long address to the jury in the Hines racket protection case, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey compressed in a few sentences the significance of the prosecution and of the later outcome of the trial:

"You are good New Yorkers and you love your city. You want your city to become better and cleaner. You want to remove cancers that grow at the heart of your government, wreck the morale of your police force, wreck the morale of your courts, and wreck the morale of any public official who has to come within the contaminating influence of a politician operating with gangster money.

"Here is the very thing which makes organized crime possible. Without it there couldn't be organized crime for five minutes in this country—without the paralyzing hand of a crooked politician available to break an honest cop, or to tell a magistrate what to do, or to use gangster funds to elect a public prosecutor who is under his control."

WHAT IS A VIRUS?

THE recent epidemic of colds associated with symptoms of influenza has led to a good deal of public discussion on the origin of the affliction. As far as can be determined a coryza comes about because of a virus infection. The irritation thus produced permits bacteria to grow, with the result that the mucous discharges are filled with organisms which can be identified although the original inciting medium—the spark that set off the conflagration—belongs to that group of unseeable "specks" which are much smaller than the tiniest bacillus.

We recognize that man, animals, and plants are ready victims. There are at least thirty-five proved virus diseases that beset human beings. Others assail insects, fish, birds, plants—even bacteria.

But, you ask, "How can we study these curiosities? How combat them?" In the first place, secretions thought to harbor these troublesome agents may be filtered through porcelain, the pores of which are so fine that microbes cannot penetrate. Subsequently the viruses will be found in the liquid which passes the strainer. Then, too, ingenious films made of collodion may be prepared so that the diameter of the pores is known. Through the employment of this material it is possible to estimate the size of the particles. Strangely enough, these species will not flourish except in the presence of living cells.

Now, many of these puzzling forms are extremely hardy, resisting not only chemical action, but drying. Findlay notes the fact that a yellow fever virus, dried for seven and one-half years, was responsible for the disorder in an inoculated monkey. This led to the suggestion that perhaps they are not alive at all—as are bacteria—but chemical factors similar to ferments [enzymes]. But regardless of their true nature they are almost the most pernicious of our disease starters and they may be dispersed by the secretions and excretions of affected animals and human beings, by direct contact, by spray from the mouth and nasal passages, or even via contaminated clothing, particularly furs, as has been demonstrated repeatedly in smallpox.

Some of these varmints are transmitted by the bites of insects, as in yellow fever, and—although we are not sure—it is entirely possible that encephalitis, even poliomyelitis, may be disseminated in this manner. Certain it is that both maladies usually occur during the season when bug stings are more frequent.

One reason why their special ailments are broadcast so easily is that this elusive force can strike the cells of the mucous surfaces of the body, even though no injury is present. Thus the eyes, the mouth, the nasal passages, or the bronchi may play open house—inviting them to enter. If introduced into the digestive tract some may attack the lining of the intestine and thus bring on the characteristic illness.

One of the desirable attributes of these vicious elements is the fact that lifelong immunity may follow a single bout. This is true of yellow fever, mumps, and measles, which are all of virus origin. On the other hand, with a common cold or herpes [cold sores], for example, the immunity may last so short a time as to be negligible and some individuals will have one session after another throughout the winter season. But there is reason to believe that more study will disclose ways and means of prolonging protection. Perhaps the infecting principle lingers within the victim's body and the chronic sufferer may be reinoculating himself—in "merry go round" fashion. This may explain why mild nasal irrigations and good throat hygiene are helpful to those who seem to be beset with siege after siege.

We can look forward confidently to more knowledge of the habits and behavior of these enemies of well being—as research workers the world over are on the trail. We must recall—for our safety—that they are hard to kill and that they spread far more easily than their cousins—the bacteria.

HEAD NOISES.

M. L. writes: What causes head noises? Is there any remedy?

REPLY.

The cause may be local or general. The former include: Wax pressing against the drum, growth of foreign bodies in the ear canal, middle ear disease, irritation of the auditory nerve, partial closure of the Eustachian tubes, drugs [quinine, salicylates, etc.], and acute infections [colds, influenza, etc.].

Among the general causes are: High blood pressure, arteriosclerosis, kidney disease, anemia, and thyroid disturbance. An ear specialist may be able to help you. Relief is dependent upon removal of the cause, once it has been identified.

MAY BE A FRACTURE.

T. T. writes: Six weeks ago I fell on the ice and hurt my ankle. It is still painful and swollen. Do you think it is sprained?

REPLY.

We might tell with television. You may have a fracture of the lower end of the small leg bone [fibula]. You should consult your physician, who will probably advise an X-ray film. Sprains are slow in healing, as tendons and ligaments are usually torn. A firm bandage will aid repair.

DON'T OVERDO IT.

W. J. writes: I am an ardent hiker but notice lately that after a ten or fifteen mile walk on Sunday I have no energy on Monday. Do you think I should shorten the tramp?

REPLY.

There is one fundamental rule relative to exercise—namely, adjust the quantity and character to your power of performance. A feeling of exhaustion or a "hangover" means that you have overestimated your ability to "take it."

UNDERACTIVE THYROID.

R. R. writes: My physician tells me my metabolic test is minus 22. What does this indicate? What can be done about it?

REPLY.

It means that the activity of the thyroid gland is well below par. It is not particularly serious. Your physician should determine whether it is necessary or not to take thyroid extract.

FACE NEURALGIA.

H. S. writes: What causes neuralgia of the face?

REPLY.

Inflammation of a nerve, or the presence of a toxin which is poisonous to nerve tissue. Tic douloureux, or trigeminal neuralgia, indicates trouble within the Gasserian ganglion which lies within the skull. Cutting a portion of this trunk will bring relief.

THE NEEDS OF CHRISTIAN REFUGEES.

New York, March 2.—Once again the word refugee is on every one's lips and once again this country must share in the great humanitarian task of helping that vast army of distressed humans who, for religious, intellectual and political reasons, can find no place in the "Aryan," Fascist world created by Adolf Hitler.

This modern refugee from the third reich is, in most instances, a cultured individual, representative of the finest type of German. He may be a Jew, a Catholic or a Protestant. The persistent attacks upon the Christian church in Germany and Austria and the repressive non-Aryan laws, which affect baptized Christians of partial Jewish ancestry as well as full blooded Jews, have forced thousands of Christian families and individuals out of the third reich and left them stranded in other countries, beseeching immediate aid if they are to survive.

The Christian refugee faces an even more tragic plight than that of the Jew, for the Christian world has largely overlooked him. He has not yet been able to feel, as has the Jewish refugee, the sympathy and benevolence of his co-religionists in the democratic world. He is suffering not only poverty, homelessness, but indifference. This is spiritual agony as terrible as hunger and cold.

Always, the Christian churches of America have responded to the call of humans in distress, whatever their race, nation or creed. Now it is their own fellow Christians, exiled from their native land, who are in need. Surely they will not abandon them, nor thrust them upon the Jewish refugee relief agencies, whose burden is already too large.

The American Committee for Christian German Refugees, of which Thomas Mann, himself a Protestant refugee from Germany, is honorary chairman, and James M. Speers, chairman, is faced with the task of arousing Christians in this country to the plight of these non-Jewish refugees, and in raising funds to save them from the acute distress they are now suffering.

Children born into Christian-Jewish families are among the most pitiable victims of the German Fascist régime. Segregated in the schools, derided by their classmates, they are forced to endure an inhuman mental cruelty. To save them further suffering their parents, in many cases, send them out of Germany. Funds are needed to care for and educate these children in England and other countries where provisions have been made for their welfare.

The American Committee coöperates with the American Friends Service committee, which has facilities in Europe to provide emergency relief, medical care, employment, and assistance in reaching new places of settlement, but which must have the money to carry on this work.

In the United States the committee maintains a personal service division through which advice and help are given to those who have qualified under our immigration laws. The service consists of information on naturalization procedures, assistance in locating friends and relatives, and in securing employment and occasionally temporary financial assistance.

These Christian refugees are fighting for survival. By helping them we are helping to preserve the spirit of religious liberty and freedom of conscience which brought our own ancestors to the shores of a brave new world 300 years ago.

We appeal to all lovers of democracy in behalf of these Christian German refugees. Checks should be mailed to the American Committee for Christian German Refugees, 287 4th avenue, New York, Richard B. Scandrett Jr., treasurer.

FRANK RITCHIE,
Executive Director, American Committee for Christian German Refugees.

PLENTY OF IDEAS.

Chicago, March 4.—The writer just applied for two patents and found that the procedure is very costly and prohibitive when finances are lacking.

I feel confident that there are thousands of Americans who have patentable ideas that may be of great help to all of us, that could lighten our daily burdens and make this world a better place to live in if those ideas could be protected without such excessive costs. I don't comprehend why patent officials do not allow people to file a preliminary notice of patent for protection of ideas until such time as it is possible to make that idea productive and then allow a patent.

If such notice of patent were possible, for instance, I would file on my apparatus for eliminating carbon monoxide gas from automobiles, a gadget for keeping locks on cars from freezing, one to keep windshields clean from bugs and mud, a shoelace that needs no tying, a safety lock on stoves to prevent babies from turning the gas on, a new type gas burner that would give 100 per cent more efficiency, a lock for women's purses for protection against purse snatchers, and about fifty more items that I believe would be useful.

ALAN METREGER.

A CHECK ON HYSTERIA.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 6.—In Sunday's issue you described the contrasting views of Chief Justice Hughes and of President Roosevelt concerning governmental procedure, the occasion being the 150th anniversary of the first assemblage of the congress under our constitution.

Hughes stressed sane, thoughtful, and patient approach in order to best arrive safely at maturely considered judgments.

Roosevelt again sang his horse and buggy song in a manner intended to make Hughes appear outmoded. Roosevelt spoke of the speed of modern facilities in support of his claim.

The very speed of modern dissemination of news actually provides a constant danger of fomenting national hysteria. Too many instances support this statement.

If so, then the modern era, instead of requiring a streamlining of procedure for overcoming horse and buggy slowness, does in fact demand even greater caution and imperturbability than needed in those horse and buggy days when slowness in itself provided considerable of a bulwark against widespread mob hysteria.

WORD OF CAUTION.

Chicago, March 6.—With the approach of spring and better motoring conditions comes a lapse in winter's careful driving habits. If all motorists were as cautious in the warmer months as they are on winter's icy streets we would experience a desirable decline in accidents. The wet pavements of spring require all of winter's caution.

ROBERT L. HILLARD.

DIRTY STREETS.

Chicago, March 8.—What a pity that Chicago must be subjected to such unforgivable uncleanliness where streets are concerned. Perhaps our city fathers have been too absorbed in cleaning out vice to notice the deplorable condition of our streets. What must visitors think?

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ESTATE MATTER.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—D.'s sister died. Two days after the funeral her husband went to see [1] D. and asked her to sign a paper from the Probate court, a printed form. No judge or lawyer's name was on it but plenty of space to be filled out. On the bottom of the paper it was stated D. and her brother were heirs. D. did not sign it and neither did the brother. The husband said everything was willed to him—a home, a vacant lot, and what was in the home.

2. Since then a paper from the Probate court was sent to D stating the sister's will would be probated on a certain day in February and that the husband, her sister, and brother were her only heirs at law.

3. D. thought she would ignore this paper. Would you advise her to do this?

4. Why was she mentioned as an heir?

A. L.

1. It seems probable that what he was asking her to sign was what is sometimes called an "appearance," which would dispense with the necessity of giving notice at the hearing to prove the will.

2. The refusal to sign the appearance would necessitate service of such a paper.

3. We see no reason for her to take any action unless she has reasons for resisting the probate of the will.

4. She is one of the closest blood relatives. The applicable rules require such service even where there is a will in order that interested parties may resist the will if they so desire.

JOINT OWNERSHIP.

Waukegan, Ill., March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please tell me if stock can be held jointly, for instance, by a husband and wife?

2. If so, do both parties have to indorse dividend checks?

3. Can it be arranged for either to indorse and cash checks?

4. Can three or more persons be joint tenants in real estate, such as a brother, sister, and the brother's wife?

5. If one dies is any procedure necessary [6] for the others to inherit, and [7] what inheritance tax is charged?

8. Is time in any way a factor?

E. R. P.

1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. Yes. For example, by power of attorney.

The current number of the John Marshall Quarterly contains a discussion of the problems arising on such joint tenancies.

4. Yes.

5. No.

6. Inherit is not the correct word.

7. There is an inheritance tax on the fraction which passes by survivorship. The rate depends on the degree of relationship and the value of the entire gift.

8. If the joint tenancy were created within two years of a death, then it might be regarded as made in contemplation of death so that the entire interest would be regarded as taxable. It is difficult for us to state categorically that time cannot be a factor.

PRESS BULWARK OF U. S. LIBERTY, SAYS DEAN OLSON

Cites Manifold Influences on Nation's Thinking.

The benefits and manifold influences of a free press, which he called the bulwark for the preservation of American liberties, were described yesterday by Dean Kenneth E. Olson of the Medill school of journalism at Northwestern university.

He addressed the Northwestern University Associates, a group of leaders in Chicago business and civic life interested in the activities of the university, at a luncheon in the Chicago club.

Summarizes Influences.

Summarizing the influence of the American press, Dean Olson said that:

The newspaper is an important part of every family circle.

The great mass of people of the United States rely on the newspapers for most of what they know about current affairs.

More than 82,000,000 American people get most of what they know of what happens every 24 hours from one of the 2,000 daily newspapers in the nation.

Most of what the American public believes on American political issues and on world affairs is affected by what they read in the daily press.

Business such as America knows it today could not function without the newspaper.

Press Trustee of Freedom.

"Our press is free," Dean Olson declared, "and this right of a free press is one of the most precious things we possess. A free press is the sole right of a free people. And our newspapers are but the trustees of that right. Most of our publishers realize that."

Most American newspapers try to give readers all the facts they can get, Dean Olson said. The American press, he continued, is in a better position to furnish unbiased information than the press of almost any other country.

"If the world press were allowed to tell the truth," he asserted, "it would become a potent promoter of better international understanding and an influence toward peace.

Many Factors Interfere.

"Unfortunately, however, there are factors that interfere with that kind of free interpretation. There is practically no government in the world, including our own, which is not engaged in weighting the news in its own favor."

Dean Olson said that as a medium of information and influence the daily press surpasses the radio, books, magazines, and other agencies.

"A newspaper like your Chicago Tribune," he said, "this morning reached more people than all college and university professors in the higher institutions of learning in this entire country."

Dean Olson cited a recent study which disclosed that 54.6 per cent of all time spent in reading by American adults is devoted to the newspaper.

Analyzing the newspaper's place in the community Dean Olson found it is one of the most important parts of everyday social and business life.

"It is the principal medium for printed salesmanship, and the most important agency for distribution of goods from manufacturer to wholesaler to retailer to consumer," he said.

An Old Pal Drops In to Say "Good-by Forever"

A familiar face and a familiar pistol confronted Mrs. Hallilee Cravens, clerk in De Met's candy store at 159 West Randolph street, last night. "Don't be alarmed," said the robber. "Just hand over the money. And good-by for good. I'm never coming in again." Mrs. Cravens said that the man was in three weeks ago and took $15 from her. The loot last night was $10.

Girl Shot; Youth Held

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

SLOT MACHINE DRIVE PRESSED IN COOK COUNTY

County highway police yesterday continued the campaign against slot machines that had been demanded by Attorney General John E. Cassidy in a conference Thursday with Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien. Cassidy was reported to have threatened a grand jury investigation unless the machines were suppressed in Cook county.

The highway police station at Homewood reported five seizures in Bloom and Thornton townships. Deputies from the Willow Springs station confiscated three machines in Cicero, three in Lyons, and six in the vicinity of 97th street and Western avenue, in Worth township. In the northwestern suburbs, seven machines were seized by the men of the Morton Grove station under Lieut. George Le Grue.

JEALOUS SUITOR SHOOTS GIRL, 18, 3 TIMES; JAILED

Father Surrenders Him to Police.

Pauls Valley, Okla., March 11.—[U. P.]—From her hospital bed tonight, Carole Morrison, 18 years old, told authorities that her sweetheart shot her three times, because of jealousy.

Murray Williams, 22 years old, a freshman at Murray Agricultural college, was held in jail while authorities investigated the girl's strange story. Carole, a high school senior, said that while riding in Williams' auto yesterday they quarreled because another boy took her to a movie.

She told County Attorney Sam Goodwin that Williams shot her the first time when she left his car on a country road and started to walk back to town.

Shot as She Begs Mercy.

As she crumpled in the road begging for mercy, Williams shot her the second time, the girl said.

The first shot struck her in the left breast. The second hit her in the right breast. The bullets were fired from a .22 caliber single shot rifle.

"I told him that I was hurt and pleaded with him to help me," Carole told Goodwin. "He told me to walk back to the car, which was about fifty feet away.

"As I got back within a few feet of the car, he shot me again. This time in the left side.

"He told me that I wasn't hurt much. I begged him to take me home."

Father Surrenders Youth.

Goodwin said Williams drove the girl to his own home and summoned his mother, who put the girl to bed. Williams' parents summoned a physician and the girl was taken to a hospital.

Williams' father brought his son to police. "He's a good boy," said Williams, "but I want you to examine him—there must be something wrong with him."

Miss Morrison is conceded an even chance to live.

CHICAGO BIGGEST LUTHERAN CHURCH CITY IN AMERICA

Growth Outstanding in Protestantism.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago is now known as the largest Lutheran city in America. Lutheran leaders, who told yesterday how this fact was established during the past year, said few cities in the world have as many baptized members of the Lutheran faith as Chicago.

Seven national Lutheran bodies in the metropolitan area report that their 238 churches now have 271,547 baptized members — an average of 1,140 members each. Three Chicago churches are now the largest in America of their respective Lutheran denominations.

The largest United Lutheran church in America is the North Austin church, Mason avenue and Le Moyne street. The largest Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod church of the country is St. Luke's church, Belmont and Greenview avenues. And Irving Park Lutheran church has become the leading church in the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana synod of America.

Leads Protestantism in Growth.

These three churches—among the youngest of the city — show in a graphic way how and why the Lutheran communion is reported annually by the Chicago Church federation as the most rapidly growing in all Chicago Protestantism.

Founded in 1884, the oldest of the three churches is St. Luke's. The Rev. Adalbert R. Kretzmann, pastor, yesterday recalled the founding when thirty-four organizing members voted to build a new church among the truck farms and pastures at Belmont avenue and Perry street, now Greenview avenue. The church was dedicated nine months after the congregation was organized.

Pastures and truck farms gave way to new homes and in sixteen years the church enrolled a net membership of 1,116 persons. By 1910, 2,000 members were reported. There are nearly 2,500 members of St. Luke's church today and a class of 107 is to be confirmed on Palm Sunday. Last year the three pastors and fourteen full time teachers and staf members prepared a class of ninety-three for confirmation rites.

The Irving Park Lutheran church was founded on Dec. 30, 1903, the date of the Iroquois theater fire, in the home of L. M. Nelson, 4048 North Harding avenue. The Rev. Sven Pearson, of Concordia church, was chairman of the organizing group of thirty persons. After using a small hall for a year, and a borrowed church for another year, the congregation built a church at its present site.

Novena Attracts Interest.

Dr. Joshua Oden, the pastor, has led the church since 1908. He was the first Lutheran to become president of the Chicago Church federation. In 1910 there were 200 members of the congregation compared with 2,100 today. The recent establishment of a Protestant novena at the Irving Park church has attracted nationwide attention. The church is crowded each Thursday night for the service.

All religious observers agree that few if any Protestant churches in America can match the phenomenal record of North Austin Lutheran church. Founded late in 1920 by the Rev. F. W. Otterbein, its membership grew from fifty-one charter members to more than 1,000 in five years.

During the next five years the membership more than doubled. By 1935, 3,000 members were on the rolls. Today it has 3,700 communicants and the baptized membership list is above the 5,000 mark.

Pastor Otterbein's personal record shows that during his nineteen years as pastor he has baptized 2,035 children and adults, performed 1,650 weddings and has had 1,724 in his confirmation classes. The entire congregation cannot be accommodated at one time in the North Austin edifice. Three services are held each Sunday morning to meet this need.

Need Amphitheater Now.

On Passion Sunday, two weeks before Easter, the congregation holds its annual corporate service under a single roof. For several years the Civic opera house has been used for this service. Last year the congregation had outgrown that hall, too. As a result, the Passion Sunday service on March 26 of this year will be held in the International amphitheater.

The principal divisions of American Lutheranism result mainly from differing national origins. During the past twenty years, many synods have been merged and coöperative agencies which contemplate larger mergers have been developed.

The Rev. Otto P. Kretzmann, head of the International Walther league, a youth organization of the Missouri synod, recently stated that another generation will see but one Lutheran church in America.

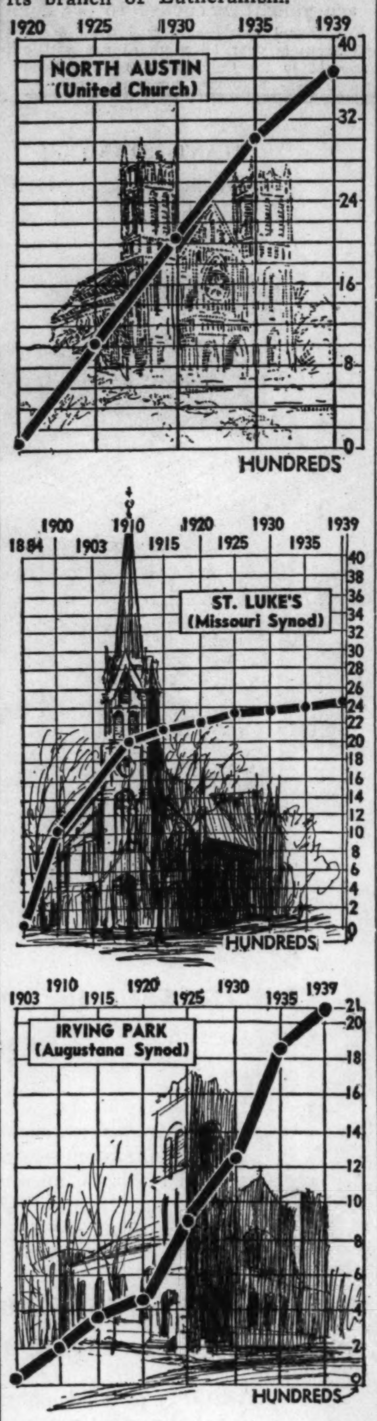
These graphs show how three Chicago churches have increased in membership so that each has become the largest in the world in its branch of Lutheranism.



5 SEIZED AS SLOT MACHINE BANDITS FACE GUN CHARGE

Justice of the Peace Elmer Tone of Morton Grove yesterday held five slot machine bandits in bonds of $1,200 each on charges of disorderly conduct for a hearing Wednesday. They were seized Thursday by Lake county deputy sherifs when they fled across the county line after holding up a Cook county roadhouse. Sherif Thomas E. Kennedy of Lake county said yesterday he will prosecute the men for carrying concealed weapons and reckless driving. Those held are George, James, and Frank Lamczyk, brothers, living south of Barrington, and Edward Valentine, 1440 Elk Grove avenue, and Edward Thomas, 1416 North Wood street, both in Chicago.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF 'C.I.O. JOKER' IN U.S. DEFENSE BILL

Manufacturers Protest Club Over Industry.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association sent a telegram to Senator James Hamilton Lewis at Washington yesterday vigorously protesting against an alleged "C. I. O. joker" that has been added to the 358 million dollar national defense bill. This amendment has been interpreted as placing John L. Lewis' C. I. O. in a position to dictate industrial awards under the armament program.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky unobtrusively slipped the amendment into the bill last Tuesday. It was said that Gardner Jackson, lobbyist for the C. I. O., prepared it. The bill, previously passed by the house without the amendment, is now in the hands of a conference committee, of which Senator Lewis is chairman.

May Withhold Contracts.

Under the amendment, the head of a department awarding a national defense contract, may withhold a contract from any person he finds "interfering with the collective bargaining rights of his employés." A decision of the National Labor Relations board purporting to convict an employer of such a practise would scarcely be ignored by a department head in such a case, the manufacturers' association pointed out.

"The board of directors has requested me to communicate to you their grave concern over alarming implications in the Barkley amendment." John L. Donnelly, president of the association, wired Senator Lewis. "They expressed the hope and conviction you would coöperate in an effort to have this objectionable amendment eliminated."

In a letter to all members of the association, the board urged determined opposition.

"The practical effect of this amendment," said the letter, "will be to give selfish, unpatriotic labor leaders the right to dictate to whom government contracts to be financed by the national defense program will be given.

"They realize that the adoption of this proposal will be a long stride towards their goal of unionizing American industry and completing an organized labor monopoly. This amendment should be promptly and aggressively opposed by every one who is interested in preserving the American system of government."

MORE HOSPITALS IN U. S. IN 1938, REPORT SHOWS

First Increase Recorded in Last Eight Years.

During 1938 a patient was admitted to a hospital in the United States every 3.3 seconds, according to a report in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The report is the eighteenth annual report on hospitals of the council on medical education and hospitals.

The report shows that 6,166 hospitals were registered last year, compared with 6,128 in 1937. It is the first such increase over a previous year in eight years.

The 6,166 registered hospitals are listed as being equipped with 1,161,380 beds and 56,747 bassinets. During the year 1,026,771 babies were born in hospitals, while 9,421,075 persons were admitted in all classes of cases.

Mergers Are Cited.

In 1928 there were 6,852 hospitals, with a capacity of 892,834 beds. The report attributes the decrease in hospitals and the increase in capacity to mergers of many smaller hospitals with larger institutions.

Requirements for hospital registration with the association are stricter than in 1928, the report says, 626 hospitals having been denied registration in 1938.

Illinois is listed as having 305 hospitals, equipped with 81,855 beds. New York had 583 hospitals, California, 358; Pennsylvania, 352, and Texas, 307. Only New York, with 181,589, and Pennsylvania with 86,633, had more hospital beds than Illinois. California had 70,255.

643,830 Patients in Illinois.

In New York, 1,312,428 patients were admitted to hospitals last year. Pennsylvania was second with 721,443 and Illinois third with 643,830.

The report shows there were three and one-half hospital beds for every 1,000 persons in Illinois, 66 per cent of which were occupied.

New York had 4.2 beds for every 1,000 persons. They were 79 per cent occupied during the year. The District of Columbia was listed as having 8.6 beds per 1,000 persons with 80 per cent occupancy.

Dr. E. C. Dapples of Northwestern university will discuss the history and commercial treatment of coal at a lecture this afternoon in the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

Hospital Facilities Over Nation

The various shadings indicate the number of beds in general hospitals per 1,000 persons throughout the United States. The rate varies from 1.4 beds per 1,000 population in Mississippi to 6.2 in Nevada. The District of Columbia leads all the states with 8.6 beds per 1,000 population.

2 WOMEN DOPE SUSPECTS FACE U. OF I. VICE QUIZ

T. P. Sullivan, state investigator, said in Chicago last night that two women arrested in Peoria yesterday on a federal narcotics charge will be questioned today in connection with the inquiry into vice conditions in Champaign. The women told federal agents in Peoria they left Champaign ten days ago when the vice investigation began, following the fatal shooting of a University of Illinois student at a resort. Both had morphine and hypodermic needles in their possession.

One of the women is Miss Gladys Crawford, 32 years old, who is known to authorities for her bank bandit sweethearts. Her last sweetheart, George Slade, was sentenced to fifteen years in a federal prison for a $60,000 bank holdup in Milford, Pa., last December. The other woman held is Miss Frances Brown, 31.

Special Prosecutor Walker Butler and Investigator Sullivan said that authorities are having difficulty in interviewing women who fled from Champaign when the special grand jury was impaneled to investigate conditions there. Butler said seventy witnesses will be questioned this week. The grand jury will reconvene a week from tomorrow.

He spoke with Herbert Emmerich, assistant director of the Public Administration Clearing house, and Carleton Woodbury, executive director of the National Association of Housing Officials, both of whom have offices in the building. They will accompany him on his tour of the housing projects. Morgenthau was accompanied by his aide, Lieut. D. E. McKay.

PURE MOVEMENT IN MODERN DANCE GAINS SYMPATHY

Humphrey-Weidman Unit Attracts Throng.

BY CECIL SMITH.

Four important new American dance compositions were presented in the Civic theater last night by Doris Humphrey, Charles Weidman, and their dance group. The principal dancers were responsible for the choreography of two items each. Miss Humphrey was represented by "Passacaglia in C Minor" and excerpts from "New Dance." Mr. Weidman's contributions were "Traditions" and "Opus 51." The program opened with the only familiar dance of the evening, "To the Dance," an effective curtain-raiser to music by Clair Leonard.

"Passacaglia in C Minor," first brought to light at last summer's Bennington, Vt., modern dance festival, employs a piano duet version of the famous passacaglia and fugue of Bach. Miss Humphrey's composition seeks to parallel the varying moods of the music without trying to give a mere visual photograph of the musical structure. The dance is a long series of variations by the whole group, separately and together, with the aid of Miss Humphrey and José Limon.

Effect Is Rambling.

The general effect of "Passacaglia in C Minor," while one of vigor, is rather more rambling than the choreographer evidently intended. The music itself is such a miracle of cogency and accumulating emotional power that the dancing, by comparison, seems erratic in theme and wanting in finality.

From the technical standpoint "Passacaglia in C Minor," like all the evening's offerings, maintained a level of high competence, and occasionally reached real virtuosity. The group is trained to a point of erpert professionalism—a thing rare among exponents of the modern dance. While all the individual members naturally are not of equal caliber, all the bodies are responsive to a wide and expressive range of movement.

'Transition' Well Organized.

Mr. Weidman's "Transition" is the best organized piece he has shown in Chicago. A matter of pure dance, with no story to tell, it consists of the struggle of three male dancers to emancipate themselves gradually from one type of movement, and to develop into a stronger, freer style. This description sounds dull, but the dance itself is good because it communicates clearly an emotion that requires dancing alone for its sucessful realization.

"Opus 51" [also a product of Bennington], full of high-spirited acrobatics and screwball irrelevancies of pantomime, was funny for a while. Before the end the humor began to pall, and the looseness of form became irritating.

A large audience gave witness to the fact that the pure movement of the modern dance—functioning without the scenery and plots of traditional theater dancing—has found a sympathetic following in Chicago.

Twins Born in Ambulance in Two Different Counties

Mother and sons were doing well today. Mrs. Dickens' home is at Hillsdale, Tenn.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

PRISONS' CHIEF FEARS SCANDAL AT ST. CHARLES

Urges New Building for Young Criminals.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare and head man of the state penal institutions, said yesterday that for several years he has feared a major scandal at the St. Charles Training School for Boys. He said he has tried to rectify conditions at the school, but has lacked legislative sympathy and coöperation.

In discussing the other penal institutions of the state Bowen denied that the criminals are coddled or pampered. He admitted they do a minimum of work and have a maximum of pleasure and recreation because of the lack of outlets for prison made articles.

Refers to Tribune Articles.

"We have been criticized before because of the radio and other pleasures afforded the prison inmates," said Mr. Bowen, referring to the series of articles which appeared in THE TRIBUNE discussing conditions at the penal institutions. "It must be remembered the only punishment inflicted by the court in sending a criminal to prison is depriving that criminal of his liberty. We have no right to add to that punishment except to enforce discipline."

Bowen said he has been deeply concerned over the St. Charles school because of the tendency of judges to use it as a dumping ground for young criminals and potential criminals. It was founded, he pointed out, to care for dependent and delinquent boys.

He said he is glad the Tribune series turned the searchlight on St. Charles because he hopes, as a result, the legislature will provide money and facilities to create a place in a walled institution where the criminal type of youth can be safely kept.

Good Idea Going to Pot.

"St. Charles is a good institution if it is restored to its original purpose," said Mr. Bowen. "The situation out there has concerned me very deeply for two of three years: first, because a good institution and a good idea was going to pot; second, because some of the hoodlums now in the school might get into conflict with the police or residents of the Fox river valley and some one might get hurt.

"The age level of our criminals has been going down until we now find the worst criminals are about 17 or 18 years old. These young chaps are more desperate than the adults. We have to watch this type of criminal because he might even contaminate his elders."

Bowen, however, said he is against walling any part of St. Charles. He is in favor of moving the criminal element from the institution and returning it to its status of a place for dependent, truant, and minor delinquents.

Annex to Pontiac Prison.

"My idea is to build a sort of annex to Pontiac prison for the criminally inclined youths," he said. "The same warden and personnel could take care of both institutions."

Indications in Springfield are that something will be done by the legislature to remedy at least the St. Charles situation and to put more teeth in the habitual criminal act, as suggested by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, former chief justice of the Cook county Criminal court.

The Ward-Schnackenberg bill, which its sponsors hope will do away with easy paroles by allowing judges in the Criminal court to fix a minimum and maximum sentence for a criminal, is also reported to be looked on with favor by the legislators. This bill was passed by the last legislature, but was vetoed by Gov. Horner. It has been reintroduced in the legislature.

"We will make a thorough inspection of all penal institutions, including St. Charles," said State Senator A. L. Marovitz, chairman of the senate prisons committee. "We will try to rectify any mistakes we find, and will also recommend passage of laws designed to put a stop to the operations of crime repeaters in this state."

No Pampering, Says Bowen.

"I thought the Tribune series very complimentary," said Mr. Bowen in discussing the general prison situation. "It said we have a good personnel, and that every institution is a model of cleanliness. However, I do not agree that we are pampering criminals.

"Every prison in the country complains of idleness, and I know of no way of solving it. This is one reason why so much recreation is necessary. We must do something to keep the convicts interested and to keep them off their prime aim in life, to escape. All the amusement equipment at the institutions does not cost the taxpayers a penny. This comes out of the convicts' pockets, through the profits from the prison commissaries.

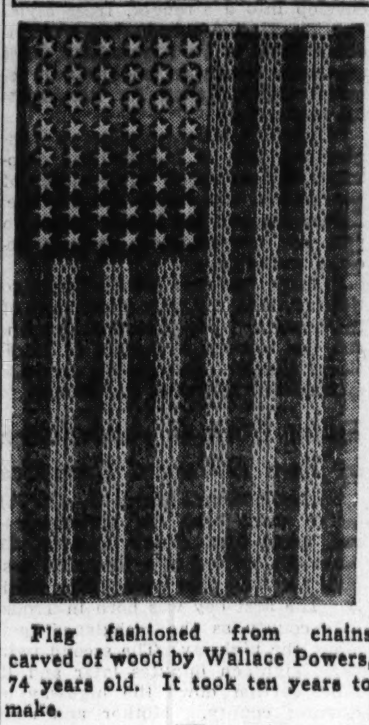
"We cannot force political subdivisions like counties and cities to purchase our prison made goods. The courts have held we cannot even make the state purchase its automobile license plates from the prisons. We have a $125,000 plant idle at Stateville prison as a result. Nor can we compete with free labor on the open market."

It is Bowen's aim and desire, he said, to remove the last vestige of prison brutality by abolishing solitary confinement in the next few years.

"I think solitary confinement is brutal and does not accomplish any good purpose," he said. "We have been replacing 'solitary' with line standing, and I am informed by the prison wardens that it is much more effective."

This form of punishment is similar to the old dunce cap theory of school days. The convicts stand on a line for several hours while their fellow prisoners watch them.

A Carved Flag



Flag fashioned from chains carved of wood by Wallace Powers, 74 years old. It took ten years to make.

Dodgeville, Wis., March 11.—[Special.]—Wallace Powers, 74 years old, whose hobby is carving wood objects recently completed a ten year job. It is an American flag, six feet long and three feet nine inches wide, which he carved from pine and basswood, using only a jackknife for a tool. The stars are cut from a solid board with only the points holding them in their places. The stripes are wooden chains with seventy links in the longer ones. Much of Powers' work was done by lamp light in a cabin in the woods after he had chopped wood all day. He has carved many other articles, including intricate candlesticks. He plans on showing the flag at the New York World's Fair if it is not sold before the Fair's opening.

NO U. S. FLAGS IN ROME, SO ENVOY'S CAR IS UNMARKED

ROME, March 11.—(AP)—Rome was searched in vain today for two small American flags to decorate the automobile of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. Kennedy, envoy to Great Britain, is in Rome as President Roosevelt's special representative at the coronation of Pope Pius XII. Several hours' search of shops and among American residents failed to produce a suitable flag.

HINES GIVES UP TAMMANY RULE, BUT KEEPS TITLE

New York, March 11.—(AP)—After twenty-six years as boss of the 11th assembly district Democratic machine, James J. Hines relinquished active leadership today but retained his Tammany title.

His followers last night refused to accept his resignation, despite his conviction of racketeering, but designated Bernard F. Plunkett, long an associate of Hines, to assume the actual duties of the leadership.

Hines was convicted of thirteen counts of an indictment for selling protection to the Dutch Schultz policy racket gang. He was found guilty of participating in the racket and of conspiracy. Facing a maximum of twenty-seven years in prison, he is expected to be sentenced on March 23.

BAR IS TOLD HOW CITY ERASED BLOT AS CRIME CENTER

Battle Tactics Described by Judge Harrington.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, former chief justice of the Criminal court, in an address before the Chicago Bar association yesterday told members of the legal profession how Chicago's reputation as the crime center of the world has been changed.

He said that Chicago has reduced its crime by more than 50 per cent in the last six years. It now has less crime per capita, he said, than London, England, which some authorities consider to be a model, law abiding city. He said that in Chicago in 1937 a total of 104 serious crimes were committed for every 10,000 persons, compared with 108 crimes for every 10,000 persons in London.

Solutions Exceed London's.

The judge also said that statistics show that London police solved only 23 per cent of its crime while Chicago police solved 25 per cent of that committed in Chicago.

"If these figures are correct, Scotland Yard might well find something to learn from Chicago in crime reduction and administration of criminal justice," said Judge Harrington. "Other American cities might likewise profit from a study of our methods., because, according to the uniform crime reports published by the federal bureau of investigation crime in other American cities has increased in the past few years, whereas in Chicago it has gradually decreased."

Traces 10 Years of Work.

The judge submitted the following table, obtained from the Chicago crime commission, to show the contrast in the last six years:

Year.	Murder.	Burglary.	Robbery.	Auto thefts per day.
1932	344	22,891	15,943	150
1938	*158	11,288	6,356	8

*The lowest in 20 years.

"I submit that this record of more than 50 per cent crime reduction in the last six years stands unequaled in the history of American cities," said Judge Harrington.

Judge Harrington's theme was the progress of criminal justice in Cook county. He traced the change in conditions step by step in the last ten years.

"It is easy," he said, "to recall the time when Chicago was publicized here and abroad as the crime city of the world, when St. Valentine's day massacres, flower shop killings, gang murders on roadsides and city streets were of common occurrence. That was a period of crime which statistical experts say cost the people of Chicago $100,000,000 annually—approximately $25 a year for each man, woman, and child. Yet today Chicago stands out among the cities of the world as one of the safest places in which to live and to work.

Public Sentiment Big Factor.

"Fundamentally this reformation was due in a great measure to a change in that powerful agency for good or evil—public sentiment. The press contributed mightily in arousing public opinion toward a drive on crime which brought about the results that we witness today."

Judge Harrington described the outstanding changes which resulted in a decrease of crime in Chicago. They were as follows:

1. The appointment in 1929 of the judicial advisory council, consisting of the late Judge F. R. De Young of the state Supreme court, Judge Denis E. Sullivan of the Appellate court, Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court, and a group of outstanding lawyers.

2. The establishment of the Felony court, in which all felony cases were concentrated. This, he said, prevented fixing cases and liberating defendants on straw bonds.

3. The prevention of delay in criminal cases. The judge cited a graph recently printed in THE TRIBUNE which showed that in 1928 the average time between indictment and trial was 163 days.

4. The change in the law, obtained by the advisory council, to permit the waiving of juries in criminal cases. This speeded up procedure and did away with long trials.

New Jury Law Helps Drive.

5. The change in law, also obtained by the council, making juries no longer the judge of the law as well as the fact.

6. The creation by the same council of the office of public defender.

7. The so-called crime war, started under the direction of Judge John Prystalski as chief justice of the Criminal court in 1933, after the murder of a policeman in a courtroom.

8. The passage by the legislature of a law to prevent the sale of motor vehicles without a certificate of title.

9. The system inaugurated by Judge Denis E. Sullivan to prevent the promiscuous filing of habeas corpus writs.

Judge Praises Police.

"The police department of Chicago is entitled to a great deal of credit for prompt and efficient handling of the crime problem in this community," said Judge Harrington. "The increase in efficiency in the state's attorney's office in the last six years also has been a contributing factor in the promotion of criminal justice in Cook county."

YOUNG DIVORCEE ENDS HER LIFE BY CHLOROFORM

Miss Ellen Armstrong, 30 years old, a divorcée, was found dead of chloroform yesterday in a bedroom in the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph E. Dempsey, 972 Oak drive, Glencoe. She was clad in a bathrobe. Two pillows had been soaked in chloroform. Her head rested on one and the other she had held over her face.

Mrs. Dempsey said her sister had breakfasted with her. Then Mrs. Dempsey went out to shop. When she returned shortly after noon the bedroom door was locked. She called police. Policeman Arthur Pantle entered the room through a window and found the body.

An inquest will be held tomorrow morning. On Jan. 4, 1938, Miss Armstrong shot herself in the abdomen in the home of her mother at 5018 Lockwood avenue. She recovered after several weeks in a hospital.

ARREST FORMER DEPUTY MARSHAL AS EMBEZZLER

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Thomas E. Ott, former chief deputy United States marshal for the District of Columbia, was arrested in Cleveland, O., last night by agents of the federal bureau of investigation. Howard Boyd, assistant United States attorney, said Ott is charged with embezzling money and property which came into his hands by virtue of his position.

Ott was suspended last November after an investigation by justice department examiners. He was dismissed from his post in December.

Leonard Howell, 36 years old, 4160 Ellis avenue, cut his throat yesterday while despondent over separation from his wife. Police said he would recover.

PAROLE REFORM BILL GETS BAR COMMITTEE O. K.

Schnackenberg Explains Proposed Curb.

The Ward-Schnackenberg bill now pending at Springfield, which would permit trial judges to fix minimum and maximum prison sentences within the limitations of the indeterminate sentence act, was approved yesterday by the Chicago Bar association's committee on criminal jurisprudence. The vote was six to three.

Two years ago the board of managers of the association adopted a resolution opposing this change in the criminal code. The board acted without hearing from the proponents of the measure, but its attitude was considered a factor in Gov. Horner's veto of the bill after it had been passed by both houses of the general assembly.

Full Hearing Accorded.

Foreseeing the possibility of a repetition of the board's action of 1937, Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, one of the sponsors of the bill asked that a full hearing be granted before the board acted this year. As a result, after W. C. Jones, chairman of the parole board, occupied most of the available time at a public luncheon on Jan. 28 opposing the bill, it was agreed that hearings would be held before the committee on criminal jurisprudence.

The second of these hearings brought the issue to the 6 to 3 vote. Floyd E. Thompson, a former justice of the Illinois Supreme court, is chairman of the committee and opposed the reform proposal throughout the discussion. But Representative Schnackenberg made an extended argument and was supported.

Arguments Called Convincing.

The meeting was private, but committee members said Schnackenberg's arguments were convincing and conclusive. He cited from official records to prove the failure of the present system, which permits the parole board to determine when a criminal may be freed. One of his charges based on the records was that one criminal was shown clemency six times in recent years instead of being compelled to serve out the full term of his later sentences.

Schnackenberg emphatically attacked references to the pending bill as one that provides for a definite sentence act to replace the present indeterminate sentence system. He explained that if the bill is passed no trial court will be able to reduce the minimum or increase the maximum sentence established by the present law.

Chairman Thompson announced that because eleven members of the committee were not present he will present a minority report. The absentees all were notified of the meeting but the majority, it was said, did not object to Thompson's plan of procedure. He said he intended to try to put the absentees on record, although they did not hear Schnackenberg's arguments.

Weds Man in Whose Stead Her Father Killed Another

Lacon, Ill., March 11.—[Special.]—Mary Davis, 22 years old, of nearby Taluca, and Elmer Weir of McHenry were married here today by Justice of the Peace J. W. Bennett. The girl's father, William Davis, 64 years old, was acquitted a month ago of the back porch slaying last November of Doyle Burwell. Davis said he killed Burwell in the mistaken belief the young man was Weir, whom he had warned not to visit his daughter.

FRENCH SLAYER OF SIX INSISTS HE IS GUILTY

VERSAILLES, March 11.—(AP)—Responsibility for the fifth of six murders charged against him was admitted by Eugene Weidmann, German convict, today in the Versailles Criminal court. Weidmann said he stood by his previous confession despite the objections of his own attorneys.

Among Weidmann's victims was Jean De Koven, Brooklyn dancer, 22 years old, who was strangled to death in 1937 at La Voulzie, Weidmann's suburban villa. She studied dancing in Chicago three years ago. The fifth killing which he acknowledged today was that of Raymond Lesobre, a real estate agent.

Weidmann and an alleged accomplice, Roger Million, accuse one another of a sixth murder committed for profit.

STATES MOVING TO LIMIT U. S. TAXING POWER

Seek to Free Impounded Wealth of Nation.

Strong support is developing for a constitutional amendment to limit the taxing power of the federal government to 25 per cent on incomes, gifts and inheritances, J. A. Arnold, secretary of the American Taxpayers' association, said yesterday.

The association is a national organization with offices at 30 North La Salle street and headquarters in Washington, D. C. Isaac Miller Hamilton of Chicago, president of the Federal Life Insurance company, is a vice president.

Arnold said the association is asking that two-thirds of the states memorialize congress to call a constitutional convention for consideration of the proposed amendment.

Wyoming First to Act.

Wyoming, he said, is the first state to take definite action. A resolution passed the Wyoming legislature and was signed by the governor on Feb. 23. It proposes repeal of the sixteenth amendment and substitution of the tax limitation article. Similar resolutions have been introduced in the Iowa and New Jersey legislatures and soon will be taken up in other states, Arnold said.

"The sixteenth amendment gives unlimited power to tax income and estates," Arnold said. "In the higher brackets that power is now being used to the point of confiscation. The sixteenth amendment was, in fact, the largest transfer of private property to government in the history of the world.

"It is our contention that these excessive taxes impound capital and prevent it from coming out for investment in private business. That impounded wealth is the reservoir of the capital of the nation.

Why Recovery Is Held Back.

"Today we are talking about business recovery and what is holding it back. The trouble is that a man of wealth cannot invest in business."

Arnold said that death taxes have become so high that a person of wealth must at all times keep his estate in such liquid condition that it is impossible to employ the money in productive enterprise.

"I know of one instance," he continued, "in which a wealthy man had the opportunity to make a substantial investment in business. The investment would have paid him 9 per cent on his money. He turned it down for two reasons.

"First, he was in the higher income brackets and the government would have taken two-thirds of his earnings in taxes, leaving him only 33 per cent. He found he could get just as large a net return by investing in municipal bonds.

Need for Liquid Assets.

"He had to take into consideration, also, the liquidity of the investment. If he were to die suddenly, the government would take a large part of his estate in inheritance taxes and the government requires payment of taxes in cash. It probably would not have been possible to convert the business investment into cash readily, whereas the bonds he bought could be sold quickly."

Arnold said experience has shown that total tax revenues will increase with the lowering of the income tax rate.

The Harding and Coolidge administrations, he said, applied the principle of lowering rates to increase revenues and it resulted in the balancing of the budget and building up a surplus.

Arnold said that in 1924, when the maximum income tax rate was 46 per cent, the total income tax revenues were 704 million dollars, while in 1927, when the maximum rate was 25 per cent, the total revenue was 830 million dollars.

TEACHERS ELECT LILLIAN LEWIS TO HEAD FEDERATION

Lillian Lewis, teacher at the Armstrong elementary school, was elected president of the Chicago Teachers' federation yesterday. She succeeds Miss Mary M. Abbe, a retired teacher, who had been president for eighteen years. Other officers elected are Catherine C. Shanley, Mayfair school, treasurer; Marie A. Golden, Nash school, corresponding secretary; Margaret L. Hogan, retired, recording secretary, and Jennie C. Johnson, Mitchell school, financial secretary. The post of business representative, held for many years by the late Miss Margaret Haley, will be left unfilled for one year, according to a vote.

Income Tax Time

Fred J. Schlotfeldt of River Forest, director of naturalization and immigration, puzzles over his return.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Dean Stromblad of 1921 South St. Louis avenue works on her return in the United States courthouse.

They didn't need calendars in the United States courthouse yesterday. A glance at the throngs in the corridors proved it was getting close to March 15. Citizens with income tax blanks in hand were everywhere.

More than 5,000 persons, eager to beat the deadline—midnight Wednesday—filed returns yesterday in the office of Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue for the first Illinois district. The office, which usually closes at 1 p. m. on Saturdays, was kept open until 4:30. It will not be open today.

Miss Elizabeth Eckert, chief clerk, refused to tell the number of payments made through the mail during the day. From another source it was learned that about 15,000 letters were received at the office. Of these, it was estimated 80 per cent contained income tax payments.

IMPERIAL QUARTET AT LAIN & SON Exclusively

■ In 1932 Lain & Son announced that the Imperial Male Quartet and Organist would be included with all Chapel services. This was the first time in Chicago that any funeral director included music as a part of the service, for previously a quartet had cost $30 to $50 additional.

When the new Chapel of Lain & Son at 5501 N. Ashland was opened in April, 1937, the same policy of making available a quartet was continued.

Now there are two Imperial Quartets—and two Lain & Son chapels—and with every service, regardless of cost, the IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET is included without extra charge—as well as organ and organist.

First with Imperial Quartet
First with Air-Conditioning
First in Chapel Services

Chicago's preference for Lain & Son funerals is now greater than for any other concern.

BORN: LIBERTY, A QUIET CHILD, TO PHILADELPHIA

Freedom's Slow Progress Told by Writer.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., March 11.—[Special.]—Independence hall, the shrine of America that shelters the Liberty bell, lifts its white colonial tower amid a huddle of roofs and skyscrapers. It is stately and serene amid the roaring currents of modern life, like the silver gleam of the Schuylkill and the Delaware in the dark pattern of railroad and factory.

Here and in quiet Carpenter's hall down an alley not far away, where the charters of American liberty and social reform were drawn and signed by a feebly knit federation of colonies, time has given dignity and respectability to the scene. But it must be remembered that in the beginning this was a radical and highly perilous undertaking.

The very idea of independence was slow in gathering force. Benjamin Franklin had thought for a time to put Pennsylvania under kingly rule, and now on his grave, which may be seen through a fence in an adjoining street, one reads:

"He snatched lightning from the skies and scepters from the hands of kings."

Revolutionary Spirit Spreads.

Virginia was amazingly rash, Franklin thought when, after a British ship had been burned by masked men in Rhode Island waters and certain suspects had been ordered to England for trial, that colony became aflame with revolutionary spirit. It was in 1771 that Dabney Carr, a brilliant young Hugenot farmer, took the first legal steps toward ultimate union. A committee of correspondence, or exchange of information between colonies, was formed, to be followed by a committee of safety and a meeting of the first congress, at which George Washington made a passionate speech denouncing the British ministry.

Some idea of the dangers involved in this attitude, even at home and without any reference to the fearsome British redcoats, may be seen in the declaration from Princess Anne county in Virginia as late as 1775, which follows:

"Sensible of the error and guilt by which the colony, led by a set of factitious men styling themselves committees and congresses, who have violently usurped the power of government and incurred guilt of active rebellion against our most gracious sovereign, we wish them to be informed that, however loath we shall be to shed blood of our countrymen, we must in discharge of our duty to God and king, in support of the laws and constitution of the county, oppose their march, defend the passes into our county and neighborhood to the last drop of our blood."

Peace Envelops Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, when the revolutionary spirit arose around it, from Virginia on one side and Massachusetts on the other, with its own back countrymen clamoring for the blood of Englishmen, was a happy, peaceful, elegant, hospitable, and polite city.

The "Farmer Letters" of John Dickinson, Quaker farmer, in 1767, arguing that the colonists could not be legally taxed except by their own representatives, had stirred the ferment, but it was eight years later before the fire of Tom Paine's "Common Sense" pamphlets and the rise of the Liberty party, with Franklin, Thomas Mifflin, Charles Thomson, and Robert Morris, led to definite action. It was a meeting in a tavern on 2d street, where resolutions were adopted on "the indefeasible right of giving and granting our own money, a right from which we can never recede," that committed this province to the danger of armed revolution and all that followed.

Pennsylvania was called the "keystone" of the arch of the revolution.

Own Prestige Involved.

Philadelphia and the adjoining counties of Chester and Bucks refused at first to support the independence movement, for their own control of the colony was at stake. But a deeper current, the theory of individual initiative and self-government, on which Quakers, Presbyterians, and German dissenters had been nourished, drew them irresistibly into this new political arena, a radicalism of which the merchants and city fathers had never dreamed. They had never suffered from tyranny in the colony. The laws were liberal and easy. But when they joined the movement as a matter of principle in objection to taxation they found muskets and ammunition. The frontiersmen of the blue mountains, beyond the city and the flat, fat lands, formed the backbone of the army of Washington.

"I am called to sup," wrote Mad Anthony Wayne just before the battle of Stony Point, "but where to breakfast, either within the enemy's lines in triumph or in the other world?"

Revolt from the Hills.

"There were no tea parties here," writes Sydney G. Fisher in "The Making of Pennsylvania," referring to the early independence movement. "The child of liberty which they were nursing could bear no noise."

Something new in the history of mankind had been developed here, however, just as in Virginia, Massachusetts and New York. The pressure came from behind, the hills against the coast.

When William Penn came here in 1682 he established a Quaker province which lasted until the revolution, when the people of the hills wrested control from Philadelphia.

"Their power was destroyed by the men who had pushed through to the wilderness and formed new concepts," writes Fisher.

Penn was given 40,000 square miles of the new world by Charles II., in payment of the king's debt to his father, an admiral of England.

The scene of Penn's landing at this site of the future state is painted as one of perfect wildness, a little stream by a low, sandy beach, where he sat and talked with the Indians and ate roasted acorns.

Penn's Peace Finally Fails.

Penn's treaty of peace and the government which he set up endured for many years. The council and assembly were elected and relative freedom of worship was granted to all. It was provided that the assembly and officials "must believe in Jesus Christ, the Son of God and Savior of the world."

"Any government is free," Penn wrote, "where the laws rule and the people are a party to the laws. Government, like clocks, go from the motions men give them, and as governments are made and moved by men, so by them they are ruined."

Things did not work out quite the way he had intended and his benevolent Indian policy came to the pass where his grandson offered rewards for scalps. There came a time when the hill men marched threateningly on Philadelphia because of this very lack of stern Indian policy.

"The provincial government of Philadelphia affords little or no assistance to the poor distressed frontiers," says a letter of complaint in 1757. "Public money is being debauched and squandered in supporting a number of savages who have been murdering and scalping us for a number of years."

It was the gunsmiths of the mountains, the weapons forged there, the deadly aim of the frontiersmen trained in Indian warfare, that proved the scourge of the British army later.

Plain, Religious People.

Quaker, Lutheran, Reformed, Episcopal, Mennonite, Moravian, and Presbyterian, with some New England Puritan invasion, as in Virginia, formed the mental background of the developing province.

They were mostly a plain people, artisans and good farmers, strong for religious toleration, with a working program of free men. Thousands of such pious men had been put to death in Europe for no greater crime than that they wanted to be free.

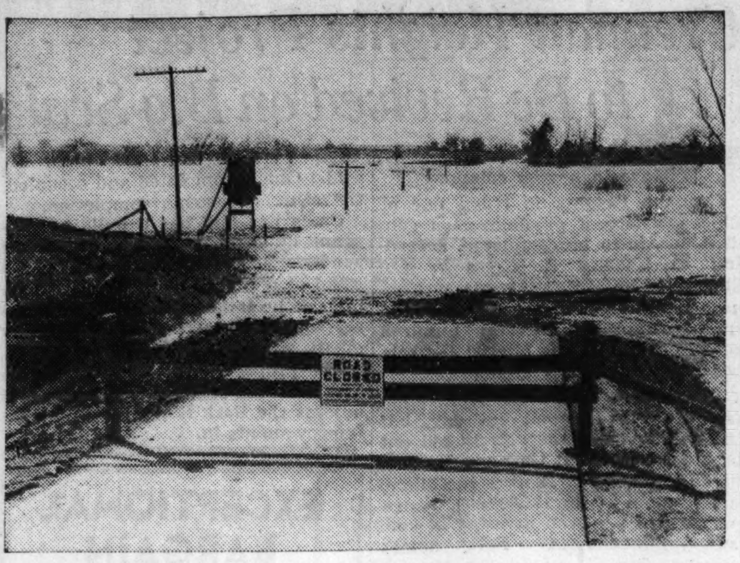
This soil of the Liberty bell, the Declaration of Independence, and Betsy Ross, the rebel Quaker maid who is said to have fashioned the first American flag for Washington, was occupied by the Swedes in their Delaware colony in 1638.

Penn wrote of the Swedish folk who received him and from whom he bought some land:

"They are a plain, strong, industrious people. They kindly received me. . . . As they are a people proper and strong of body, so they have fine children, and almost every house full; rare to find one of them without three or four boys and as many girls; some six, seven, and eight sons. And I must do them right—I see few young men more sober and industrious."

Editors Note—The seventh article of this series will describe the independence movement in western Pennsylvania, Mad Anthony Wayne, and something of Valley Forge.

Backwater Floods Highway



State highway 13 near Herrin, Ill., which was blocked all last week by backwater from Crab Orchard lake, uncompleted WPA project. It was expected the highway could be opened to trafic today.

Second Inundation

Marion, Ill., March 11.—[Special.]—After rising to a depth of 2½ feet, the flood waters covering highway 13 between here and Carbondale are receding. The road is expected to be open to trafic by Monday.

This is the second flooding of the highway in recent weeks, caused by the federal government's dam building in pursuance of its project to create Crab Orchard lake as a reward to Representative Kent E. Keller [D., Ill.] for his unswerving support of all New Deal programs.

Three days ago the government won permission from Federal Judge Fred L. Wham, sitting at East St. Louis, to dispossess twenty-two more farmers from their lands in the Crab Orchard area. Between sixty and eighty farmers are fighting in the courts to retain their homes, some of which have been in their families for three generations. Critics say the whole project is ill advised, and will create nothing but a swamp and a breeding place for mosquitoes.

Electric Device Inventor Electrocuted in Bath

Los Angeles, Cal., March 11.—(AP)—Grover C. Hubble, 47 years old, inventor of electrical devices, was electrocuted today when an electric heater toppled into the bath tub in which he was bathing.

THREE STATES HIT BY FLOOD; 300 MAROONED

Springfield, Ill., March 11.—[Special.]—Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa suffered floods as a result of torrential rains in the last 24 hours. Three inches of water fell here, a record for fourty years.

Three hundred residents of Campbell's Island, in the Mississippi river off Moline, have been marooned by mud at the approaches of a new bridge. They appealed today to Rock Island county for aid.

High water covered highways, and in some instances blocked trafic, on roads between Champaign and Tuscola, Champaign and Whitehead, Mansfield and Mahomet, and Urbana and Danville, and near Maroa, north of Decatur. Some residents of Villa Grove, Ill., were prepared to flee a flooded creek.

At Ellettsville, near Bloomington, Ind., many persons were taken from their homes in boats. Robert Breeden, 55 years old, was killed by lightning.

Near Missouri Valley, Ia., many residents fled water from the Boyer river. A large area near Shenandoah, Ia., was inundated by the ice jammed Nishabotna river.

Fort Sheridan Officer's Gun Death Held Accident

A military board at Fort Sheridan completed a report last night officially finding that the death of Capt. Albert P. Barnes, 42 years old, a supply officer, was accidental. The captain was killed by a charge from his shotgun in his home at the fort Friday. According to Maj. Arthur P. Moore, a member of the board, it appeared that Capt. Barnes was shot while cleaning or handling his gun. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today in the post chapel. The body will be sent to McCook, Neb., for burial.

FORMER WAGON MAKER DIES.

Kaukauna, Wis., March 11.—[Special.]—Balthasar Hoffman, 80 years old, pioneer resident of Kaukauna, died today. Hoffman formerly was a wagon maker and later a carpenter. He retired four years ago.

BANDIT IS SHOT IN ATTEMPT TO ROB HANDBOOK

An attempt to hold up an alleged handbook at 7631 North Paulina street ended ingloriously for two bandits early today. One was shot. Both were captured.

Twelve men were playing cards in the place when they were suddenly confronted by Wendell Bell, 40 years old, an ex-convict who says he lives at 924 Belmont avenue, and Joseph Miller, 29, who gave his address as the Lindy hotel, 551 West Madison street. Each carried a gun.

Bell ordered his intended victims to line up. Suddenly one of them, Casimir Pavolski, 30, of 1835 Juneway terrace, wrested the gun from him. Miller attempted to fire at Pavolski, but the safety lock was on his pistol and Pavolski downed him with a bullet in the groin. Bell surrendered. The bandits were placed under arrest by Sergt. Wilbur Davis and Policeman Ray Carlson of the Rogers Park station.

Victim Names Ex-Convict as One of 3 in Robber Gang

Eugene Romano, 30 years old, an Ohio ex-convict, was identified yesterday by Fred Meyer, owner of a tavern at 3259 North Racine avenue, as one of three men who robbed him of $115 with a submachine gun on Dec. 1. Meyer said the same men met him returning from a bank on Dec. 28 and took $597. The two other members of the gang are being sought. Romano gave his address as 1228 Hubbard street.

Suggests Federal and City Housing Authorities Drop Landlord Role

REALTOR URGES PRIVATE FUNDS FOR SLUM SAVING

"Public Service Building" Plan Also Favored.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

Herbert U. Nelson.
[De Gueldre Photo.]

Federal and municipal housing authorities should get out of the business of being landlords and turn over their work to "public service building corporations"—specially organized private concerns under public supervision—according to Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. His suggestions to remedy the present national housing situation, made public yesterday, are based, he said, on a series of conferences involving many individuals and groups in the fields of real estate, construction, city planning, civic and other public service, and general business.

Average Rent About $28.

Nelson pointed out that the big federally built housing projects have failed to reach the income levels of the tenants for whom they were built. The average monthly rental charged in the Jane Addams houses, on the west side, at present is about $28 per family, he said.

An index prepared by the United States bureau of labor statistics recently published showed that the present middle mark in rent for all the families in Chicago who are tenants—rich and poor alike—is only $28. That is, half of the renters pay less than that and the other half pay more.

In other words, there are as many families in Chicago who are paying under the federal housing project an average rental of $28 as there are paying above that figure.

Criticizes Landlord Rôle.

Nelson suggests that the federal and city governments abandon their "rôles of landlord which have in them serious potentialities for political manipulations." Instead, he believes the funds of the United States Housing authority and the Chicago Housing authority should be devoted to the demolition of old and unfit houses in slum areas and to land acquisition.

"Once a slum area has been cleaned out it should be turned over for reconstruction to especially organized private companies set up for that purpose and functioning under public supervision," Nelson said.

Nelson then advocated passage of legislation which, it is understood, will be submitted at Springfield shortly, permitting the operation of privately financed concerns operating in designated depreciated areas.

Urges Legislation Be Passed.

He made this comment: "It is suggested that the state legislature pass a law authorizing the creation of public service building companies of this kind, working under a state commission. Such companies should be attractive to private capital satisfied with modest returns. They could relieve government of the dangerous job of acting as landlord to its citizens. They still would be under a measure of public control to guard against abuses."

Nelson asserted that all good citizens want better housing for families of low income.

"Any one who visits the 'blighted districts of his own home city, goes into poverty stricken and crowded homes and sees for himself how bad conditions are will agree something must be done and done quickly," he said.

Protection for Real Estate.

"In addition, everybody who owns a city home, or other urban real estate, has a direct financial stake in quick and constructive action to rebuild 'blighted' areas and clean up bad housing conditions. 'Blight is a disease that does not stand still. In such a city as Chicago, for example, probably a fourth of the urban area is suffering from this disease."

Nelson also suggested that public loans be made available to companies organized for the purpose of buying old homes and buildings which are sound in construction and which can be modernized and developed into good housing.

"In Philadelphia recently a private individual undertook this experiment with some three hundred dwellings, he said. "They were in the form of row houses. They were reconditioned, with modern bathrooms and kitchen facilities installed.

Here's Low Cost Housing.

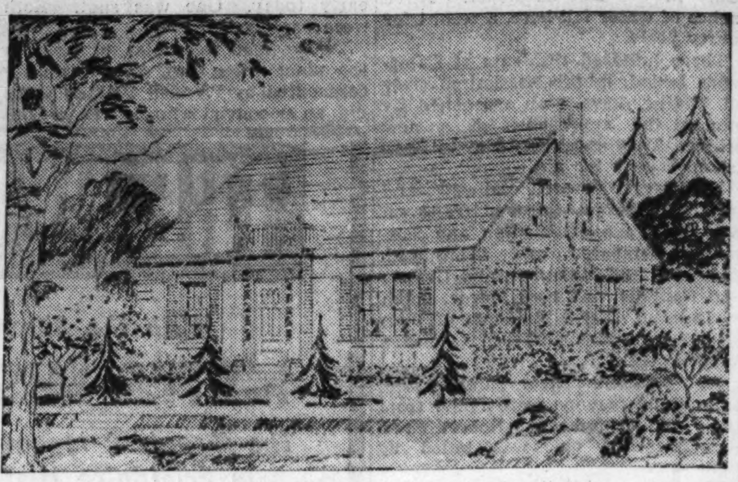
"These houses, because they were bought very cheaply, are now renting for as low as $10 and $12 per month per family unit. This is real low-cost housing, and it is possible to carry it out in other cities on a large scale."

Nelson also suggested replanning and rezoning to protect, and in many cases recreate, the neighborhood conditions necessary for a good family life.

He pointed out the futility of building single housing projects in the center of a slum area, expecting them to stop the spread of depreciation.

"We should seek a plan of action that would leave us not with isolated institutional projects set down as little islands in desolation, but rather one that should have for its objective this entirely practicable goal: The gradual rebuilding of whatever parts of our cities need such rebuilding if they are to be put to their needed use."

First of Contemplated 1,500 Homes



This is the first unit in a building development in Grennan Heights started by Charles H. Cress & Co., which is expected to total 1,500 homes eventually. The above six room solid brick house is at 8021 Overhill avenue and was bought by Mr. and Mrs. E. Harry Schlachter. It cost a reported $5,975 for building and land. It was financed with a 90 per cent FHA twenty-five year insured loan of $5,400, made by the Madison-Crawford National bank. Monthly payments are $38.25. It occupies a lot 45 by 126 feet.

WOMAN CLOSES FOUR WAY DEAL IN RESIDENCES

A four way $53,000 real estate deal, involving the transfer of four different residential properties, was reported yesterday by Anna W. Young & Co., 1830 West 103d street. At the conclusion of the deal Paul F. Winkler, who owned 1336 West 73d place, moved to the A. D. White home, 10401 South Leavitt street. White has title to the former home of James L. Hunt, 10212 South Oakley avenue. Hunt bought the house of F. W. Griffith, 10306 South Hamilton avenue. Griffith, in turn, bought and moved into the Winkler bungalow.

Report Loop Building Is 100 Per Cent Rented

Office space in the twenty-three story Chicago Real Estate board building, at 32 West Randolph street, is now 100 per cent rented, according to Harold C. Costello of the Iroquois Management company, agents of the property. It is said that this is the only tall office building in the loop area which is completely rented.

SUBURBAN HOME BUILDING AGAIN TOPS LAST YEAR

February Total Is 65 Pct. More Than in 1938.

For the eighth consecutive month suburban building was greater than the same month of the preceding year. In February there were 139 permits issued for new homes in sixty-eight communities. This total is 65 per cent larger than the eighty-four permits in February of last year.

In value the February, 1939, total of $941,550 also was more than during the same month last year, when it was $690,010. The February totals in both number and value were less than those of January, 1939, which were 151 permits for homes costing $1,028,648.

February building of all types also was larger in value than both the same month of last year and of the preceding month.

Average Cost Declines.

The average cost of suburban homes continues to decrease. In February it was $6,774, which compares with $7,050 in 1938, $7,700 in 1937, and $9,000 in 1936.

In number of new homes Prospect Park led all suburbs with sixteen permits. Evergreen Park was second with fourteen; Evanston, third, with thirteen, and Palos Heights was fourth with twelve permits.

In value of new construction Evanston was leader with a total of $123,400. Prospect Heights was secthird, with $75,000, and Highland Park, third, $75,000, and Highland Park, fourth, with four houses costing $57,744.

Expects Big Year.

PLAN 100 NEW HOMES IN LINCOLNSHIRE ESTATES FOR 1939

S. M. Homan, president of Lincolnshire Estates, Inc., yesterday outlined a home building program for 1939 with 100 units as the quota planned. This will be the organization's biggest construction activity since 1929, it was said. Of the 100 homes contemplated seventy-five will be built by owners of the lots and the remaining twenty-five by the company.

The building program includes the planting of 17,000 trees on the property, which is in the immediate vicinity of the Lincolnshire Country club. The main entrance is at 234th and State streets.

Contracts have been let and construction is under way on fifteen homes so far this year.

LAKE STREET LEASE.

Frank J. Larkin, owner of the Benton Grill, 165 North Wabash avenue, yesterday leased space at 70 West Lake street for a second downtown unit. Arthur Rubloff & Co. were brokers. The premises are being remodeled and air conditioned at a reported cost of $15,000. L. R. Solomon is architect.

Grennan Heights Project to Be Revived on Big Scale

[Picture in nearby column.]

Grennan Heights in Niles, one of Chicago's largest pre-depression subdivisions, is to be completed, according to Charles H. Cress & Co. Started on an elaborate scale by Kenneth L. Grennan, of baking fame, the tract, comprising several hundred acres, originally was offered for sale beginning in 1926 at high prices.

It was one of the city's outstanding developments of that day, but like others when the bottom fell out of the realty boom Grennan Heights became quiescent. Before the slump came more than $4,000,000 is reported to have been invested in land and improvements. Forty homes were built.

Charles H. Cress yesterday said that he now owns 1,500 home building sites in Grennan Heights. He has three moderate priced residences under construction. Two have been sold. One is completed and occupied, the other is nearing completion.

Cress has laid out a building program different from the customary subdivision development method. Instead of doing all of the construction himself he is permitting any contractor to operate who has a lot buyer client who wants to build.

The property, which is half a mile north of the Chicago city limits and adjoins the Park Ridge limits, has all improvements in.

Woman Purchases Twelve Flats at 1425 West Erie

Minnie Roberts yesterday purchased the twelve flat building at 1425-27 West Erie street from the First National Bank of Chicago. Wells-Chinberg & Co. and Edmund O. Bill were brokers.

GOLDEN GLOVES INTERCITY TEAM READY TO TRAIN

32 Gather in I. A. C. Tomorrow.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A powerful Chicago Golden Gloves squad will assemble tomorrow in the Illinois Athletic club to begin training for the intercity matches with New York in the Stadium March 29.

Chicago's squad, which was chosen after Friday night's finals, includes the eight champions and twenty-four other fighters who proved their skill and strength during the tournament. From this group of thirty-two coaches will choose the sixteen boys who will face New York's boxers. The basis of selection will be the candidates' performances during the next two weeks of daily training in the I. A. C. gymnasium.

Six Cities Represented.

Six cities are represented among the eight champions whose victories thrilled a capacity crowd of 22,132 in the Stadium Friday night. Detroit and Kansas City have two representatives each. Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and St. Louis have one.

Johnny Pleasant of the Savoy A. C. is the Chicago boy who fought his way to a title. He whipped Tom Moyer of Grand Rapids, Mich., in the lightweight final.

Al Noto and Joe Dupont, winners in Chicago's west sectional tournament, went to the flyweight and featherweight finals, respectively. Noto lost to Vic Saccoia of Detroit and Dupont was beaten by Tony Ancona of Detroit.

Of all the champions, Tony Novak won most decisively in both his semifinal and final bouts. This Kansas City slugger pounded out a decision over the lanky John Washington of Dayton, O., and returned later in the evening to knock out Mike Zampini of Cleveland in the heavyweight final.

Work Hard for Victories.

The other champions—Chester Ellis of Kansas City, bantamweight; Milton Jones of St. Louis, welterweight; Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, middleweight, and Jimmy Reeves of Cleveland, light heavyweight—all had to work hard for their victories.

In addition to Pleasant, Noto, and Dupont, Chicago has seven boys among the thirty-two squad members. These are Willie Moon and Freddie Pope, flyweights; Frank Bausone, bantamweight; Homer Williams, featherweight; Harry Sparrow, lightweight; Curtis McDaniels, middleweight, and Altus Allen, light heavyweight.

Some of the squad members returned to their homes yesterday, planning to return tomorrow to resume training. Others remained in the city, establishing headquarters in the I. A. C.

112 POUNDS—Vic Saccioa, Detroit; Al Noto, Chicago; William Moon, Chicago; Fred Pope, Chicago.

126 POUNDS—Tony Ancona, Detroit; Joe Dupont, Chicago; Homer Williams, Chicago; Mike Mihalovich, Milwaukee.

HEAVYWEIGHTS—Tony Novak, Kansas City, Mo.; Mike Zampini, Cleveland; Walter Bilicki, Gary, Ind.; Neville Beech, Memphis, Tenn.

Cunningham Is Beaten in 1,000, Mile

New York, March 11.—[U.P.]—Glenn Cunningham, king of the world's milers, was defeated twice tonight in the annual Knights of Columbus track and field games, finishing second to Johnny Borican in the fastest 1,000 yard race in history and then winding up last two hours later in the classic Columbian mile, which he had won six consecutive times.

While a crowd of 14,000 amazed fans looked on in Madison Square Garden Cunningham bowed in the mile run to Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin—the first time he had lost an indoor mile since 1936, when he was defeated by Gene Venzke.

1,000 Tires Cunningham.

Glenn apparently had spent himself in the 1,000 yard run, which saw Borican, lanky Negro from Elberon, N. J., set a world record of 2:08.8, smashing both the indoor and the outdoor mark for that distance.

The former 1,000 yard mark, ironically, was set by Cunningham at 2:10.1 in this same meet in 1935, when Glenn scored a double, in that event and in the mile. The outdoor record of 2:09.7 was set by Elroy Robinson in Fresno, Cal., on May 15, 1937.

It was feared, however, that Borican's time might not be accepted as a record by the A. A. U. Starter Johnny McHugh claimed Borican jumped the gun and said he would not sign the affidavit which must accompany record applications.

It was revealed after the mile that Cunningham had had a temperature of 101 before the start of the 1,000 and that it was at 99 when he toed the mark for the mile. Glenn said he had suffered an attack of influenza this week. He looked drawn and haggard.

Beetham Wins Casey 600.

Borican failed in his bid for a double victory when he was defeated by Charley Beetham in the twentieth running of the classic Casey 600 yards. The former Ohio State star ran the distance in 1:11.3, only two-sixths of a second over the world record. Wes Wallace, I. C. 4-A champion, was third.

Summaries:

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Don Lash, Indiana State police; Tommy Deckard, Bloomington, Ind., second; Joseph McCluskey, New York A. C., third; George De George, N. Y. A. C., fourth; Miklos Szabo, Hungary, fifth. Time—9:02.4.

60 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Allan Tolmich, Detroit; Jay Shields, Yale, second; Larry O'Connor, University of Toronto T. C., third; Thomas Garland, Manhattan, fourth. Time, 0:07.4.

POLE VAULT—Won by Richard Ganslen, Columbia [13 feet 9 inches]; Ed Singsen, Providence, R. I. [13 feet], second; Thomas Lussen, Yale [12 feet 6 inches], third; Donald Rockwell, Columbia [12 feet], fourth.

1,000 YARD RUN—Won by John Borican, Elberon, N. J.; Glenn Cunningham, Peabody, Kas., second; Howard Borck, New York, third; Sanford Goldberg, fourth; Frank Slater, Fordham, fifth. Time, 2:08.8. [New world indoor record; old record, 2:10.1 by Cunningham, March 16, 1935. Borican also bettered world outdoor record of 2:09.7 by Elroy Robisson].

PERRY TAUNTED BY FAN AS BUDGE BEATS HIM AGAIN

Boston, Mass., March 11.—(AP)—Don Budge tonight again raced through Fred Perry, former British Davis cup ace, in straight sets, taking the second match of their cross-country professional tour, 6-0, 6-2, 8-6, in the Boston Garden. The crowd of 3,753—held down by a snowstorm—saw Budge pick up where he left off in New York last night and easily take nine straight games. At this point, Perry, loser of eighteen straight games, including the last nine he dropped in Madison Square Garden last night, took a firm stand, apparently irked by a taunt from the gallery.

"Say, are you interested in golf, too?" some one yelled to the Britisher, apparently referring to the reason given for Ellsworth Vines' poor showing in his series with Budge.

"No," snapped back the Briton, turning red, "are you?"

Then, with the score 3-0 against him, Perry hit his best streak up to this point and took his first game.

They'll Fight Again

Many Golden Glove fans failed to get tickets to the finals before the sellout. Now they have another chance to see those great fighters in action. Chicago's Golden Gloves team will battle New York's on March 29 in the Stadium and only one price class is sold out so far. There's still time to get seats.

Tickets on sale in Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn Street and Tribune Tower lobby. Mail orders may be addressed to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, making checks or money orders payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

PRICES ARE:

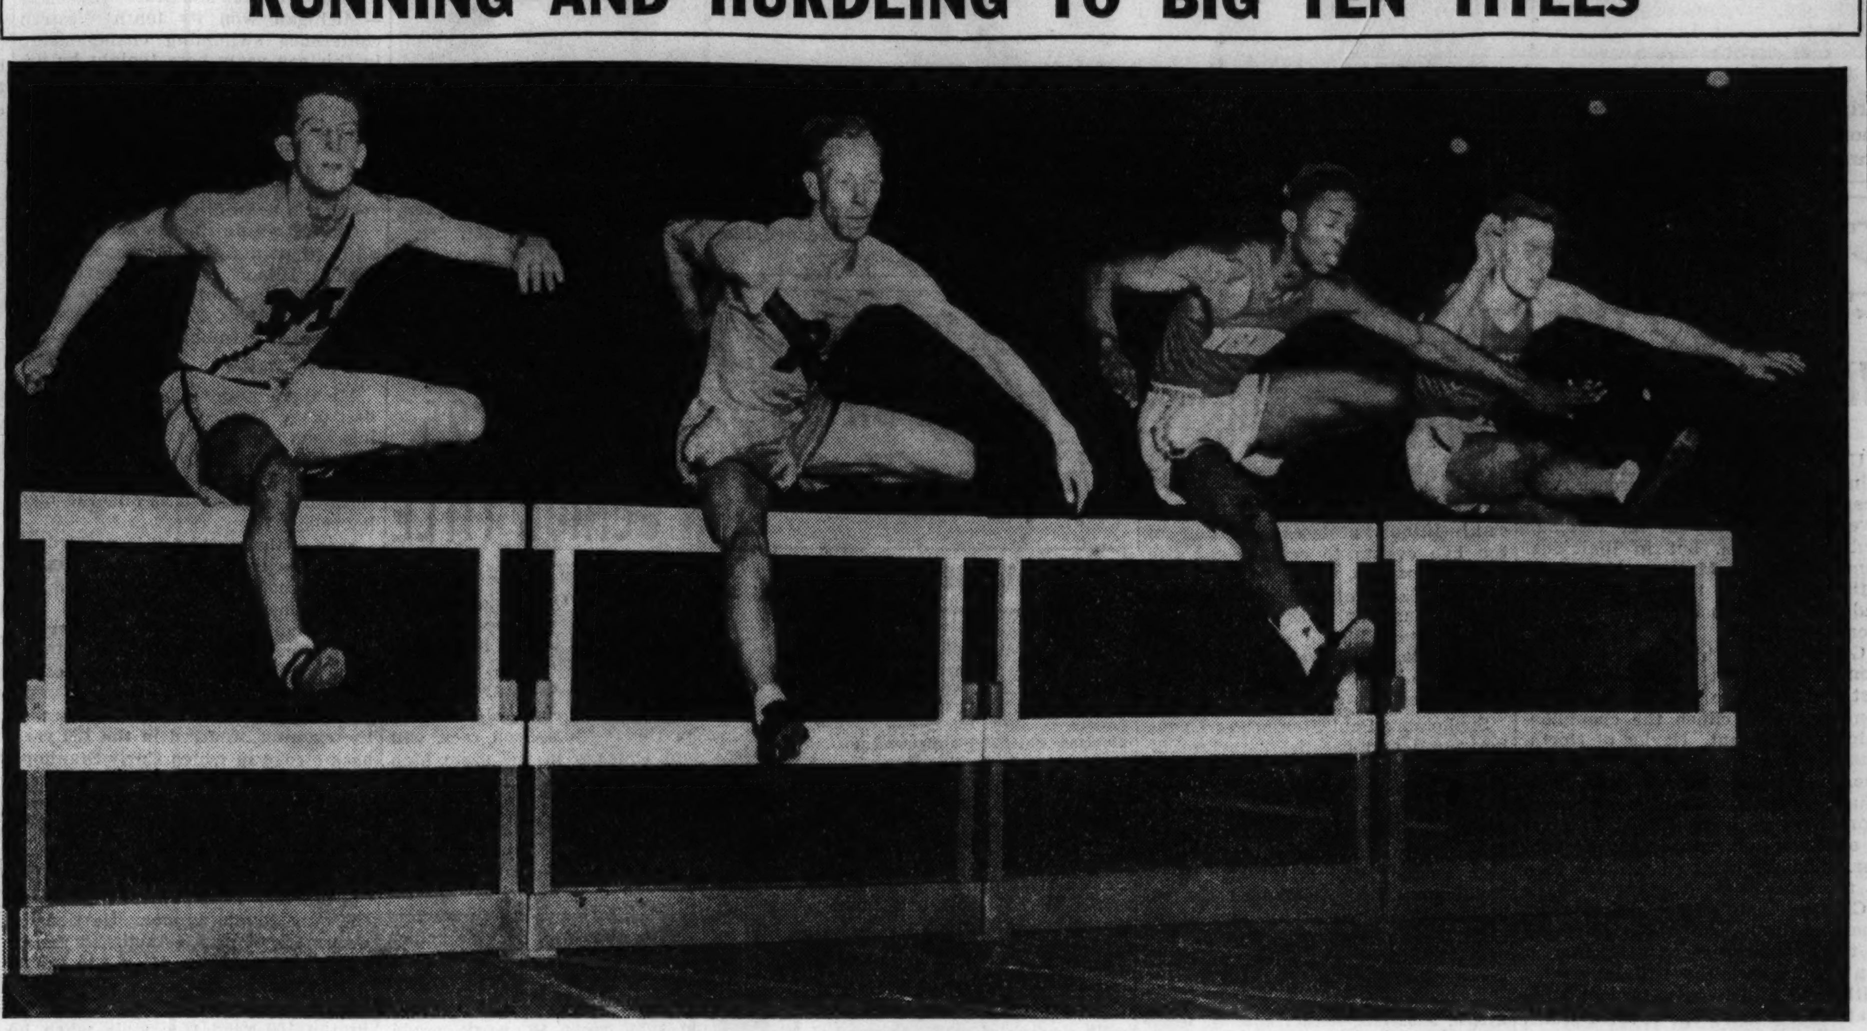
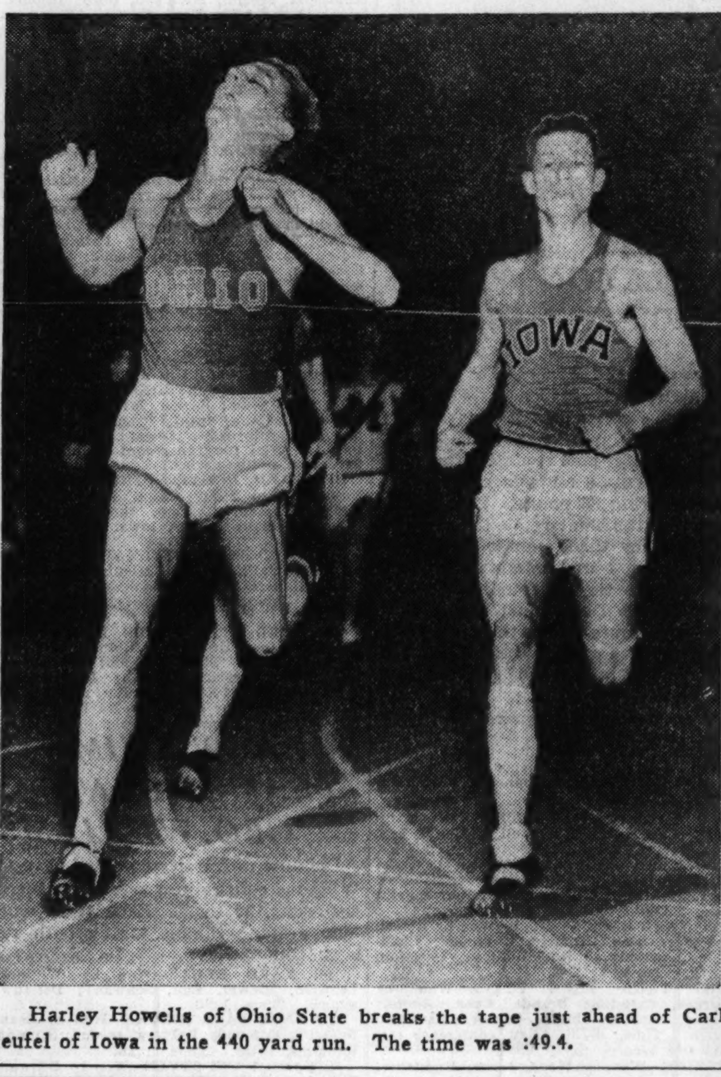
RUNNING AND HURDLING TO BIG TEN TITLES



[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The field clears a barrier in the 70 yard high hurdles in the annual Western conference indoor track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. Left to right: Elmer Gedeon of Michigan, the winner; Steve Gutting of Purdue, who was second; Ed Smith of Wisconsin, third, and John Collinge of Iowa, who was unplaced. Other finalists do not appear.



Harley Howells of Ohio State breaks the tape just ahead of Carl Teufel of Iowa in the 440 yard run. The time was :49.4.

Notre Dame's 45 Points Win Central Track

Table of Points

Notre Dame	45	Western State	7
Marquette	32	North Central	6
Pittsburgh	28	Toledo	5
Michigan State	17	Kansas State	4
Michigan Normal	10½	Drake	2
Butler	8½	Wayne	1

Notre Dame, Ind., March 11.—[Special.]—Notre Dame scored in every one of the eleven events to win the thirteenth annual Central Collegiate conference indoor track meet today. The Irish amassed 45 points in successfully defending their title. Pittsburgh, which won the mile relay for the sixth straight time, pulled up third with 28 points, behind Marquette, which scored 32 points.

Dave Reidy of Notre Dame was the individual star. He won both the high and low hurdles. He tied the meet record in winning the 60 yard high hurdles, then lunged across the tape in 7.2 seconds to defeat Bob Shurilla of Marquette, the defending champion, in the 65 yard lows.

Woodruff Runs Fast 880.

John Woodruff of Pittsburgh, last year's winner in both the quarter and half mile, won the latter in 1:56.6, but yielded his 440 yard mark to his teammate, Frank Ohl, who returned to run the first leg of the relay.

Capt. Greg Rice of Notre Dame held his two mile championship, but failed to repeat his 1937 mile victory when Bill Southworth of Butler outran him on the last lap to win in 4:17.9, nearly two seconds off Rice's meet record of 4:16.2. The mile was the most thrilling race of the day, even though Southworth led all the way.

Rice dogged Southworth's steps all the way into the gun lap. He followed him around the turn and then cut loose with his famous kick, but Southworth had enough left to maintain a half a stride advantage.

Greer Keeps Dash Title.

Wilbur Greer of Michigan State retained his 60 yard dash title easily in 6.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second slower than his time in his quarterfinal heat last night.

John Bazyk of Pittsburgh dethroned Ed Beinor of Notre Dame in the shot put with a toss of 47 feet 10¾ inches, one foot under the record. Bill Faymonville of Notre Dame was second,

Ted Leonas of Notre Dame scored a surprise victory in the high jump, clearing 6 feet 4½ inches. Among his victims was Ed Burke of Marquette, 1937 champion and world indoor record holder, who cleared six feet to tie for fifth place.

Ohl's time of 49.6 seconds in the quarter mile was perhaps the day's best next to Reidy's. Summaries:

HIGH JUMP—Won by Leonas, Notre Dame; Washington, Western State Teachers, second; Arrington, Michigan State, third; Burke, Marquette; McDowell, Pitt, and Simmons, Wayne, tied for fourth. Height, 6 feet 4½ inches.

Cubs' Backs Are Against Wall, Pushed There by Yannigans

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 11.—It will be two foxy oldsters against two green and strong youths in the second game of the Cubs intraclub series here tomorrow afternoon. Charley Root, 40, and Jack Russell, 34, will pitch for the yannigans, and Newell Kimball, 24, and Al Epperly, 20, will do the pitching for the regulars.

It is incumbent upon the regulars to win the Sabbath encounter, otherwise they can do no better than halve the series for the championship of Avalon. The series will consist of only four games. To come are tomorrow's, one on Tuesday, and the final one on Wednesday. So, since the Yannigans won the opener, 7 to 5, yesterday, it didn't take the Regulars long to get their backs to the wall.

Gabby Wants More Punch.

Today's drill was dedicated to batting practice, with Gabby Hartnett not too reticent about pointing out that no one but Hank Leiber got an extra base hit for the Regulars, whereas Steve Mesner made a homer and two singles, Jim Gleeson hit a homer and a single, and Ed Carnett made a double and two singles for the Yannigans.

Perhaps it should be mentioned that the Yannigans were batting against Gene Lillard and Walter Higbe, whereas the regulars had to contend with Bill Lee and Larry French. Still, an extra base hit is an extra base hit at this stage and never hurts the prestige of the gent who socks it.

Tomorrow's exhibition game will turn the squad into getaway week. The camp, pitched on Feb. 23, will fold up Thursday and that afternoon all hands will sail for Los Angeles where on Friday they will open their spring major league competition in a game against the White Sox.

Dean Enthused Over Arm.

The present outlook is that all athletes will set out for the mainland in excellent physical condition. Phil Cavarretta, who was forced to remain away from yesterday's game because of a touch of stomach trouble, was much better today.

Diz Dean's enthusiasm over the condition of his carefully tended throwing piece boomed to a new high in today's drill when he turned loose approximately thirty pitches in what was his best warmup session to date.

Diz was elated to a point of calling the pitches the fastest he has thrown in almost two full years. Manager Hartnett, who caught Dean, was more temperate in his comment but conceded that Diz had shown real speed. To prove his point Gabby exhibited a puffed and red palm. From the looks of Dean's pitching today, it now seems probable that he will be permitted to do a little more throwing than the squadron of Dean patrol judges originally indicated would be proper.

Rip Russell Hit on Nose.

Just before today's session ended, Rip Russell, the first base aspirant from Los Angeles, was bopped on the nose by a bounding ball. He was cut slightly, but the injury is not serious.

All the Cub exhibition games, except four with the Los Angeles Coast league pennant winners, are to be against major league opposition. As a consequence the defending champions expect to know how good they are going to be when they open the National league season April 18 against those dark horses, the Cincinnati Reds.

Cravat Wins $25,000 Closing Day Handicap at Santa Anita

Los Angeles, Cal., March 11.—(AP)—Ushering out the 1939 meeting at Santa Anita Park with a flourish, Cravat, 4 year old from the Townsend B. Martin stable, captured the $25,000 added San Juan Capistrano handicap in track record time today before 40,000 fans.

With Jocky Jack Westrope in the saddle, Cravat found the mile and one-half distance to his liking and, redeeming his seventh place finish in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap at a mile and one-quarter a week ago, turned on a burst of speed in the stretch and won going away from Neil McCarthy's 7 year old star Today.

Jacola Runs Third.

Jacola, the Edward Friendly filly, which kept close to the pace throughout the gruelling route, ran third in a field that numbered nineteen.

Time for the race was 2:30 2-5, breaking the old track record of 2:32 1-5, set by Dark Accent.

Cravat, generally rated best at the distance by the handicappers, paid off at $11.80, $7.20, and $5, while Today, ridden by Johnny Adams and coupled with Gosum in the betting, paid $4.80 and $4, and Jacola, with Harry Richards aboard, paid $4.60.

It was an excellent closing day for another golden season at Santa Anita. A total of $1,384,811 was wagered through the pari-mutuel machines for the eight race program, bringing the total for the fifty-two day meeting to $34,774,666. The total for the fifty-six day meeting in 1937-'38 was $36,656,590.

Specify, Galapas, Pageboy, Count Atlas, and Rhiniz were scratched from the original field of twenty-four entries.

Honey Cloud, Whichcee Set Pace.

As a warm sun beat down on a track declared fast, the field got off with Honey Cloud and Maj. Austin C. Taylor's Whichcee, the latter one of the betting choices in view of his second to Kayak II. in the $100,000 race last week, setting the pace. Olimpo, Jacola, and Ossabaw were just behind, and Cravat was back in the pack.

Honey Cloud, a reformed sprinter, and Whichcee kept the pace, with Jacola in third position, going into the backstretch, but down the track Cravat began moving up. Going into the turn for home Jacola took a lead by a neck over Honey Cloud but faded back in the charge down the stretch as Cravat and Today surged forward, Today on the inside.

Cravat won by three lengths, and Today was a length in front of Jacola, while Whichcee, folding up at a mile and one-eighth, finished next to last.

Cravat's victory was worth $25,200 net—a measure of consolation for his failure in the $100,000 race. Today won $3,000; Jacola, $2,000, and Honey Cloud, owned by Mrs. A. J. Abel, won $1,000.

TEDDY WEED WINS

Coral Gables, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—The Tomara stable's Teddy Weed, which ran fourth to Stagehand in the McLennan Memorial handicap at Hialeah, turned in a record-equaling performance over the seldom used mile and 70 yards distance to capture the $2,000 Key West handicap at Tropical Park today.

Carrying the light impost of 104 pounds, Teddy Weed stepped the distance in 1:43 4-5 to equal the track record set a few days ago by Co-Sport. Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Belmont Stakes winner, Pasteurized, again failed to run to his reputation and finished a disappointing second, while Joseph Pepp's No Sir was third.

WOLVERINES GET 41½ POINTS AS 3 RECORDS FALL

Wisconsin Is Second, Indiana Third.

Table of Points

Michigan	41½	Chicago	9½
Wisconsin	24½	Northwestern	9½
Indiana	20	Iowa	7
Ohio State	18	Illinois	6
Purdue	11	Minnesota	3

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Michigan supremacy in Western conference indoor track advanced into its sixth consecutive year last night in the University of Chicago fieldhouse where the Wolverines scored in every event except the pole vault and provided two of the three new Big Ten records established.

Led by Capt. Bill Watson who shattered his own shot put mark and a record breaking relay quartet, Michigan piled up 41½ points. Wisconsin was second with 24½ points and Indiana finished third with 20.

Watson surpassed his Big Ten shot record three times during the evening. His best effort, a toss of 52 feet, 2½ inches, was ruled out when he stepped out of the circle. His second record breaking effort and the winning toss in the event measured 51 feet, 8⅜ inches, one foot, 4⅛ inches better than his winning effort in 1937.

Howells Presses Faulkner.

Harley Howells, a wiry little speedster from Ohio State, pressed Michigan to a record in the mile relay when he made up 25 yards in the last quarter mile to finish a stride behind struggling Ross Faulkner, the Wolverines' anchor man. One timer caught Howells in 47.9 seconds and another in :48.3, both faster than Ray Ellinwood's record of :48.9 for the distance. Michigan's time for the event was 3:18.9, one and four-tenths seconds faster than the mark established by the Wolverine team of 1937 on which Faulkner ran as a sophomore.

Howells earlier in the evening had won the quarter mile championship by defeating Carl Teufel of Iowa, the defending champion, in 49.4 seconds. Howells went to Billings hospital after the meet suffering with a spike wound incurred in Friday's preliminaries.

The third record was established by Milton Padway, Wisconsin pole vaulter, who attempted to clear 14 feet 6 inches for a new world's indoor record after he had beaten off the last of his opposition, Edward Thistlthwaite, Northwestern sophomore, at 13 feet 9 inches. He missed on his third attempt when his hand touched the bar, but he was credited with a new conference record of 14 feet 1⅝ inches, a height he had cleared on his second attempt. The old record for this event was 13 feet 10 inches, established by E. E. Lennington of Illinois in 1933.

Place Points Win for Wolverines.

Michigan's strength, as always, was in place winners. Besides Watson and the relay team, the Wolverines had only one individual champion. He was Elmer Gedeon, defending titlist in the 70 yard high hurdles. It placed two men in the mile run, two in the hurdles, two in the haf mile, and two in the high jump. Only in the pole vault did the other nine teams succeed in shutting out the champions.

Although its winning total was the largest amassed in the meet since it won the title in 1935 with 49½ points, Michigan's score was kept down by the failure of its distance star, Ralph Schwarzkopf, in the two mile and his inability to do better that third in the mile.

Whittaker Runs Good Two-Mile.

He finished behind Walter Mehl, of Wisconsin, and Mel Trutt, of Indiana, in the mile and dropped out on the fourteenth lap of the sixteen lap two-mile test. The two-mile saw the defeat of Mehl, who barely beat the diminutive Trutt in the mile. Mehl ran easily behind Stan Whittaker, of Ohio State for fifteen laps, apparently unconcerned over the fact that Whittaker had opened up a thirty yard advantage with a steady, brisk pace. He began his sprint on the last lap fully confident that Whittaker had run himself out, but the Buckeye only increased his pace and lead, finishing with a tremendous kick to win by forty yards in 9:26.6.

Taking the lead from E. Holderman of Purdue going down the backstretch of the last lap and surren-

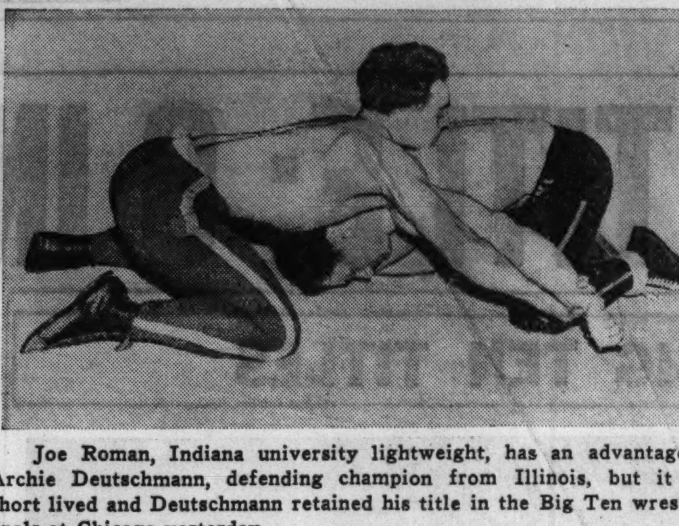
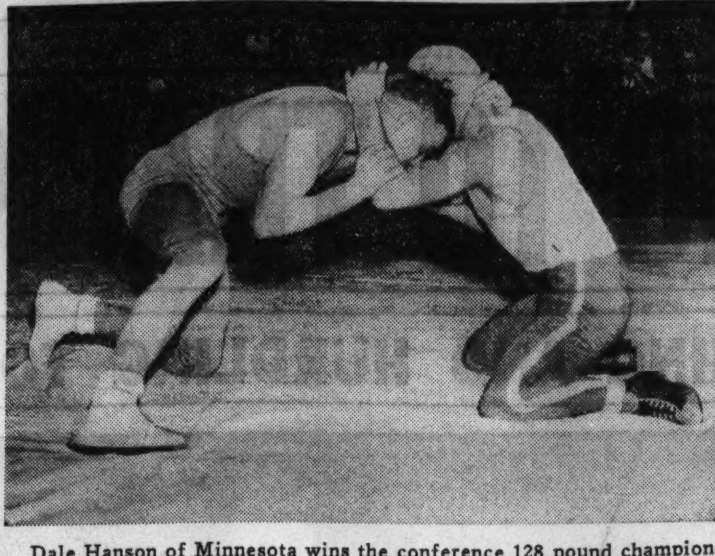
To the Winners Go the Western Conference Mat Titles



Joe Roman, Indiana university lightweight, has an advantage on Archie Deutschmann, defending champion from Illinois, but it was short lived and Deutschmann retained his title in the Big Ten wrestling finals at Chicago yesterday.



Dale Hanson of Minnesota wins the conference 128 pound championship by defeating Bob Antonacci of Indiana. Only one champion, Deutschmann, successfully defended his title in the annual meet.

Indiana university's wrestlers won the Western conference championship in the final round of the annual conference meet in Bartlett gymnasium at the University of Chicago yesterday. Scoring in six of the eight weights, the Hoosiers piled up 27 points for a clear victory over Michigan, the defending champion, and Illinois, which tied for second with 19 each.

Seven new individual champions, three of them from Indiana, emerged from the finals. One previous titleholder, Archie Deutschman of Illinois, retained his crown in the 136 pound division.

Traicoff Reverses 1938 Result.

Not a single fall was recorded in the eight title bouts, as the contenders worked cautiously. Three bouts were decided by one point. One of these single point decisions went against Don Nichols of Michigan, defending champion at 175 pounds, who lost his title to Chris Taicoff of Indiana, 3 to 2. Last year Traicoff lost to Nichols by one point.

KANSAS STATE WINS

Ames, Ia., March 11.—[U. P.]—Kansas State college won two firsts and five second places today to beat Iowa State, 30 to 29, for the Big Six conference wrestling championship. Oklahoma was third with 16 points, and Nebraska fourth with seven.

The biggest upset of the meet was credited to Iowa State when Howard Buck took the conference heavyweight title from Elmer Hackney of Kansas State. Hackney, Wildcat football star, had been considered Olympic material.

Although the Cyclones captured four individual championships, it was the second consecutive year they have been beaten for the title by one point.

Chicago Keeps Fencing Title; Illinois Second

University of Chicago fencers retained their Western conference team championship for the third consecutive year yesterday in the Medinah club gymnasium, but in individual competition the Maroons had to be satisfied with one title as Ohio State and Northwestern broke the Chicago monopoly.

Gustafson of Chicago won a decision over Wilmot of Illinois in the last match of the saber round robin competition to clinch the championship in this event. Naylor of Northwestern had an easy time winning the epee title. In the foils class Chaikin of Ohio State and Groh of Northwestern were forced to meet in an extra match to decide the winner. Chaikin defeated Groh 5 to 4 in the fence-off.

Chicago qualified five men for the finals on the basis of the percentages in team competition with Northwestern second with three, Illinois third with two and Wisconsin and Ohio State fourth with one each. Purdue, the only other team entered, did not qualify a man.

In capturing its fifth conference championship in six years, Chicago won twenty and one-half matches while losing nine and one-half decisions. Illinois placed second with sixteen and one-half victories against thirteen and one-half losses. Northwestern and Wisconsin tied for third with sixteen and fourteen. Ohio State ranked fifth with eleven victories and nineteen defeats and Purdue placed sixth with ten and twenty.

Individual championships:

FOILS—Won by Chaikin, Ohio State; Groh, Northwestern, second; Chapman, Chicago, third; George, Chicago, fourth.

EPEE—Won by Naylor, Northwestern; J. Corbett, Chicago, second; Rosberg, Northwestern, third; C. Corbett, Chicago, fourth.

SABER—Won by Gustafson, Chicago; Wilmot, Illinois, second; Weingartner, Illinois, third; Stiennon, Wisconsin, fourth.

Led by Mary Jane Huber, who totaled 610, a team of sports stars, using six individuals, defeated the Pabst Blue Ribbon team of five men, 3,102 to 2,968 last night in a special bowling match on the O'Farrell alleys in Waukegan. An overflow crowd saw the match, proceeds from which will go to the Catholic Youth organization's fund to aid blind children.

Carl Stockholm, who was scheduled to bowl with the sports stars, was taken ill just before the match and was replaced by Mike Murphy of the C. Y. O.

Paul Krumske led the Pabsts, champions of the Chicago Classic league with 706.

In addition to Miss Huber and Murphy, the sports stars used Red Faber, Tony Kaufmann, and Ned Day. Capt. Eddie Krems alternated on a Pabst team that included, besides Krumske, Joe Sinke, Les Fuller, Ad Carlson, and Herb Freitag.

Sophomore Paul Fina, who won the horizontal and parallel bars for Illinois, was the only double winner. Harry Koehnemann, also a sophomore, was first in the side horse for Illinois, and Capt. Joe Giallombardo successfully defended his tumbling title as the Illini swept the event. Giallombardo also defended his all-around title successfully, nosing out Capt. Erwin Beyer of Chicago. Michigan Wins Sixth Straight Title in Track dering it to Trutt going into the last turn, Mehl lunged ahead of the diminutive Hoosier to triumph by inches in the mile. His time of 4 minutes 16 3-10 seconds was 4.8 seconds off the conference record set by Fenske on the same track a year ago.

Mehl ran in eighth place for the first half mile, during which Andy Knapp of Purdue set the pace. He moved up in the second half and Trutt remained close behind. Holderman led by eight yards going into the final lap but faded fast as Mehl and Trutt began to sprint. Trutt matched the long legged Badger stride for stride to the last turn, where he sprinted ahead. Mehl's longer stride beat the little Hoosier as they raced down the stretch.

John Davenport of Chicago, defending dash champion, surrendered his title. Davenport, the conference outdoor as well as indoor sprint champion, finished fifth in the 60 yard final, in which Myron Piker, a sophomore from Northwestern, was the winner in 6.2 seconds.

Kauffman Is Fourth.

Allan Smith of Michigan, who finished third last year, was second, and third place went to J. Allen of Indiana. Frank Kauffman of Wisconsin, who finished second last year, was fourth.

Teufel, the defending champion, set a burning pace in the quarter mile, taking the lead from Howells on the first lap. On the second and last lap, however, he weakened and Howells came on to win and reverse the order of finish in last year's final. Howells' time was 49.4 seconds, half a second slower than the record. Ross Cochran of Indiana was third and Bob Faulkner of Michigan fourth. Howells' teammate, Jack Sulzman, was fifth.

Lefty Lee Grissom, trying a comeback this year after his arm and ankle trouble in 1938, was the victim of the first inning scoring, which was climaxed by Johnny Hudson's homer over the right field fence with the bases filled.

The game's other homers were hit by Fred Sington of Brooklyn and Billy Myers of the Reds, both in the third.

HUTCHINSON PITCHES TODAY.

Lakeland, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Fred Hutchinson, high priced rookie, will make his debut as a Detroit Tiger pitcher in an intra-squad game tomorrow, Manager Del Baker said tonight. The 19 year old right hander won twenty-seven games and lost five last season for the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league. Opposing Hutchinson will be the veteran Vernon Kennedy. Tommy Bridges and Archie McKain also will work.

BEES' REGULARS WIN.

Bradenton, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Danny MacFayden and Jimmy Turner each allowed one run and one hit today as the Bees' regulars defeated the Yannigans, 9 to 2, in a seven inning game. Lou Fette and Lief Errickson were on the mound for the Yannigans, the regulars getting three hits off Fette in three innings and eleven off Errickson.

SENATOR REGULARS WIN.

Orlando, Fla., March 11.—[U. P.]—With rookie pitchers hurling for both teams, the Washington regulars scored a 15 to 3 victory over the Yannigans today. Twelve of the regulars' runs were made off Tom Baker, big right hander obtained from the Giants.

Most impressive of the six rookie pitchers were the diminutive Cuban Rene Menteagudo, and Arnold Anderson, right hander from Charlotte.

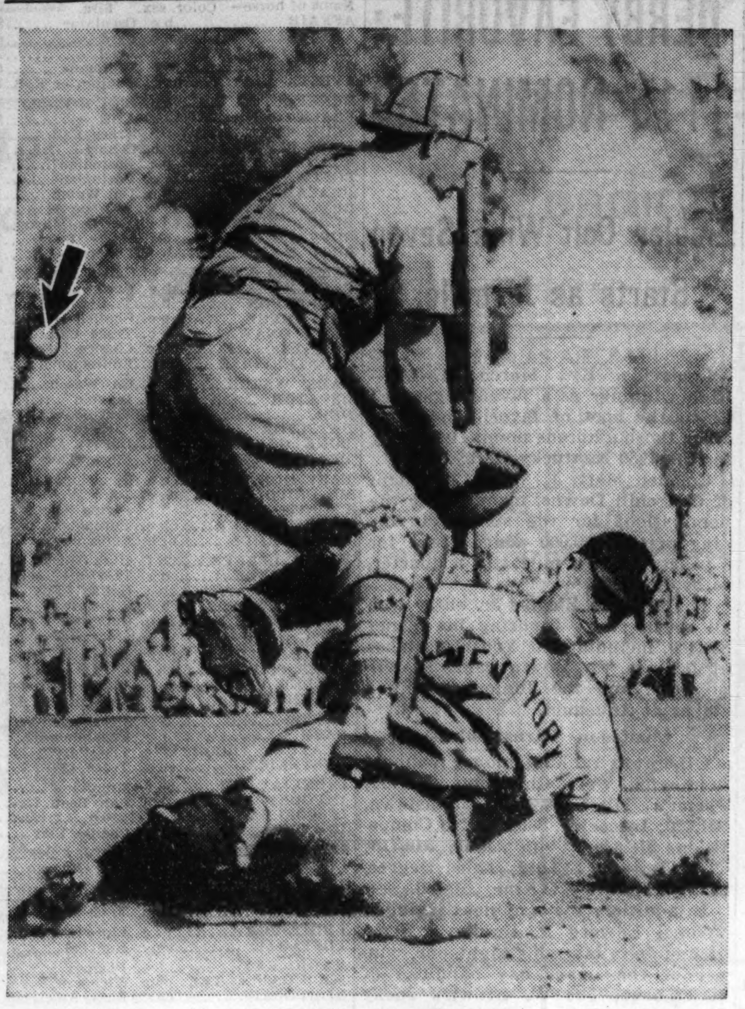
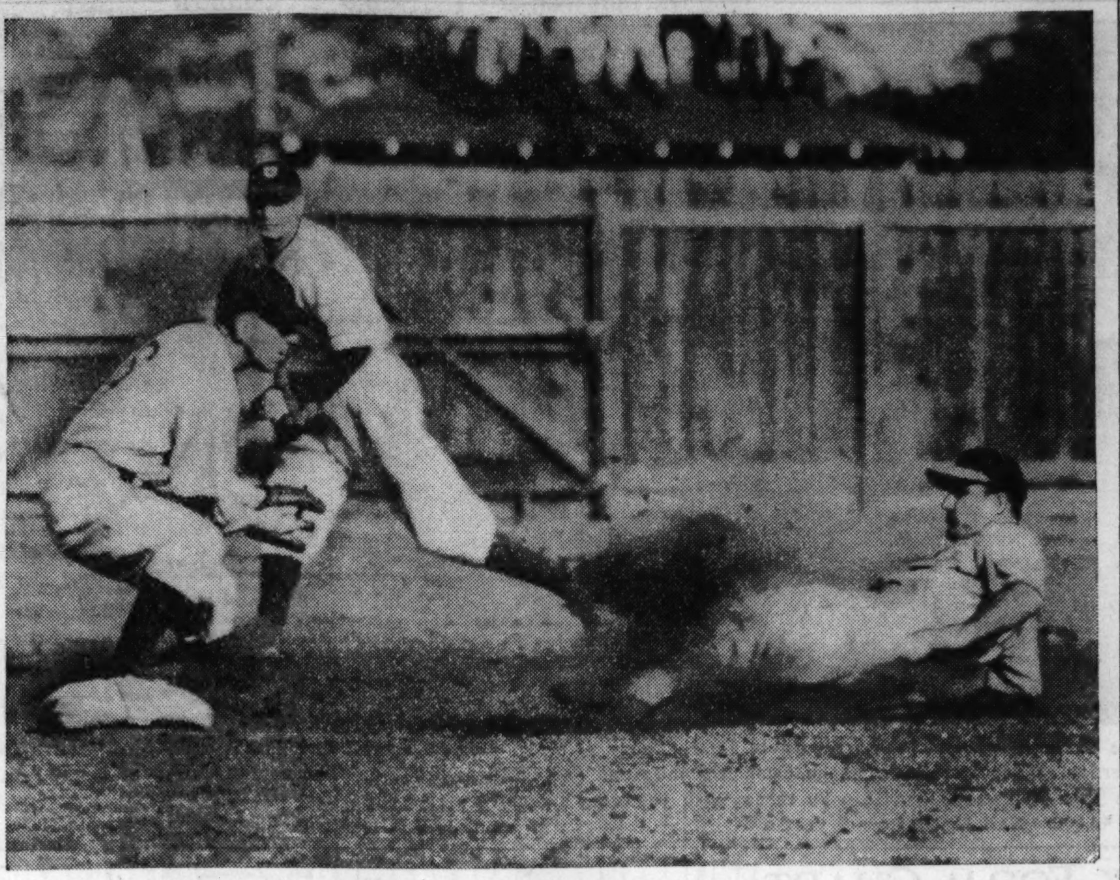
BASE RUNNERS HAVE THINGS THEIR OWN WAY



In this fourth inning action in yesterday's game between the Yankees and Cardinals in St. Petersburg, Fla., Ellsworth Dahlgren, Yankee infielder, slides safely home as Don Padgett, Cards' catcher, misses the ball (arrow). The Yankees won, 6 to 4.



French Bordagaray, Cincinnati Reds' outfielder, slides safely under Johnny Hudson, Dodger shortstop, in the sixth inning of yesterday's game in Clear water, Fla. Pete Coscarart, second baseman, runs over to back up Catcher Luke Sewell's throw from home. The Dodgers eventually won, 8 to 6.

Sox Put Joe Kuhel in Cleanup Spot for Opening Game Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 11. — The White Sox will line up tomorrow for their first bit of 1939 competition and give at least a hint of how they will be arranged on April 18 when the regular season opens. The occasion for the maiden lineup is a benefit exhibition with a local semi-pro team. Such opposition doesn't sound formidable, but these boys play all winter and they can make it tough even for major leaguers at this time of the year. Last spring the Sox were able to trim them only 2 to 1 and eleven innings were needed to complete the job.

The lineup as arranged by Manager Jim Dykes, who today took his own personal workout by sitting on the clubhouse veranda to avoid a sweat producing sun, is about as close as he could get to a regular layout at the moment because his prospective left field regular, Gerald Walker, is convalescing from the flu. The inability of Walker to take a part in the show also prevented the manager from placing his hitters in the order he has in mind for the future.

How They'll Line Up.

Dykes' original intention was to have Rookie Tom Fleming serve the middle three innings, but the Hammond, Ind., delegate has some sort of ache in his right arm. Osborne, who will sub for Fleming, is a bulky high school kid who isn't under contract, but wants to prove he has future possibilities.

Sox fans who recall that Kuhel hit only .267 last season are advised not to become alarmed over the first baseman's assignment to the so-called cleanup position. Kuhel will be in that spot tomorrow for two reasons. One is that Dykes is undecided about two other possibilities for No. 4 in attack. The other is that Kuhel will vanish after a few innings along with the other regulars, and to avoid confusion for the scribes Kuhel was placed where the manager wants to see what can be done by Merv Connors. Connors sparkled with his three homers in a game last fall and power is what every manager admires.

Walker, Appling Possibilities.

The eventual batting setup, unless Connors in the many exhibitions to follow should make the boss happy by wrecking present plans, will see either Walker or Appling in the fourth notch. The drawling Walker always could hit well and for distance until he came to the Sox from Detroit. Appling is a talented bat wielder but doesn't carry the power threat which is a big factor in the cleanup responsibility. If Connors doesn't pin back the ears of the Cub and Pirate pitchers during the impending barnstorming tour, Walker probably will be batting fourth and Appling fifth when the season gets under way.

Dykes is becoming more enthusiastic every day about Silvestri, his No. 1 choice for the wide open catching job. Dykes loafs around the training field, countering the jibes of the newspaper men and apparently giving no thought to what is going on in the shape of exercises. He sees everything and at the same time holds his own conversationally on subjects foreign to what his eyes are doing. In this way he learns a lot because the athletes believe he is otherwise occupied. In that fashion he has learned in the last few days that Silvestri, purchased from St. Paul, really has a swell throwing arm. The fear is that Silvestri will not hit, but the Sox finished third in 1936 and 1937 without any hitting aid from this particular department.

Whitehead Bears Down.

The limping squad showed further improvement today. Between the heat and the absence of soreness from the knee which was badly dented early in the week by a batted ball, John Whitehead shed his rubber shirt for the first time and pitched as if he had no worries except fear of overbidding in his recently acquired fondness for contract bridge. Lefty Lee, who had to restrict himself yesterday because of a twisted ankle, felt good enough to take over his share of pitching in batting practice.

After the regulars have displayed themselves tomorrow before the curious spectators, Dykes will run in about everybody he sees in a Chicago uniform, pitchers excepted. Ollie Bejma, ex-Brown; Rookie Joe Gedzius, and Charley Ferries, an unsigned collegian, will be given employment on the infield.

Larry Rosenthal, Rupert Thompson, who is minus two teeth extracted last night as the possible solution of his hip pains, and even Walker, may sub in the outfield. Mike Tresh and Norm Schlueter will follow Silvestri behind the plate.

WILDCATS BEGIN SPRING FOOTBALL DRILL TOMORROW

Sixty candidates will report to Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern tomorrow for the opening of spring football practice. Most of the players will be sophomores, as a number of the varsity letter men are participating in track and baseball.

Among the letter men expected to report are Oliver Hahnenstein, Paul Soper, Iggy Mesec, half backs; Jay Laskay and George McGurn, full backs; Paul Hiemenz, center; Don Guritz, Joe Lokanc, and Hal Method, guards; Frank Young and Corne Aarts, tackles, and Ted Grefe and Bob Daly, ends.

Most of the forty freshmen who won numerals last fall and who will be varsity candidates next season are expected to turn out. The drills will continue for five weeks and will conclude with a regulation game between two picked teams.

Football, lacrosse, and boxing are the other sports in which Bergner has won an "N." Bergner is the first athlete at the academy to win four major letters in one year since 1918.

Illinois Learns Philadelphia Sews Up Army-Navy Game

Washington, D. C., March 11.—(AP)—Nothing can prevent the 1939 Army-Navy football game being played in Philadelphia, if Philadelphians choose to hold the army and navy athletic associations to their contract for staging it in their Municipal stadium.

An Illinois delegation in Washington learned this today after examining the seven page document which has been in the war and navy department files since Dec. 14, 1936. The Illinois representatives are seeking to move this year's game to Chicago so that Kankakee, Ill., friends of both team's captains may witness it. The captains, Allen Bergner of the Navy and Harry Stella of the Army, played football together on the Kankakee High school team.

Digging Up the Facts.

Puzzled by the "always in Philadelphia" provision of the present contract, the Illinois folk wondered how Chicago managed to get the game in 1926. They found the old contract, in force just prior to 1926, much simpler than the new document. The old contract bound only two parties, the army and navy athletic associations. It provided merely that the game be played each year in some city that was neither south of Baltimore, Md., nor north of New York City. It fixed dates for the games, but not places.

This agreement was terminated in 1926 by mutual consent. Chicago was chosen for the 1926 game, apparently because it had a new stadium, Soldiers' field, to dedicate, and some members of congress, including Fred A. Britten, formerly chairman of the naval affairs committee, worked hard to get it there.

The new contract gave a hint of what may be expected of Chicago if the game should be played there.

Must Insure Fans for $500,000.

Philadelphia has to provide $500,000 insurance for the more than 100,000 persons who witness the game, with a maximum of $50,000 for any one person killed or injured, in a fully paid up policy.

The contract even fixes the breadth [minimum 17 inches] and the width [minimum 9½ inches] of each seat in the temporary stands. The city also is responsible for protecting the players on the bench, seeing that the refreshment vendors are neatly attired and that they do not shut off the spectators' view, suppressing the sale of unofficial programs [the navy sells the official ones and splits the profits with the army], watching parked cars and curbing ticket "scalpers."

For all of this, and much more, including the use of the stadium, the city receives $10,500 a game, payable in ten days after the game has been played.

EIGHT QUINTETS COMPETE TODAY IN C. Y. O. TOURNEY

Formidable opposition faces the outstanding contenders for championship honors today in the Ninth Annual C. Y. O. Basketball League tournament as the semi-final games will be played in St. Bernard's gymnasium, 6550 Harvard avenue, and Queen of Angels' gymnasium, 4420 N. Western avenue.

In St. Bernard's gymnasium, St. Anselm, conquerors of St. Dorothy, 1938 lightweight champs, meets St. Lawrence, and St. Anthony of Cicero, which defeated St. Elizabeth, winners of the heavyweight title in 1937 and 1938, plays Holy Cross of 45th street.

In Queen of Angels' gymnasium St. Sylvesters will play St. Ita, and in the heavyweight game at Immaculate Conception [North Park], a team which has averaged more than fifty points a game in each of its last three tournament games and which scored 108 points in a single game during the seasonal play, encounters Holy Rosary [Italian].

Kainrath Will Meet Cellura in White City

Fight Decisions

At New York—Mickey Jerome beat Paul Lee [8]; Johnny McHale beat Babe Orgovan [8].

Jackie Cellura, Detroit featherweight, and Frankie Kainrath, last year's Chicago Golden Gloves bantamweight title holder, have been matched to meet in an eight round contest in White City Friday. In a co-feature of eight rounds Johnny Brown, 128 pound stable mate of Kainrath, and also a former Golden Gloves 118 pound champion, is paired with Eddie Dempsey. The Cellura-Kainrath match was substituted for a scheduled encounter between Pete Lello and Lew Jenkins. Jenkins asked to be excused because of illness.

Dempsey, 1938 Chicago Golden Gloves 126 pound champion, has lost only two decisions in twelve professional appearances—to Leone Efrati in Park Casino Nov. 9 and Gene Spencer, also in the Casino, Jan. 25. In a subsequent meeting Dempsey held Efrati to a draw in eight rounds in the 124th Field Artillery armory Nov. 29. Dempsey also battled to a four round deadlock with Spencer in the Casino Nov. 23.

Since the Spencer setback Dempsey conquered Joe Law Feb. 3, Earl Gibbs Feb. 20, and Sam Scully March 8.

Marty Simmons, pudgy middleweight of Saginaw, Mich., is in town for a ten round contest with Nate Bolden in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Joe Lubin and Clarence Brown, Chicago heavyweight rivals, meet in the five round semi-final.

Anglers! Time Draws Near for Smelt Parties

BY BOB BECKER.

Lake Michigan smelt soon will make thousands of fishermen conscious of the fact that the time is at hand to polish up their tackle, look over the new fishing tackle items in the sporting goods stores, and begin to dream about the first 1939 rod and reel expedition to northern lakes and streams.

Although the small, silvery smelt isn't a fish for hook and line anglers, its annual migration from Lake Michigan to creeks and rivers around the lake does make outdoor fans fish minded and it also furnishes a lot of fun for thousands who enjoy the experience of dipping smelt from a stream and seeing the big crowds that come to the northern creeks and rivers for the annual smelt-dipping parties.

Celebrate Spring Runs.

Both Michigan and Wisconsin again will celebrate the spring runs of smelt this year. The parade of these small but edible fish from Lake Michigan into the rivers gives cities and towns a chance to hold parties. Everybody is invited to join the fun and take all the smelt they want by means of small scoop nets. As a rule, these parties come during the early part of April along the west shore of Lake Michigan, although no one can tell what spring and the smelt will do about getting together. The little fish move out of Lake Michigan when the weather is to their liking. If we have an early spring with many warm days during the last week in March the smelt may come out of Lake Michigan rather early. If the season is late the annual spring migration is retarded.

This year we may expect to hear of new streams being used by this abundant fish. The smelt constantly are extending their range and using new streams for spawning. Years ago Michigan seemed to have a monoply on these smelt runs. Today big schools are using Wisconsin rivers. Marinette and Menominee enjoy runs in the Menominee river. Escanaba, Mich., has smelt coming into a number of streams in that vicinity. Creeks in the upper peninsula of Michigan attract schools of smelt. They are appearing in northern Illinois, too.

Not Native to Inland Waters.

Smelt are not native to inland waters. They were introduced from the Atlantic coast, found their fresh water life ideal, and now are so numerous that they're something of a nuisance to the commercial fisherman. Just as in the ocean this species [mordax] leaves the salt water to enter rivers and streams to spawn, so the smelt in Lake Michigan [yielding to the age-old instinct] leave Lake Michigan to ascend creeks in the spring. As early as 1622 Capt. John Smith noticed the big runs of smelt on the Atlantic coast and wrote: "Of smelts there is such abundance that the savages doe take them up in the rivers with baskets, like sives." Today, 300 years after Capt. Smith was on the east coast, the same statement may be made of our Lake Michigan smelt.

AMERICANS END HOME PLAY FOR HAWKS TONIGHT

Chicagoans to Close with Three Games Away.

Games Tonight

Montreal Canadiens at Detroit Red Wings.

New York Americans at Chicago Blackhawks.

Boston Bruins at New York Rangers.

The home part of the 1938-'39 schedule of the National Hocky league will come to an end for Chicago hocky fans with a final clash between the New York Americans and the Blackhawks tonight in the Stadium.

Remote Chance to Qualify.

All that remains to the Hawks after the most disastrous season of their career is the title of world champions, which they will hold until the end of the rapidly approaching playoffs, which get under way a week from Tuesday, with Boston, New York Rangers and Americans, Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens, and the Detroit Red Wings as probable starters. There is a remote chance the Blackhawks may qualify for the playoffs and a chance to retain the Stanley cup, but in order to do so the Hawks would almost have to win all their remaining four contests while either Montreal or Detroit was losing the rest of its bookings.

The outstanding factor in the Hawks' downfall was the dismal showing of the high priced former star trio of the defunct Montreal Maroons, Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco, and Earl Robinson, who were counted upon to strengthen the Hawks 25 per cent, and who to date have accounted for a puny total of fourteen goals.

Through with Northcott.

Northcott will not accompany the team on its last trip. The once great left winger has seen his last days as a player with the Hawks. What disposition the Hawks' owners will make of Northcott has not been announced.

MAPLE LEAFS WIN, 5-1

TORONTO, Ont., March 11.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs stepped into third place in the National Hocky league tonight with a 5 to 1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings. The victory put Toronto one point ahead of the New York Americans.

The Wings scored their first goal on Toronto ice this season. Carl Liscombe got it in the third period, back-handing a shot that bounded in from a group of players after Toronto had taken a 3 to 0 lead. Gordon Drillon led the Leafs with two goals.

It was Charlie Conacher night in honor of the Detroit right wingman, and he supplied a good part of the show. After receiving a small truckload of gifts from Toronto fans, he put on a wild if brief fist fight with Bingo Kapman of Toronto in the second period. Lineups:

MIGHTY FALL IN WINDY CITY BOWLING UPSET

Budweisers Lose Two and Slip to Second.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

It's a sad experience when the opposition encountered is hotter than a scorching day in August, but an old story to the Budweisers, who were dislodged from first place in the Windy City Major Bowling league.

In their last series the Budweisers were matched with McKesson's Old Crow, a team which is going nowhere in the league. The McKessons started off with 987, which, while only average, beat the Budweisers by nine pins. In the second game the former pace setters clicked with 1,104, but that was just eighteen short of the inspired McKessons. The Budweisers came back with another 1,104 and were greatly relieved when their opponents could count up to only 1,053.

The two defeats dropped the Budweisers into second place, behind the Whitecaps, who could not get a game of more than 962 while winning a pair from the fourth place Mineralites.

On a majority of occasions this season the Budweisers have been able to outscore opponents even when they were at their hottest, or their league record would not be 44 won and 25 lost.

Classic League.

Schlitz will try to defend first place against the runner-up Monarchs tonight when the Classic league bowls in the Lorraine Arcade, 810 North Cicero avenue, at 8 o'clock. Schlitz has won 49 games and lost 26, while the Monarchs have 48 victories and 27 defeats. In averages, however, the Monarchs have a 3 point lead over Schlitz. In other matches the Baby Ruths will meet the Thompson Restaurants, Pabst will oppose Power House, and Prager will take on Ambrosia.

North End Traveling League.

The Michelobs dimmed the title hopes of the Joseph L. Gills in the North End Traveling league when they trimmed them five out of six games in a double-header. Every game was decided in the last frame, and the winner's margin never exceeded twenty-five pins. In the second match at the Gold Coast drives the Michelobs totaled 3,137 for a clean sweep with the aid of a 732 series by Frankie Kartheiser. The Birk Brothers won two close games from the Keeleys to move into second place, and Fox De Luxe took a pair from the Farwals and now hold first place by five games.

On South Side Alleys.

The leaders maintained their positions in the Stevenson Major league, with the Budweisers and Eden Insurance each taking three victories. They are a game apart. Hank Kluge of the Edens knocked off high series of 683, aided by a 256 game. . . . Charles Wensel's 691 led the Bruck Major league. EL CHICO MADE DERBY FAVORITE; 115 NOMINATED

Ziegler Colt Wins Seven Starts as Juvenile.

Louisville, Ky., March 11.—(AP)—High winnings as a juvenile gave El Chico the spot of favorite over 114 other thoroughbreds nominated today for the 1939 Kentucky Derby.

Colonel Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs, made public the nominations for the sixty-fifth running of the $50,000 added stake for 3 year olds at a mile and a quarter, to be run May 6.

Challedon Earns $67,700.

Other top ranking money winners nominated were Challedon, $67,700; Porter's Mite, $66,940; Johnstown, $31,420; Inscoelda, $30,950; No Competition, $18,640; Time Alone, $16,715; T. M. Dorsett, $15,080; Third Degree, $12,605, and Yale O'Nine, $10,750.

In addition, the nominees included Colonel Edward R. Bradley's Benefactor; John Marsch's Lightspur, winner of the Labor day handicap at Hawthorne; Joe W. Brown's Jocky Club stakes champion, T. M. Dorsett; Mrs. B. Franzheim's Xalapa Clown; Herbert Woolf's Technician, winner of the Flamingo stakes, and Stablemate of Lawrin, winner of the 1938 Derby; A. A. Baroni's Touch And Go, and F. A. Carreaud's Time Alone.

Twelve More Than Last Year.

The nominees, twelve more than listed last year, collectively accounted for approximately $350,000 last season in about 1,000 starts. The field is the largest since 1934 when 124 were named.

Colts, as usual, dominated the list with ninety-two. There are seventeen geldings and six fillies listed. The fillies have won only once—in 1915 when Regret came home. The gelding division boasts such victories as that of Exterminator, Old Rosebud, Paul Jones, and Clyde Van Dusen.

Ciencia, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, is missing from the nominations list as are Volitant, Allegro, and Eighty-thirty. All are considered of Derby caliber.

Woodward Names Johnstown.

The East plays its usual strong hand with William Woodward of New York, who won the Derby with Gallant Fox and Omaha, nominating Johnstown, winner of the Breeder's Futurity at Keeneland, and five other thoroughbreds.

Then there is Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, winner of the 1931 race with Twenty Grand, represented with five eligibles including Roll And Toss, Third Degree, and Lostagal.

Seven candidates were named by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, the largest individual nomination.

The far west banks on Joy Boy from the stables of Movie Magnate Louis B. Mayer. The King ranch of Texas, owner of Ciencia, placed in nomination for the Southwest Brazado, Equestrian and Drawstraws.

Other nationally known patrons represented with nominees include Samuel D. Riddle, whose War Admiral topped the field in 1937; Warren Wright of Chicago owner of Calumet farms and Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

QUOTED AT 4-1 AND 6-1

St. Louis, Mo., March 11.—(AP)—Winter books of rival betting commissioners today made El Chico the favorite nominee for the Kentucky Derby May 6 at 4 to 1 and 6 to 1.

The odds as reported:

James J. Carroll: El Chico, 4-1; Johnstown, 10-1; Technician and Benefactor, 12 to 1; Challedon, 15-1; Hash, Third Degree, Impound, Porter's Mite, and Xalapa Clown, 20-1; Ariel Toy, Deil, No Competition, Our Mat, and Smart Trick, 30 to 1.

Charles Burke: El Chico, 6-1; Challedon and Technician, 10-1; Johnstown and Benefactor, 12-1; Porter's Mite, Impound, and Xalapa Clown, 15-1; Third Degree, 20-1; T. M. Dorsett and Ariel Toy, 25-1; Hash, 30-1, and others all the way to 1,000 to 1.

ONE BIG AIR LINE HAS NET PROFIT AS OTHERS LOSE

American Shows Big Gain in Trafic.

American Airlines, Inc., the only one of the three transcontinental air lines that operated at a profit in 1938, had net income of more than $200,000, in that year, aviation men estimated yesterday. Earnings for 1938 will be officially announced in the annual report to stockholders this week.

Except for slim net income of $4,589 in 1936, last year marked the first time in American's five year history that a profit was earned. The line's profitable operations were in contrast with the record of the air line industry as a whole, which had an aggregate net loss in 1938 of more than $2,000,000. American's two transcontinental competitors accounted for a big part of the total loss. United Air Lines' loss was estimated at $1,000,000 and Transcontinental and Western reported a loss of $773,000.

Trafic Rise Brings Profit.

Aviation interests said two reasons for American's profit were a substantial increase in passenger trafic and the compensation the company received for carrying mail.

American's revenue passenger miles—a reliable indicator of dollar revenues from passenger fares—increased 14.5 per cent in 1938 to a total of 141,000,000. This compared with an increase of 10.5 per cent for United and a gain of 8 per cent for TWA. A minor factor in boosting American's trafic total was the eastern hurricane, which crippled rail and auto transportation late in September, and caused American to put all available planes on its service between Boston and New York. On the basis of passenger miles flown, American is the largest air line in the country.

Payments by the government to American for air mail amounted to $3,325,000 in 1938 [with December estimated]. This was an increase of 12 per cent over 1937 payments.

United Gets Most Mail Pay.

United Air Lines was paid more for air mail in 1938 than any other air line, receiving $3,505,000, a gain of 7 per cent for the year. American's rate of mail pay on a pound basis, however, was larger than the rate paid to United and to TWA. On a pound basis, American received 10.8 cents per hundred pound mile. TWA received 8.3 cents, and United, 7.3 cents. The computation of rates on a pound mile scale takes into consideration both the pounds carried and the number of miles the mail is transported.

Actual payments are made not on a straight pound mile basis, but on contracts with the postoffice department made under the air mail act of 1934. Base rates paid vary with the different lines, and have been revised from time to time by the interstate commerce commission.

If all three transcontinental air lines had been paid at the same pound mile rate in 1938, their operating results would have been materially different.

Mail Pay Is Important.

For example, if American had received the same pound mile rate that was paid to United, American's mail pay would have been about $1,000,000 less than the actual payments. This reduction would have meant a sizable loss instead of a profit last year for American. On the other hand, if United had received the pound mile rate that American actually did receive, 10.8 cents per hundred pound mile, the resulting boost in United's mail pay would have turned its loss into a profit. The mail pay boost would have totaled $1,700,000.

TWA would have received $600,000 more than its actual mail pay receipts if it had been paid at the 10.8 cent rate.

The question of revising the basis for mail payments is now in the hands of the Civil Aeronautics authority, the government agency set up in August, 1938, to supervise the nation's aviation industry. Adjustments in mail pay will probably be made in the next few months by the CAA. American, however, is not expected to gain as much relatively as TWA and United from the CAA's adjustments, because American is already being paid at a higher rate than the other two.

Prospects Are Improved.

The prospects of American Airlines for 1939 are better, according to aviation experts. Revenue passenger miles flown in the first two months of 1939 gained 30 per cent over 1938. The line's seat occupancy in January and February, which are seasonally poor months, ran more than 50 per cent of capacity, compared with 45 per cent in the same 1938 months.

Expecting further increases in travel for 1939, the company is buying ten new Douglas 21 passenger planes at a cost of more than $1,100,000. Five of these will be delivered this month and five in May.

Payment for this new equipment, it is believed, will be made entirely, or mostly, from cash funds on hand. American's cash was built up substantially last year with the help of profitable operations. Although the actual profit was small in comparison with the cost of the ten new planes, all operating costs did not represent cash outlays.

The 1938 "book charge" of about $1,400,000 for depreciation did not eat into cash resources and so American has some funds available for new planes. In the past the company has financed some new equipment purchases on loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation by mortgaging its equipment to the RFC and making payments on the loans in monthly instalments.

Delivery of the ten new planes will bring American's fleet to fifty-five Douglas planes.

Stock Advance Saves Young's C. & O. Control

Robert R. Young.

New York, March 11.—[Special.]—Robert R. Young will remain in control of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad at least until June 1 as a result of the rising stock market, it was learned today.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York announced that the value of collateral for certain bond isues [this collateral is the key to control of the C. & O.] has risen sufficiently to keep Young in command.

For more than a year Young and Guaranty Trust have been struggling for control of the C. & O., profit making kingpin of the former Van Sweringen railroad system. Young's chief weapon in his fight with the bank has been his chairmanship of Alleghany corporation, holding company through which he controls the former Van Sweringen properties.

Control Rests on Collateral.

The struggle centered around collateral deposited by Alleghany under indentures for three issues of Alleghany bonds. When the market value of this collateral fell below a certain point, Guaranty Trust, as trustee for the three Alleghany issues, was to assume the right to vote the stock held as collateral. This collateral consisted mostly of C. & O. common stock.

Before the recent upturn in the stock market corrected the collateral deficiency, Guaranty Trust announced its intention to vote the C. & O. stock for the purpose of naming directors which it favored. The move set off a long series of legal skirmishes in which Young a few weeks ago appeared to have been the loser.

Above 150 Per Cent Level.

Today, however, the bank announced the results of a special appraisal of the collateral, made yesterday. In the case of one of the three bond issues, the 5s of 1944, the collateral stood above the 150 per cent level which must be maintained if control is to be kept out of the trustee's hands.

Young's spokesmen said this means that control of 630,000 shares of C. & O. common and 780,000 shares of Chesapeake corporation will be in Young's hands at the annual C. & O. meeting in April.

The date for the regular appraisal is May 1. After that date, Alleghany corporation has thirty days in which to act on the matter of collateral. This, Young's representatives said, means that Young cannot be deprived of the votes before June 1, even if the value of the collateral declines again.

Others Below Needed Value.

Guaranty's new appraisal showed that the collateral behind the 5 per cent bonds of 1944 was worth $47,965,852 on March 9. This was 152.4 per cent of the par value of the $31,466,000 bonds outstanding. On Feb. 1 the collateral had a market value of only $40,939,330, or 130.1 per cent of the par value of the bonds. The value of collateral for the other two Alleghany issues still is below the 150 per cent ratio.

There was said to be a possibility that Guaranty will contend that it still is entitled to supervise the collateral for all three issues until its value equals 150 per cent for all three.

BOND MARKET IS STEADY AFTER LONG ADVANCE

New York, March 11.—(AP)—The bond market, after a two week rise that carried some corporate issues to the highest levels in eighteen months or longer, held about steady today. Dealings at $5,517,500, face value, were at the fastest rate for any Saturday since Dec. 31.

United States government loans closed 6/32ds of a point to 5/32ds lower. Week-end slackening of purchases by banks and other financial institutions was regarded as a prime factor in slightly easier prices for some maturities.

Chilean issues rose 1 and 2 points higher. Rumors were heard in the financial district that a United States trade credit for Chile, similar to that arranged this week for Brazil, was in the making.

FSCC to Make Another Big Purchase of Flour, Cereal

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation has been authorized to buy up to 315,000 more barrels of whole wheat graham flour and 180,000 more of whole wheat breakfast cereal for relief distribution, the agriculture department said today. It is expected to buy 160,000 barrels of the cereal next week, 80,000 barrels of the flour the following week, and the rest later.

Stocks of Chicago Banks Irregular in Dull Trading

Chicago bank stocks were erratic last week in a listless market, dealers said. Closing bids yesterday were from $3 to $10 higher than those a week ago.

Large Chicago Stores Reduce Butter Prices

Another cent was deducted from the retail price of top grade butter by some of the large Chicago store organizations yesterday, passing along to consumers the full reduction of 3½ cents made in wholesale prices within three days.

Some stores had cut the price of 92 score butter to 24½ cents a pound and others were charging 25 and 25½ cents. Executives of one of the larger chain store organizations said another adjustment may be made tomorrow.

Store officials said these prices are 7 cents below those of a year ago. The cut is the direct result of the federal government's decision, announced late Wednesday, to discontinue temporarily its support of the wholesale market.

Top Grades Are Lower.

The 92 score grade fell ¼ cent to another five year low at 22 cents a pound yesterday, and 90 score standards declined an equal amount. Other classifications maintained a steady tone, indicating the market had finally adjusted itself to the shock of the government's action.

Although the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation remained out of the open market, it purchased 1,003,244 pounds of butter previously acquired by another government financed agency, the Dairy Products Marketing association.

These agencies for more than a year had been the principal buyers in the market and made Uncle Sam the biggest butter broker in the world. The new acquisitions by the federal corporation raised to 45,655,303 pounds the total amount of butter bought from the marketing association for distribution to relief clients.

Butter Futures Steadier.

Reflecting a more normal wholesale market, butter futures steadied on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, closing unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, with the November delivery up to 22⅝ cents.

Although the government has held secret the prices paid by the FSCC, traders believed they were at least 5 cents a pound higher than the present wholesale levels for fresh butter. The 92 score grade brought 29 cents a pound at wholesale at this time last year.

Retailers are taking a loss on the butter now being sold and will not realize their normal margin until present supplies are exhausted, officials said. The bargain prices, however, were said to have stimulated sales.

Egg futures closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher in response to firmer country prices.

AM. TELEPHONE JANUARY GROSS ABOVE YEAR AGO

Gross income of the American Telephone and Telegraph company increased to $9,025,996 in January, from $8,738,322 in the opening month of 1938, it was announced yesterday.

Net income was $563,609, against $750,663 in January, 1938, but the statement pointed out that the total did not include dividends from operating subsidiaries, the principal source of the parent company's income. Dividend income is shown in the quarterly reports.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company reported January net income of $1,053,200, compared with $845,139 a year ago. The New England Telephone and Telegraph, had January net income of $622,465, against $538,648 in January, 1938.

Drovers Packing to Build $50,000 Wholesale Plant

Construction of a $50,000 wholesale plant will be started soon by the Drovers Packing company at 3650-52 Normal avenue, William E. Russell, president, announced yesterday. The project, part of an expansion plan which included the recent purchase of a plant at Ottawa, Ill., will be undertaken as soon as a building adjoining the Chicago plant, damaged by fire 2 months ago, is razed, he said. Slaughtering operations will be centered at Ottawa.

MANY TURN FROM WINE TO TOBACCO, BUT HOLD TRUE TO SODA FOUNT

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Americans are turning from wine and liquor to tobacco, but are remaining true to the soda fountain, January sales of chain drug stores indicate. Compared with a year ago beverage sales fell 12 per cent, tobacco rose 2 per cent, fountain sales were steady, and "all other" sales dipped 1 per cent.

The value of the whole averaged about the same as a year earlier, but was 28 per cent less than in December. The cost value of inventories at the end of the month was 1 per cent less than a year before, but unchanged from December.

BIG N. Y. TRACTION SETTLEMENT HAS SOME 'CATCHES'

New York, March 11.—[Special.]—The "final" Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit agreement announced by Mayor F. H. La Guardia on March 1, under which the city would acquire the rapid transit, power plant, and street car and bus properties of the company for $175,000,000, contains several vital reservations, it was learned today.

The agreement reached by negotiators was never reduced to writing. It is only a "gentlemen's agreement" by the negotiators to recommend to their principals the approval of the tentative plan now being whipped into shape bw the transit commission with the coöperation of the other parties involved.

If the city acquires the B. M. T. properties under the agreement announced by Mayor La Guardia it must also pay for all capital improvements made by the private owners since June 30, 1938. They now total about $750,000. The city will also have to make provision for replacing the depreciation fund and for meeting the maturing instalments on the purchase price of the buses operated by the B. M. T. in Brooklyn and parts of Queens.

COAL MINERS ASK INCREASED WAGE, SHORTER HOURS

New York, March 11.—(AP)—Members of the United Mine Workers general policy committee disclosed today they would demand higher wages and shorter hours in the joint wage conference with soft coal mine operators of the Appalachian region next Tuesday. The present two year contract, which expires March 31, provides a thirty-five hour week and average daily wages of $6 in the northern states and $5.60 in the south.

Thomas Kennedy, secretary of the C. I. O. union, said a report drafted today was a "comprehensive program" to guide the negotiating committee in the joint conference. Committee members expressed hope that a 10 per cent wage increase and thirty hour week would be written into the new contract.

OIL SETTLEMENT WITH MEXICO IS BELIEVED NEAR

MEXICO CITY, March 11.—(AP)—An agreement appeared near today between the Mexican government and American oil operators on compensation for properties which were expropriated last March 18.

The government press bureau in a statement issued after a conference between President Lazaro Cardenas and Donald Richberg, counsel for the companies, said they "discussed principles which will serve as a basis for solution of the problem." They agreed to resume conversations next Tuesday.

One informant said the former owners may resume operation of the properties, but that they would remain under ownership of the Mexican government.

SEC Seeking More Power Over Markets

W. O. Douglas.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—Regulations designed to give the Securities and Exchange commission greater police powers over stock exchanges are being considered informally by SEC officials, it was learned today.

This became known as stock brokers from various sections of the country prepared for a two day conference here beginning Monday. The brokers will gather to discuss a program for modification of the federal securities acts and regulations.

Police Power "on Agenda."

William O. Douglas, chairman of the SEC, has told friends that there is on the agenda of unfinished business between the stock exchanges and the SEC "the problem of better coordination and allocation of the policing and disciplinary functions between the exchange and the commission." The quotation was confirmed by an SEC official close to Douglas.

At the same time SEC officials denied that relaxing of rules governing short selling represented "retreat" in the commission's regulatory program. The new short selling regulation was greeted in some quarters of Wall street as a step by the administration to achieve harmony with business.

What Brokers Will Ask.

Some brokers who have been studying federal laws say that stock exchange brokers, at their meeting here next week, will specially ask for:

1. Clarification of the laws to define just what is "manipulation" of security values, which the 1934 act banned.
2. Simplification of the data required for registration of securities with the SEC.
3. Modification of the provisions of the SEC act aimed at disclosure of market operations of corporate "insiders."

The meeting will be attended by representatives of stock exchanges in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, and Los Angeles. SEC officials have not been invited.

INDUSTRY STEPS AHEAD FOR FIRST TIME THIS YEAR

Responds to Spring Trade Impetus.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

American business was on the march last week. It responded to the impetus of spring consumer interest with a slight rise in the average of industrial activity, the first such gain this year. For many weeks the trend had been steadily downward.

Production of automobiles, electric power, and cotton textiles, the volume of retail and wholesale trade, railroad freight loadings, and bank clearings expanded in the latest period reported upon.

Steel output and new financing declined slightly, and residential and engineering construction dropped.

Other Favorable Developments.

Favorable statistical reports were bolstered by other encouraging developments. The railroads increased their orders for new equipment, and announced they had hired more men in February. In the textile markets, buying of cotton goods was the liveliest for any week so far in 1939. The securities markets improved, with rallying influences including a relaxation of the Securities and Exchange commission's rules on short selling.

Retail trade rose sharply and was 3 to 10 per cent above the level of a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported. The review said wholesale buying of apparel and other seasonal lines increased, but added there was no important change in retailers' cautious policies.

Auto Output and Sales Gain.

Automobile production totaled 84,095 units, compared with 78,703 in the preceding week and 57,438 in the 1938 week. Sales were reported to be increasing.

Electric power output rose to 2,244,014,000 kilowatt hours, or 0.8 per cent more than in the preceding week, and 10.2 per cent more than in the corresponding period last year. These figures were for the week ended March 4.

In the same week railroad freight loadings increased to 598,691 cars, or 38,082 more than in the preceding week, and 45,799 more than in the 1938 period. Bank clearings in the week ended March 8 totaled $5,584,983,000 in twenty-two leading cities. This was $146,460,000 more than a week earlier, and 17.6 per cent more than a year earlier.

Steel Production Eases.

Steel production was at the rate of 55.1 per cent of mill capacity, against 55.8 a week earlier and 29.9 per cent a year ago.

A steadying effect on the steel industry was expected to result from announcement by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation that prices for the second quarter will continue at first quarter levels, with a few exceptions in the case of large quantity sales. Carnegie-Illinois is the largest operating subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation. Other steel makers usually follow Carnegie-Illinois in the matter of prices.

Engineering construction awards totaled $36,575,000, the lowest for any week this year. Totals a week and a year earlier were $85,605,000 and $79,324,000, respectively.

New financing amounted to $19,064,970, against $19,827,699 and $7,334,018 a week and a year ago.

Industrial Index Rises.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity rose to 87.4 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier it was 87.2 per cent and a year ago it was 68.2 per cent. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.

Treasury Financing Jolts Bankers.

The federal treasury announced the terms of its March 15 refunding operation, calling for the highest premiums placed on a treasury issue in years. The terms startled and disappointed banking circles. Much switching and readjustment in the market resulted, and seventeen outstanding treasury issues sold at record high levels.

With the flow of funds into new industrial enterprise still far below normal, significance was attached to a study showing that the government has absorbed most of the investment capital in this country in the last

Survey Shows Tax Bites Deep Into Business

BY JOHN FISHER.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—[Special.]—A striking example of how the government is eating into American business through taxes is shown in a survey announced today by the National Association of Food Chains. This disclosed that taxes paid by the food chains exceeded their net profits by more than one-half.

"Food chain companies make their profits in pennies but have to pay their taxes in dollars," said John A. Logan, president of the association.

Taxes $1,112 Per Store.

"Total federal, state, and local taxes on our member companies for the year 1937-'38 averaged $1,112 on each store. State and local governments retained four-fifths of this, leaving one-fifth for the federal government. Out of every dollar of sales government took 1.78 cents for taxes, while the average net profit of the companies was only 1.13 cents."

Logan also commented on the ownership of chain grocery stores as revealed in the survey.

"Ownership of 37 leading chain food companies rests with 76,189 common and preferred stockholders who reside in every state of the union," he said. There are more than four stockholders, or owners, for each store. These companies distributed last year 97 per cent of their net earnings as dividends to stockholders living in thousands of communities.

"All of the companies had humble beginnings as single stores in twenty-one different states. Two-thirds of present company presidents and the great majority of all executives rose from the ranks.

Proves Opportunities Exist.

"This demonstrates that opportunities still exist in American business life. Chain stores development is a striking example of the romance inherent in American initiative and free enterprise."

Logan said that total salaries, as revealed by the survey, of all officers and executives of these chain food companies average only $4.40 per week per store. These same men, he said, are responsible for the welfare of more than 100,000 employés and the investments of more than 76,000 stockholders.

STEEL OUTPUT TO BE CUT IN CHICAGO AREA

Steel operations in the Chicago district this week will falter from the steady advance which reached its peak at 55.6 per cent of ingot capacity a week ago.

The Dow-Jones financial service stated yesterday that mills in this section scheduled a decline of two points to 53.6 per cent starting tomorrow. The indicated rate is 3.5 points above that of four weeks ago and compares with 28.7 per cent a year ago.

Pittsburgh district mills, however, continued the upward trend in production. Operations were scheduled to start tomorrow at 51.2 of theoretical capacity, a rise of 2.2 points above that of last Monday. The projected production ratio is the highest for the section since the recovery started in July, 1938.

Youngstown district ingot operations will climb seven points this week to 54 per cent from 47 per cent last Monday.

FIVE OIL CASE INDICTMENTS ARE DROPPED BY U. S.

Madison, Wis., March 11.—(AP)—The federal government, on motion of its attorneys, has dismissed indictments in the major oil company conspiracy cases against five defendants who never were brought to trial, it was disclosed today. Federal Judges Patrick T. Stone of Madison and Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., signed papers dismissing John A. Brown of New York, vice president of the Socony Vacuum company; D. W. Harris of Shreveport, La., general manager of the Louisiana Oil company; Bernard J. Majewski of Chicago, vice president of Deep Rock Oil company; Keith Franshier, petroleum editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, and R. G. A. Van Der Woude of New York, president of the Shell Union Oil corporation.

BENDIX AVIATION 1938 EARNINGS TAKE TAILSPIN

But Better Results Are Expected.

Vincent Bendix.

The Bendix Aviation corporation yesterday reported a sharp drop in 1938 earnings. In issuing the report, however, Vincent Bendix, president, said present business conditions indicate the company should fare substantially better in 1939.

Reduced 1938 income was also shown in the annual reports of a number of other companies, including the Westinghouse Air Brake company, Spiegel, Inc., and the Allied Chemical and Dye corporation.

Bendix Aviation's 1938 net income fell to $156,048, equal to 7 cents a share, from $2,255,133, or $1.07 a share in 1937. Comparison of the full year's report with that previously published for the first nine months indicated sharp improvement in the last quarter of the year.

Predicts Gain This Year.

"Present business conditions," said Bendix, "indicate that the corporation's earnings should improve substantially in 1939 over 1938. We feel confident that the year will bring greater volume and improved efficiency, which should result in an increased average of earnings per employé."

Bendix told stockholders that whereas the number of employés had risen from 3,514 in 1932 to 10,116 in 1937, employment had dropped to 7,752 last year. The 1938 pay roll was $12,362,416, against $16,174,909 in 1937.

The corporation is still dependent to a large degree on the prosperity of the automobile industry, although it has expanded into the aviation and other fields. It produces a variety of automobile and airplane devices, household washers, and other equipment.

The company previously reported a net loss of $406,205 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1938. The first nine months of 1937 had produced net profits of $2,255,133, or $1.07 a share.

Westinghouse Earns Less.

Consolidated net profit of the Westinghouse Air Brake company for 1938 was $993,816, including $167,063 profit on the sale of securities. This was equal to 32 cents a share and compared with 1937 net profit of $6,253,380, which included $1,504,268 profit on the sale of securities, or $2.01 a share.

Westinghouse Air Brake's 1938 net sales totaled $14,153,415, against $33,180,562 in 1937, a drop of 57 per cent. Pointing out that the company's prosperity depends entirely upon that of the railroads, George A. Blackmore, president, said:

"If the railroads receive deserved recognition and constructive assistance through legislative action, our business should show substantial improvement in 1939."

Spiegel, Inc., Earns Less.

Spiegel, Inc., a Chicago wholesale company, reported net profit of $1,613,663 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1938. In 1937 the company had net earnings of $2,571,403. After preferred dividends these earnings equaled 91 cents and $1.66 a share on common stock in the respective years.

Spiegel's 1938 sales declined to $49,732,671, or 11.37 per cent below the 1937 level of $56,117,734, but the trend has been upward thus far in 1939. Modie J. Spiegel, chairman of the board, told stockholders that "results for the first quarter of 1939, as indicated by the accumulative 20.06 per cent increase in January and February sales, should be decidedly

STOCK MARKET LOSES 'PEP' AND PRICES DECLINE

Most Losses Are Small; Steels Weaken.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 11.—Lacking the zip that characterized trading in recent sessions, the stock market today worked irregularly lower. Losses in the majority of issues did not exceed fractions, however.

Observers were inclined to attribute the easier tone to the usual week-end desire of traders to lighten commitments. Caution also was believed called for by signs of new disturbances in central Europe.

The market gave little response to the easing of the short selling rules by the Securities and Exchange commission which was announced yesterday after the close of the market. Also reported but not reflected by prices were estimates indicating that there would be an advance in the operating rate of the steel industry next week.

Steel Stocks Are Soft.

Steel stocks were soft. Bethlehem eased a fraction on the initial sale and extended its loss to more than a point before the final bell rang. United States Steel declined a large fraction.

Several stocks were affected by special developments. Loft gave up a point in an active market on the publication of the Pepsi-Cola earnings report for the first nine months of last year. Coppers firmed up as traders took advantage of the sell-off earlier in the week on the Chilean tax program.

The feature of the market was supplied by American Telephone and Telegraph, which climbed to another new high on a gain of 2¾ points. This stock, according to analysts, is a prime beneficiary of the continued ease in money rates.

Aircraft Issues Weak.

Although aircrafts took a turn for the worse on word that the British were putting out feelers for a disarmament conference later in the year, this development, on the whole, was regarded as a constructive one marketwise.

The motor shares were quiet and fractionally lower. Modest advances were retained by Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward.

Turnover for the short session was 533,085 shares, against 1,210,000 on Friday. A total of 332 issues declined, 170 advanced, and 182 were unchanged.

EXPORT DEMAND FOR SOY BEANS BOOSTS PRICES

Market Highest in More than Seven Months.

Soy beans continued on the upgrade yesterday with all deliveries selling at the highest prices in more than seven months. Reports that Europe was bidding for soy beans for shipment from Chicago after the opening of lake navigation were responsible for the upturn. Closing trades were at gains of 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel.

Exporters asked Chicago handlers yesterday to offer 100,000 bushels of soy beans. The bid price indicating that business could be done at a premium as compared with the May delivery. However, no sales were reported. No. 2 yellow beans in the sample market sold at 90 cents, or 2 cents a bushel above the May future.

Beans Sought by Europe.

It was intimated that the soy beans were wanted for some northern European country, presumably because of inability to secure offerings from Manchuria at a satisfactory price. The latest official returns to the bureau of agricultural economics indicate the price of Manchurian soy beans is the highest of the current season.

Illinois farmers yesterday asked Chicago handlers to bid for soy beans that would be harvested in September or October. Illinois normally raises more than 50 per cent of the commercial bean crop of the country. Because of the steady increase in the demand for soy beans the record crop harvested in 1938 has been disappearing at an unusually rapid rate. Exports of soy beans from Chicago in 1938 aggregated 2,305,000 bushels, compared with 1,282,000 bushels in 1937.

Wheat Firmer; Corn Lower.

Wheat and other grains held within very narrow price limits yesterday. Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Corn futures were ⅛ to ¼ cent a bushel lower.

Little attention was paid by American traders to an advance of ¾ to ⅞ cent a bushel in the Liverpool wheat market. The upturn abroad was reported to be the result of week-end short covering.

Speculative interest in the grain markets declined to a new record low last week. Average daily sales of all grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were 6,900,000 bushels. This compared with an average daily volume of 8,000,000 bushels during the preceding week and 23,700,000 bushels during the corresponding week in 1938.

U. S. TO TRY NEW STAMP SCHEME FOR RELIEF FOOD

Private Retail Grocers Asked to Aid Plan.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—(AP)—The agricultural department will ask private retail grocers next week to coöperate with the government in an experimental venture in distribution of food to families on relief. The plan, a departure from present distribution methods, would enable relief clients to obtain surplus farm products from the corner grocery rather than from governmental relief agencies.

The proposal will be submitted Monday and Tuesday to a committee of the Food and Grocery conference, a national organization of private wholesalers and retailers.

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, an agriculture department agency, now buys surplus products and distributes them free through relief organizations.

Distributes Purchasing Power.

Under the new method, officials said, the corporation would distribute purchasing power rather than the surplus food itself. This purchasing power would be in the form of stamps of two colors—probably orange and blue.

When a relief client called for his money, he would be permitted to take part of it in stamps. For example, if he received $40 a month and spent $16 of it for food, he could take $24 in cash and $16 worth of orange stamps. He then would be entitled to blue stamps worth half the value of the orange stamps, or in this case, $8.00.

The client could use the stamps for purchase of food at any grocery store. The orange stamps could be used to buy any food item, while the blue ones could be used only for purchase of commodities designated by the agriculture department as surplus. The latter commodities would include citrus fruits, poultry and dairy products, fresh vegetables, lard and possibly other pork and fish products.

Gets $24 Worth for $16.

Thus the client would get $24 worth of food supplies for $16. The plan is designed to increase food consumption of relief families. The orange stamps would be used to make sure that a family continued to spend as much for food in the future as in the past. Otherwise the family might substitute food bought with the free blue stamps for commodities it otherwise would buy with its cash allowance.

The stamps would be redeemed by the government—the orange ones by the agency making the relief grant an dthe blue ones by the FSCC.

Officials said the new policy probably will be tried out first in five or six "representative" cities.

Likes Pictures.

Evanston, Ill., March 10.—As an avid reader of THE TRIBUNE financial section daily, it is with pleasure I notice increasing use of half column inset pictures of business and financial leaders. If the reader is able to study the character of men who make public pronouncements concerning their business, he is better able to interpret the news.

The picture lends force to the article and it is much nicer to have a mental picture from a photograph of the man who makes a statement.

Business Bits

Harvey B. Jordan.

Harvey B. Jordan, an employé of the American Steel and Wire company for twenty-five years, has been named vice president of the company. He succeeds M. W. Reed, who was appointed chief engineer of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation. Both firms are subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation. Jordan started as a chemist in the wire company's central furnaces and docks in Cleveland. In 1937 he was named assistant vice president. He is 43 years old.

Two of the oldest houses in Wall street, H. Content & Co. and Henry Zuckerman & Co., will merge April 1 as Content, Zuckerman & Co. The two firms have been identified with the financial district for more than half a century. Harry Content, senior partner in the firm that bears his name, holds the oldest seat on the New York Stock exchange. He was admitted in October, 1885.

Laurence Greenebaum.

Laurence Greenebaum, treasurer of Mandel Brothers, has resigned to join Walter E. Heller & Co., instalment bankers and factors of Chicago and New York. Greenebaum was with the department store for the last ten years.

C. J. Smith, superintendent of the maintenance department of the Gary works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation since 1936, has been named head of the newly created maintenance division at the works.

Lewis A. Cushman Jr. has been elected chairman of the board of the Purity Bakeries corporation.

Paul Smith, vice president of Swift & Co., has been elected a member of the board and the executive committee of the Transportation Association of America.

PORK CHEAPEST FOR THE SEASON IN FIVE YEARS

Meat Declines with Drop of Live Stock Prices.

Housewives who serve pork today as the main course are preparing their dinner at the lowest March cost in five years, live stock men at the Chicago stock yards said yesterday. The lower prices in retail channels have been the result of declines in live costs of hogs, which last week averaged below any corresponding week since 1934.

From the standpoint of value compared with beef, today's pork dinners are relatively the lowest in eleven years for March. Not since 1928 has pork at this time of the year sold so far below beef, a review of the meat markets disclosed. Last week's average price of hogs at $7.70, off $1.75 from the same week last year, stood $2.60 below the week's steer average for last week.

Steers Above Year Ago.

The steer average for the week at $10.30 was $1.85 above the 1938 price. A year ago packers obtained steers for $1.00 a hundred pounds less than hogs. Two years ago hogs cost 40 cents less than steers, and during the three preceding years, 1936, 1935, and 1934, average costs of hogs ran $1.00 to $1.35 above steers. As a result of the decline in hog costs this year packers are able to sell pork, as a whole, at far more attractive prices than beef.

Butcher shop owners late last week paid up to 18 per cent more than a year ago for some cuts of beef. Their costs of various pork cuts ran 5 to 12 per cent lower than in 1938, one of the direct results of the drastic change in live costs.

Hog and Steer Prices Compared.

The following table indicates live costs of hogs and steers at the stock yards last week compared with corresponding weeks in other years:

			Hogs Compared With Steers.
1939	$ 7.70	$10.30	....	$ 2.60
1938	9.45	8.45	$ 1.00	....
1937	10.15	10.55	....	.40
1936	10.05	8.70	1.35	....
1935	*11.75	10.75	1.00	....
1934	*6.70	5.70	1.00	....

*Hog prices for 1934 and 1935 include $2.25 processing tax collected by the federal government.

Meat bills as a whole were below any corresponding week since 1934, as a result of the low level of pork. The higher prices paid for cattle were more than offset by the severe cut in hogs and some decline in lambs. The three classes together made an average live cost for the week of $9.00, compared with $9.10 a year ago and $10.90 two years ago.

Hog prices last week finished at the lowest level in more than a month and showed declines of 15 to 35 cents compared with the close of the preceding week.

The six day average for hogs at $7.70 was off 10 cents. The lamb average for the week was steady at $9.00. The steer price at $10.30 showed 5 cents gain for the week.

EDISON SHARES SET NEW HIGH, THEN RELAPSE

The general trend of prices was slightly lower. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average finished at 11.77, compared with 11.83 Friday.

Middle West, the volume leader, showed a fractional net loss. Abbott Laboratories advanced more than a point to a new 1939 high. Fractional gains established new 1939 peaks for Berghoff Brewing and Peter Fox Brewing.

Erie Railway Shows Loss Against Profit Year Ago

The Erie railroad yesterday reported a net loss of $419,760 for January, compared with a net loss of $949,280 in January, 1938.

PEPSI-COLA COMPANY EARNS ABOUT $10.32 A SHARE IN 9 MONTHS

Charles G. Guth.

Net earnings of the Pepsi-Cola company, soft drink concern, were estimated at $2,700,000 in the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1938, in the first report ever issued by the company. This figure was exclusive of earnings of a California subsidiary and equaled $10.32 a share.

Control of the company is being sought in the courts of Delaware by Charles G. Guth, former president of Loft, Inc., and the present management of Loft. Guth has appealed a decision which would give Loft approximately 91 per cent of the stock.

In addition to awarding Loft, Inc., the ownership of 237,500 shares of Pepsi-Cola Chancellor Wolcott at Wilmington, Del., required that Guth and the Grace Company, Inc., pay to Loft $475,000, representing dividends of $2 a share distributed on this stock in 1936. The court also ordered Guth and the Grace company to account both to Loft and to Pepsi-Cola "for other moneys and profits rightfully belonging to them."

Spending $1,000,000 an Hour.

When the assembly lines in the nation's huge automobile industry are moving at top speed about $1,000,000 an hour is being spent for materials from which the cars are made, the Automobile Manufacturers' association says. This is at the rate of about $20,000 a minute.

In a year when the number of cars produced is high the automobile industry may purchase as much as $2,250,000,000 worth of supplies. Bringing these supplies to the doors of the automobile plants creates a huge transportation business itself in which trains, trucks, steamships, and even airplanes are used.

The raw materials from which the automobile is made come from about every state in the union—from the iron ore fields of Minnesota and northern Michigan and from the cotton fields of the south for example. Then there are the hundreds of parts, including carburetors, pumps, filters, electrical devices and so forth.

There are more than 2,000 distinguishable units in each car, made up of 15,000 pieces. Seeing that each part arrives at the right spot in the assembly line at the right moment is one of the most exacting duties in the automobile plant. A shortage of one item might easily hold up the entire assembly line and an over supply creates storage problems where storage space is a real need. Some items are brought in just before they are needed on the assembly line. Others are carried in stock.

COTTON

Selling by cash houses and less aggressive mill demand resulted in slightly lower prices in cotton futures yesterday. Closing trades were unchanged to .05 cent lower.

Prices in Liverpool were lower, caused in part by closing of spreads with the Bombay, India, market. Reports persisted that shorts in the March delivery at the English market were being squeezed.

Sales of cotton goods in New York the last week were estimated at 60,000,000 yards, or about 200 per cent of the average weekly output of mills.

Spot cotton closed .04 to .05 cent lower with New York, 9.11 cents; New Orleans, 8.80 cents; Houston, 8.70, and Galveston at 8.67 cents a pound. Prices follow:

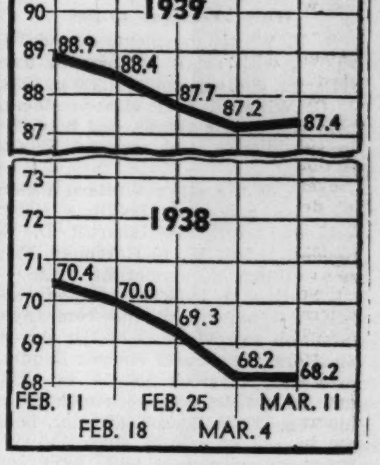
five years. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York said in its annual report that 17 billion dollars went into federal obligations in the five year period and only $1,100,000,000 into corporate securities.

Borden Assails Federal Policy.

The Borden company, dairy products enterprise, told its stockholders government price fixing is retarding milk consumption, increasing prices, and antagonizing consumers. At the same time, a drive went forward in the state legislature to set up a milk control system in Illinois.

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation discontinued temporarily the purchase of butter in the open market. The butter markets reacted to the withdrawal of government support, wholesale and retail prices dropping.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Other developments during the week included these:

The SEC, joining administration efforts to appease business, announced that stock exchange traders would be allowed to make a short sale at the same price as the preceding sale, provided the last sale price is higher than the last different price which preceded it. Under the old rule a security could be sold short only at a price above the last sale price.

U. S. and Brazil Make Treaty.

The United States and Brazil signed a credit agreement designed to promote trade. The Washington government will extend $120,000,000 of credit to Brazil, and Brazil is to revise its exchange rules to facilitate commerce. In the bond market there was a rush to buy Brazilian bonds, which rose 15 to 30 per cent. Resumption of service on the dollar debts is expected.

Newly published statistics for January or February included the following:

The federal reserve board index of industrial production in February was at 99 per cent of the 1923-'25 average, against 101 in January.

Department store sales in February, as reported by the federal reserve board, were 2 per cent lower than in February, 1938.

Idle Increase in January.

Unemployment in the United States increased 7.4 per cent in January as compared with December, according to an estimate by the national industrial conference board, a research organization. It listed 43,667,000 employed, and 10,645,000 jobless. However, the railroads reported they rehired 12,209 men in February, raising the railroad job index to the highest level since January, 1938. The industry had 941,979 employed during February.

STOCK HOLDINGS SHOWN IN FIRMS' PROXY REQUESTS

Western Union's Meeting Scheduled April 12.

Several large companies yesterday sent out proxy solicitations and announced board of director slates which will be voted on at annual meetings of their stockholders. In compliance with Securities and Exchange commission regulations, the proxy statements showed the number of shares of stock held by directors and payments made to officers who are candidates for directorships.

Western Union Telegraph company stockholders, who will meet April 12 at New York City, will vote for twenty-one directors. The ticket includes one new name, that of Eugene M. Geddes in place of Lewis McKisick.

Newcomb Carlton, chairman of the board, held twenty-one shares of common stock and had miscellaneous holdings in subsidiaries. His compensation in 1938 was listed at $62,445.

White Receives $87,220.

R. B. White, president, owned 100 shares, with small holdings in subsidiaries, and was paid $87,220 in 1938. J. C. Willever, first vice president, held twenty-one shares, had holdings in subsidiaries, and received $39,482 last year.

Some of the other Western Union directors and their holdings were: Vincent Astor, 3,500 shares; D. G. Geddes, 12,500; W. A. Harriman, 102; and William K. Vanderbilt, 9,100.

The Bendix Aviation company solicitation announced the company's intention to reëlect all of the eleven directors. It showed Vincent Bendix, president, received $50,457 in 1938, but did not list any stock ownership for him. E. R. Breech, director, held 500 shares of capital stock. V. W. Kliesrath, vice president, held 300 shares and received $29,407 in 1938. Charles Marcus, vice president, was listed as owning no stock. His compensation last year was $34,145. Paul H. Davis, Chicago broker and a Bendix director, held five shares.

Spiegel to Reëlect Board.

Spiegel, Inc., announced it plans to reëlect the present board of nine directors. M. J. Spiegel, chairman of the board, held 2,005 preferred and 170,085 common shares, and received $51,500 compensation. E. L. Swikard, vice president, held 12,000 common shares and was paid $60,061. M. J. Spiegel Jr., vice president and general manager, owned 12 preferred and 42,925 common shares, and received $64,375.

Spiegel stockholders will be asked to approve a profit sharing incentive plan which includes a guaranteed annual wage for employés and a fund to be distributed to the managerial staf.

Investors' Guide

WHEN TO BUY?

An inquirer asks:

"When is the best time of year to buy stock? I have been told that summer is usually best, because so many big buyers are taking their vacations in Europe and elsewhere."

This is one unsound theory—and there are many others—on the timing of stock buying. The "sun spot" enthusiasts, the "spring buying" purchasers and the other seasonal theorists have had difficulty drumming up much of a following.

Stock buying is not a seasonal proposition. Some investors, knowing that many lines of business have their seasonal ups and downs, jump headlong into the assumption that stock prices, too, will jump back and forth with thermometer readings or wind velocities.

Business, for example, normally picks up in the spring—this is a seasonal rise. Stock analysts and buyers, however, have counted in advance on a seasonal pickup. If they expect an upturn that is greater than the usual seasonal rise, they may be optimistic and buy. If it appears to them that business will fall short of the usual spring pickup, they may hold their cash or sell some stocks.

But the time of year in itself has almost nothing to do with stock market prices and prospects. Prices often drop a little in December because of "tax selling," but they may, on the other hand, rise in December, under the influence of some of the many other factors that affect the market.

GENERAL MOTORS.

We have received a number of comments from inquirers on the "General Motors" item of Feb. 25. This pointed out in answer to a question that a $5,000 investment in General Motors in 1919 would by now be worth $35,000 and would have also paid $30,000 in cash dividends.

The natural question which this has raised is: "What comparable stock is there today that will return thirteen times my investment in 20 years?"

Nobody knows. The best of business forecasters are wondering what industry, if any, will boom in the forties as the automobile business did in the twenties. There were less than 2,500,000 cars in the country in 1915. By 1929 there were more than 26,500,000. Who can match this pace?

Many think it will be airplanes. Others say television, although just how and where it will be used is still uncertain. Air conditioning is a possibility. Industrial chemistry, important as it is now, may be many times more so in 1949.

Of course if you are an investor it is not enough to pick the industry. You must find a company that will grow with the industry, as General Motors did. If you think this is easy, remember that of more than 1,500 makes of cars introduced in this country, fewer than 75 are still being produced.

So you may find the right church—but choose the wrong pew.

FUTURE PRICES OF COMMODITIES VARY LAST WEEK

Gains and Losses About Equally Divided.

Commodities traded in the futures markets pursued an uneven price course last week, closing the period with gains and losses about evenly divided.

Most of the metals brought higher prices in comparison with the close of the preceding week. Copper was up 0.04 to 0.10 cent; lead, 0.09 to 0.12 cent, and zinc, 0.05 to 0.96 cent. Tin was 0.10 cent higher to 0.35 cent lower.

Export Copper Higher.

Export copper closed the week at 10.35 cents a pound, against 10.12½ cents at the end of the preceding period. Higher foreign demand influenced the rise in lead prices.

Rio coffee futures were unchanged to 0.12 cent lower, but the Santos contracts advanced 0.05 to 0.18 cent. The advance in sugar ranged to 0.09 cent. Rubber incurred a setback, losing as much as 0.16 cent. Wool tops were marked up 1.2 to 1.3 cents a pound.

This table shows various items of automobile expense at different rates of speed on a 1,000 mile trip in an average car, over average roads with an average driver.

Cost Per Hour Saved

Speed Increase	Cost per 1000 Miles	Time Saved	Cost per Hour Saved
35 to 45	$4.15	6.4 Hours	$.65
35 to 55	$12.45	10.4 Hours	$1.20
35 to 65	$20.75	13.2 Hours	$1.57
45 to 55	$8.30	4.0 Hours	$2.08
45 to 65	$16.60	6.8 Hours	$2.44
55 to 65	$8.30	2.8 Hours	$2.96

Note how little time is saved between driving 1,000 miles at 55 miles an hour and at 65 miles an hour. It's only two hours and 48 minutes. And for this time saving you pay $7.29 in additional operating costs. Figures in both charts are from a study made by the Travelers Insurance company.

FAIR TO DOUBLE MIDWEST TRAVEL TO PACIFIC COAST

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 11.—[Special.]—From the states of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan will come a horde of motorists this summer to see the Golden Gate International exposition here. The management of the fair estimated today that before its gates are closed on Dec. 2 the automobile visitors from this Chicagoland area will approximate 325,600.

This estimate is based upon an anticipated 50 per cent increase in the volume of midwesterners traveling to the west coast this year compared with last. Advance inquiries received by the Chicago Motor club in Chicago and by local clubs in California indicate that such an anticipation is not unduly optimistic.

Site Has No Rival.

The fair here is indeed a tourist attraction. Its site has no rival. It is on a man-made island [later to become an airport] on the route of the $77,000,000 bridge across the bay between San Francisco and Oakland. While the Chicago fair was brilliant in its modern architecture, the exposition here is splendid in a touch of oriental grandeur, its free use of flowering trees, shrubs, and gardens, and its many pools and fountains give it a beauty that many familiar with Chicago's Columbian exposition in the '90s did not find in 1933 and 1934.

Eleven western states are coöperating in urging the Mississippi valley and Atlantic seaboard motorists to drive this way this year. In addition to the natural attractions, including the national parks, tourists are invited to attend fiestas, rodeos, and historical pageants planned by various communities throughout this vast section of America.

Housing Facilities Adequate.

From the exposition's publicity office it is learned that housing facilities hereabouts are adequate and that the hotel owners association has adopted a formal resolution not to boost rates during the exposition. Further information may be obtained by writing Harry Troupe, manager of the exposition housing and information bureau, 532 Sutter street, San Francisco, or the housing bureau of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, Oakland, Cal., or to Peninsulans, Inc., San Mateo, Cal.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Check your lights frequently for safe driving is the advice given by C. W. Jacobs, parts and service manager of Buick. He says automobile headlamps are taken too much for granted. "It is true that all headlamps are carefully inspected and properly aimed and adjusted when they leave the factory," Jacobs commented. "But like any other part of a car they need attention. Defective or improperly aimed headlamps are one of the most common trafic abuses."

W. R. Bellows, vice president and general manager of the Packard Motor Car company, Chicago, recently celebrated his twenty-first anniversary as a Packard executive. Packard factory sales executives in checking service records to see how Bellows' record compared with the records of others found that the average service of all Packard distributors was 15.6 years.

Oldsmobile has been making a series of brake tests at the General Motors proving grounds in Michigan in which a new device called the "robot foot" is used. The device permits accurate comparison of braking efficiency by replacing the driver's foot with the "robot foot." Using the device, a test driver trips a small lever with his toe. The mechanism releases air from a compressed air tank which actuates a piston attached to the brake pedal. Using 90 pounds of pedal pressure, an Olds Six was brought to a stop from 50 miles an hour in 123 feet. The national safety council has established stopping within 151 feet at 50 miles an hour as a safe stopping distance.

Ford recently assembled at its branch plant at Richmond, Cal., the 27,000,000th car to bear the Ford name since the organization was established on June 16, 1903. It is approximately the 5,500,000th Ford V-8 to be built.

W. A. Lindberg, Chrysler color engineer, declares that in good times the public buys a larger percentage of bright colored cars than in bad times. People select their cars to match their moods, he says. When they are confident and cheerful they take the lighter shades, when they are worried they take the darker colors. Recent figures on the Chrysler Royal show that the percentage of black cars sold was 25.8—the smallest in years.

Willys-Overland reports that in a series of tests made with three cars oil consumption was found to average 6,000 miles per gallon. Tests were made over all types of roads.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

THE TOURING INDUSTRY.

Chicago, March 6.—All governmental agencies, commercial organizations, civic associations and newspapers should join in promoting automobile touring this year. Motor travel, involving an annual expenditure of 4.5 billion dollars, is a leading factor in America's economic welfare and 1939 promises to be a boom year with world fairs attracting tourists from all over the country to San Francisco and to New York.

The benefits of circulating tourists' dollars are widespread. They are enjoyed in every cross roads, every village and every city. It isn't just the automobile and gasoline companies nor just the hotels that reap this harvest.

The American Automobile association, as a result of an extensive survey, found that 850 millions went to automobile and allied industries and the same amount to hotels and other lodging places, while a billion dollars was taken in by general merchants in the sale of personal supplies and incidental purchases. The expenditure of 893 million dollars for meals away from home meant something to our food industry. Theaters, golf courses and similar entertainment facilities got 350 million dollars. Sales of refreshments to the motor travelers aggregated 225 millions.

This tremendous spending program has grown with little fostering. Don't you think it's worth cultivating?

HENRY VAN HOOVER.

IN THE WEST.

Chicago, March 3.—I should like to inform "Isolationist" of what he will encounter when driving an automobile to some of our western states. First he will be stopped by border patrol guards who will inspect his baggage, person, and car. After a lengthy search and sometimes illegal seizure of such dangerous contraband as an overripe tomato or egg, he will then be given the privilege of going into these states for five days. If you want to stay longer, you must go to a certain office, and after proving you are not an undesirable alien, they will give you another permit to stay in their state for a limited time.

CHARLES DEMASI.

STREET CAR LIGHT JUMPING.

Chicago, March 3.—I read your comments about "light jumping." You are absolutely right. As a driver on Chicago streets, every day I see such things occur. However, you failed to mention the number of times street cars start up on the amber and even go through the lights after they have changed to red.

BILLION DOLLAR ROAD PROPOSAL RAISES QUERIES

Wide Rights of Way for Parkways Questioned.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 11.—Although this typewriter is 2,250 miles from Chicago, it's not difficult to imagine some of the many questions that motorists of Chicagoland will want answered about the proposal for a billion dollar national deathproof highway construction program as advanced by the American Road Builders' association convention here this week.

In the first place, some one might well challenge the sponsorship of the proposal. The American Road Builders' association has a selfish interest in having as much money as possible spent in highway construction. It's an organization of men in business and professions supported by road building. A critic might point out that the fall of the Roman empire was due in part to its large expenditures for roads, expenditures that boosted taxes and inflated currency.

Must Be Justified Economically.

"I can answer that one," said Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan highway commissioner and president of the national association. "Under this proposal, superhighways would be constructed only where the trafic generated by the new facility would justify the construction on a strictly economic basis without considering the value of lives that would be saved.

"A billion dollar federal revolving fund for such construction during the next twenty-five years would not jeopardize the stability of the American dollar because we suggest a federal tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline to cover the costs."

"Will motorists be willing to pay an additional penny tax on their fuel?" he was asked.

Complaint on Way Spent.

"The complaint of automobile owners," he said, "is against the way their taxes are spent, such as the 170 million dollars last year that went for purposes foreign to streets and highways. In my own state I don't think there would be any serious complaint against the additional ancient tax were the automobile owners assured that the money was going for a maximum benefit to them in safer and more convenient pavement."

In Illinois, Ernest Lieberman, chief engineer of the state highway department, estimates that he will have $8,000,000 for construction in 1940. This includes $4,650,000 of federal aid.

Under the Van Wagoner proposal $195,000,000 from the additional ancient federal tax would be apportioned to the states in relation to trafic volumes. This would give Illinois $12,000,000 a year for deathproof road building. It would increase state highway construction from a total of $8,000,000 to $20,000,000, a jump of 150 per cent, while the total gasoline tax would be boosted from 4 cents to 5 cents, a jump of 25 per cent.

Municipalities Weak Links.

"With the initial deathproof construction concentrated in larger cities, will rural areas support your plan?" Van Wagoner was asked.

"Road building in other years," he replied, "has been devoted mainly to connecting municipalities. Today, the municipalities are the weak links in our motor transportation system. This national program for superhighway construction is the first movement for relief from city congestion and city hazards.

"The cities for years have been paying more than half of all road building revenue. The development of their through trafic facilities is long overdue."

Questions City Parkways.

In Illinois, 69.9 per cent of the state's revenue from the gasoline tax is collected on fuel burned within cities of more than 5,000 population.

"Your proposal," this reporter continued, "suggests that a federal agency assist in acquiring wide rights of way for city parkways. Do you think that taxes derived from motorists should be spent for wide right of way for the benefit, not of trafic, but of the neighborhoods traversed?"

"Motorists should be willing to pay an additional cost for a pleasant environment in which to drive," he replied. "If the additional cost of a parkway rather than a purely utilitarian elevated highway is excessive, the addition should not be born by the motorists, but should be paid by the real estate enhanced by the parkway.

Congress Street Mentioned.

In Chicago, there has been much advocacy for a parkway and much advocacy for an elevated highway from the loop through the west side. Congress street, for historical reasons and because of promotional organization, has been most frequently mentioned as a parkway site. Estimates of cost, varying with proposed designs, have placed the parkway at from twice to twenty-five times as expensive as an elevated pavement to deliver the same series to trafic.

"Funds derived from motor taxes," said Herbert R. Anderson of Chicago, president of the Illinois Road Builders association, "should not be spent on features of a superhighway designed solely for enhancement of abutting realty values." In building a parkway, he continued, "the motorists should not pay more of the cost than they would have to pay for the same service that might be obtained from elevated highway construction. The additional cost should properly be borne by special assessment on the real estate receiving the special benefits.

"Motorists taxes should be jealously guarded. They should be conserved for pavements of maximum benefit in convenience and safety for automobile travel."

BLUE ISLAND HOST TO NATION'S YOUTH

IRELAND'S SONS AWAIT TRIBUTE TO ST. PATRICK

Hibernians toGather at Loop Party.

Mrs. Mary McWhorter.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, organized several centuries ago to defend the faith that St. Patrick brought into Ireland, will observe the feast day of its patron Friday evening with its 59th annual celebration in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel. The entire first floor parlors will be reserved for Irish games, according to announcement last week by Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter, Cook county president of the Ladies' auxiliary. Robert E. Brennan, Irish minister to Washington, and Mayor Kelly will be special guests.

The ancient order first came into existence when the British parliament passed penal laws to ban the Catholic religion from Ireland. Loyal sons and daughters of the faith secretly banded together to protect their disguised bishops and priests. Mass, the principal Catholic worship, was said in caves and on hillsides while members of the Defenders of the Faith stood guard against the approach of the redcoats.

Cause Finally Wins.

The famous Irish patriot, Daniel O'Connell, was successful in having the penal laws revoked in 1829, and the organized Defenders of the Faith changed their name to the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Julius Caesar had called Ireland "Hibernia" because he considered the island a perfect place to hibernate during the cold winters of Gaul.

Southwest side members of the auxiliary who will assist in the arrangements are Miss Mary Heron, Mrs. Catherine King, Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick, Miss Alice Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Josephine Bermingham, Miss Mary J. COUNCIL RIVALS RENEW BATTLES IN THREE WARDS

Leaders in Primary Muster Votes.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

After a brief lull in political activities after the February primary election, aldermanic campaigns were reopened last week in the 3d, 16th, and 18th wards. These are the only southwest side wards in which no single candidate won a majority of votes in the first election.

Thus the choice of representatives of these wards in the city council for the next four years remains unsettled. The two leading candidates in each ward are now opponents in run-off battles, to be decided at the polls on April 4, the day of the mayoral election.

In the other eight wards on the southwest side, seven sitting aldermen were reëlected, while one, Ald. John Egan [13th], insurgent Democrat, was unseated by Michael P. Hogan, regular Democrat. The latter will take his seat in the council after the next mayor has been inaugurated.

Splits Cause Run-off.

Splits in regular ward organizations in every case necessitated run-off elections in this section of the city, a study of official returns from the primary disclosed.

In the 3d ward it was strife in the G. O. P. ranks. Ald. Robert R. Jackson, Republican, was swept out of office through the combined opposition of his own committeeman, former G. O. P. Congressman Oscar De Priest and Deputy Coroner Benjamin A. Grant, standard bearer for the regular Democratic forces. De Priest and Grant are the run-off candidates.

Of a total vote of 22,901, Grant was the leader with 9,756 and De Priest was second with 6,159. Ald. Jackson was a poor third with 4,955. Four other candidates got only 2,031 among them.

It was the division of the G. O. P. strength which defeated Ald. Jackson and gave Grant first place on the ticket, observers pointed out. Either of the Republicans receiving full support would have been close to a majority with a safe lead over the Democrat.

De Priest Still a Power.

Despite the latter's present margin, experts give De Priest a fair chance of emerging victorious next month. A former alderman and party leader for many years, he is still a powerful political figure among Chicago's Negroes. Since 1934, when he was ousted from the national legislature in the Democratic landslide of that year, he has been an unsuccessful candidate for various public offices.

In Grant's favor, however, is his support by the regular Democratic machine which has shown increasing power in the colored section. Undoubtedly, Mayor Kelly will speak strongly for him. The mayor had been unable to support him openly before the primary because of the embarrassment he would have caused Ald. Jackson. The latter, although a Republican, has been friendly with the city hall administration.

Ald. Terence Moran in the 16th ward was forced into a run-off by a margin of thirty-nine votes. He received 14,017 out of a total ward vote of 28,111. He needed 14,056 for a majority.

Boyle Surprises Observers.

Assistant State's Attorney John S. Boyle, his run-off opponent, got 11,812, while the only other candidate in the race, Scott M. Hogan, Republican, received 2,282. Boyle was the Courtney candidate and the single assistant state's attorney to survive the first election.

He showed surprising strength in a ward that had been considered one of the chief strongholds of the regular Democratic organization. Moran has been a member of the council for more than twenty years and in the last three elections he won handily the first time out.

The total vote four years ago was only 16,221, of which Ald. Moran got 11,460. But this year the Courtney-Kelly struggle for control of the Democratic party drew more voters to the polls. Hogan, onetime G. O. P. stalwart, made a determined fight in behalf of his party.

In the run-off Boyle can expect support from Republican workers on the theory that every vote for him will be a vote against Mayor Kelly. It is reported G. O. P. voters will be urged to support Dwight H. Green and the young state's attorney. Boyle's backers, members of the Courtney organization in the ward, were severely shaken in their first clash with the strong regulars but he was busy last week rallying them for what may well be his last stand.

Fails in Courtney Ward.

Ald. Harry E. Perry [18th], among State's Attorney Courtney's cohorts in the city hall, enters the run-off campaign as the underdog. He ran 2,897 behind Bernard J. O'Hallaren, the regular Democratic organization candidate. Thus Ald. Perry failed to carry Courtney's home ward for the defeated mayoral candidate.

That there was a hard fought campaign in the 18th is indicated by the 33,397 vote for aldermanic candidates, one of the highest totals in the city. O'Hallaren got 14,115; Ald. Perry, 11,218, and nine other candidates, 8,064.

The incumbent received 13,552 as an unopposed candidate four years ago.

STUDENTS JOIN TO AIR VIEWS ON WORLD PEACE

Two Day Conference to Open Thursday.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Miss Lenore Geweke.

Not choosing to be fodder for tomorrow's guns, representatives of the youth of the nation will assemble this week at a two day conference of the International Student society in Blue Island. This will be the first convention of its kind ever sponsored by high school students in the United States to promote world friendship and world peace.

As a reward for being chosen as the most active chapter in the country last year, the Blue Island Community High school will be host at the conclave. Registrations have already been received from units of the society in Colorado, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Ohio, Nebraska, Maryland, and Illinois.

Organized seven years ago the International Student society now numbers 150,000 members in 105 countries of the world with an increasing rate of 14,000 members yearly. Twenty-four thousand students are enrolled from the United States.

Chapters in Chicagoland.

Chicago and suburban chapters include Parker, Lane, Lindblom, Morgan Park, Schurz, St. Scholastica, Waller, Chicago Heights, Bloom Township, Crete, Riverside-Brookfield, and Blue Island Community High schools, Tilden Technical High school, River Forest Roosevelt Elementary school, North Park Junior college, Loretto academy, and Thornton Township High school and Junior college of Harvey.

The convention will open at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with Robert Neukirch, president of the Blue Island chapter, as chairman. The invocation will be read by the Rev. A. C. Nesmith, after which the Community High school band will present a short concert. H. L. Richards, superintendent of the school, will welcome the assembly and Dr. N. H. Crowell, international president of the society, will speak on "World Peace and Understanding Through Friendly United Youth."

An informal dance for all delegates will be held Thursday evening in Lincolnshire Country club near Crete.

Forum on Mexico.

"Scenic and Historic Mexico" will be the subject for discussion led by Dr. Crowell at the opening session at 9 o'clock Friday morning. The Paul Dunsing folk dancing group will present native dances of Sweden, Holland, and Germany. Mrs. Feliza Hertz, wife of a former member of the German foreign office and graduate of the Universities of Munich, Heidelberg, Berlin, and Grenoble, will tell of "Life in Germany."

Miss Marcelle Henry, graduate of the Sorbonne in Paris as well as the University of Wisconsin, will discuss "Student Life in Paris" at the opening afternoon session, 1 o'clock Friday. Miss Henry has lectured and taught in many countries. Entertainment will be provided by the Venetian sextet.

"Peace Through Postals" will be the subject of a talk by Eric Grimwade, journalist and commentator on international affairs, at the close of the afternoon session. Mr. Grimwade, a young Englishman, was a student at a German university, an apprentice in a Bohemian pottery factory, a representative of an English pottery firm on the continent, a traveler in Italy, and a newspaper man wherever interest focused.

Make Plans for Lodging.

Delegates to the convention may reach Blue Island, eighteen miles from the loop, by either the Rock Island or Illinois Central suburban trains. The delegations will be met at the Vermont street station by members of the Blue Island chapter.

Students planning to stay in Blue Island Thursday evening should arrive Thursday morning to register for rooms. Free lodging in homes of Blue Island members will be provided for as many as possible. Nominal rates have been arranged for other delegates in private homes and Chicago hotels.

Registrations will be in charge of Robert A. Grebing, secretary of the Blue Island chapter, and Miss Lenore Geweke, faculty member, will be sponsor of the convention. Miss Geweke organized the Community High chapter in 1937. During the last two years the 389 members at Blue Island have received more than 3,000 letters and gifts from foreign members of the society. Young Neukirch, president, and Grebing were awarded certificates of honor for outstanding work and leadership during 1937-'38.

'CHILD WONDER' VIOLINIST AWAY TO NEW HONORS

Donna Gresco, 10, to Give Farewell Recital.

Next Sunday afternoon a tow headed youngster will stand on the stage of Hackman hall, 96th and Throop streets, with a violin tucked under her chin. She will be saying good-by with music to Chicago.

The recital will mark another step in a flight of circumstances which have whirled 10 year old Donna Gresco, sixth grade boarding school pupil at the Academy of Our Lady, up from infancy and into the hall of fame. On March 24 Donna will leave for New York to be the protégée of Mischa Mishakoff, concert master of Toscanini's Symphony orchestra, on a perpetual scholarship.

Astounded the Experts.

Only last summer Donna astounded musical circles and herself by winning a $5,000 scholarship and $1,000 violin at the American Conservatory of Music.

It all happened because four years ago a violin salesman knocked on the door of the George Gresco home in Winnipeg, Canada. Mrs. Gresco, a dark haired little woman and a good listener, was sold on the proposition that every child should take music lessons. When she closed the door on the salesman Mrs. Gresco had a $5 violin in her hand.

Little Donna had wanted dancing lessons, but she accepted the fact that the Grescos now owned a violin and that she was the one to justify the investment. With brilliant applicability Donna romped through the primary lessons on the violin at Bornoff School of Music in Winnipeg. She practiced, willingly but unenthusiastically, and never to the exclusion of her dolls and skates.

In a short time the child was George Bornoff's prize pupil and was asked to play for numerous organizations. First places in musical concerts were also taken in stride.

Director Is Interested.

Last summer she visited a musician friend of her mother's in Chicago who took her to the American Conservatory of Music. Herbert Butler, associate director of the conservatory, listened to the child play two numbers and, deeply impressed, asked her to return the following day.

For her second audition Donna played a three hour program to a full hall. A violin maker, Carl George, was in the audience and, amazed at the depth of tone Donna brought out of the $5 violin, offered her a $1,000 violin from his famous collection.

Mr. Butler wrote to Mr. and Mrs. Gresco a glowing account of Donna's triumph and suggested her for a scholarship which would cover three private lessons a week, classes in piano, theory, harmony, and musical history. He penned: "I cannot find words to express the delight her playing gave me. She has talent of a very high order and should become an artist of the first rank." In addition he dedicated his newest composition to Donna.

Her studies at the Conservatory and the Academy of Our Lady began in October. Barely settled in the routine of school work, play, and musical studies, little Donna was called in not long ago to play for Mischa Mishakoff. His comment, in addition to his startling offer to take her for the rest of her musical career, was: "She is one of those rare beings, a natural artist."

Is a Natural Girl.

Donna is also a natural little girl who is not too impressed by the adult fuss that flutters around her.

In her clipped little English accent Donna professes that "music is all right" and will immediately begin to tell about the new book she is reading called "The Story of the Happy Doll."

Kreisler is one of Donna's favorite composers and next Sunday she will include his "Old Refrain" and "Liebesfreud" in her recital. Other numbers will be "Sonata in A," Handel; "Serenade," Drdla; "Obertass," Wieniawski; "Polish Dance," Severn; "Concerto D Major," Mozart; "Souvenir," Drdla; "Der Sohn der Haide," Keler-Bela; "Bolero," Dauela, and "Czardas," Monti.

BETHEL CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE 40TH BIRTHDAY

Begin Financial Drive to Raise $7,000.

The Rev. Emanuel Crusius.
[Mosing Studio.]

Where a theater now stands at 110th place and Michigan avenue, the Bethel Evangelical church was born forty years ago. The event will be the occasion of a year's observance in the present house of worship, 114th and State streets, and a financial drive to raise $7,000.

The Rev. John Goebel of Kankakee, former pastor, will be guest speaker at an anniversary service 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Other anniversary programs are scheduled for June, July and November, according to the Rev. Emanuel Crusius, pastor.

The congregation is the offshoot of both the Washington Heights and Blue Island churches. The Rev. Theodore Kettelhut of Homewood was appointed as its first permanent pastor in 1899 and on Sept. 9, 1900, the church was formally received into the Evangelical Synod of North America.

Paid $8 Monthly Rental.

The first Christmas worship was held in another church, the Roseland Baptist, but general services continued to be held in Madderom's hall at 110th place and Michigan avenue, until August of 1900 when the owners rented it to the Y. M. C. A. Bock's hall, 115th street and Michigan avenue, was then rented for $8 a month.

It was seen that a permanent place of worship was necessary and two building lots were purchased at the present site. A tiny chapel was erected on the rear of the property in 1901 at a cost of $1,700. In December of the next year the congregation succeeded in buying the two adjoining lots to the north for $800, upon which they erected a parsonage.

Men's Club Organized.

The Rev. John Goebel, who will preach the anniversary sermon today, was called to the pastorate in June of 1905. After all debts were paid in July, 1906, the congregation decided to build a large church. The place of worship was dedicated in December, following an expenditure of $6,000. In 1937, the Rev. Mr. Goebel retired and the Rev. Mr. Crusius took the appointment.

Immediately following the Rev. Mr. Crusius' call to the church from La Salle, a men's club was organized which has grown rapidly and now numbers 118 members. Charles Gartelman, 510 West 107th street, was recently elected president.

ST. GABRIEL PLAY GROUP TO GIVE 'ROOM SERVICE'

"Room Service," a comedy, will be presented beginning this evening and continuing until Friday in St. Gabriel's auditorium, 45th and Wallace streets, by the St. Gabriel Players. The club was organized thirteen years ago with D. M. Henderson as director. Members of the cast include Maude Crilly, Sam Salvato, William Hurley, Edward Reilly, James Bracken, Edward Bracken, William Hagemann, James Berry, James Cassidy, Frank Lucid, John Kavanaugh, Mildred Kean, Margaret Kean, Tom Murphy, Floyd Keating, and Virginia Leach.

COLONIAL HOME HAS SIMPLE YET CAREFUL DESIGN

Floor Layout Utilizes All Space to Advantage.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The new home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Maslek, in Western Springs, has all the calm beauty and fine detail of our early colonial work. And because it is a type of home which could be quite as charming if it were smaller—or larger—it is shown today as an instance of what is possible in the small house field when good construction, skilful design and a fine attention to deails are the basic starting points.

The architects, White and Weber, 720 North Tower court, Chicago, used wood shingles for the exterior walls, and painted them an off-white, with just enough gray in the paint to lend character to the whole. To accent this white, the shutters are a dark green, and the roof is black.

Six Room Colonial.

One can choose from any number of well designed, carefully constructed houses on the market, some particular house which fulfills particular family requirements. Or one can build a house of his own. Mr. and Mrs. Maslek chose the latter course.

They decided on a six room, Connecticut colonial type, with gambrel roof, and included a garage at the right as an integral part of the house, and a screen porch at the left. This porch is 12 feet by 12 feet, and while it is for summer use, its front wall is carried out in line with the front of the house.

Much of the appeal of this home lies in its extreme simplicity of line, its intimacy of scale, and its total absence of any attempt to be picturesque.

This same striking simplicity is carried into the interior where we find a floor layout which increases the apparent size of the rooms, a layout with easy circulation and segregation of utility areas from living spaces.

Living Room 13 by 22.

There is a central hall which is the center of first floor trafic. This hall opens at the right into a second hall with access to powder room and closets, porch entry and garage, and also to the kitchen and the dining room at the back.

At the left of this hall, which is papered in traditional states-pattern —soft gray medallions on a yellow background—there is the living room, 13 feet by 22 feet. The fireplace wall is paneled in pine, while the other walls are painted above a colonial gray dado. The same colonial spirit prevails in the dining room, which has a sunny bay and walls papered above a gray dado.

The kitchen, approximately 11 feet by 14 feet, is ultramodern, with breakfast corner, and ivory painted cabinets.

Book Niche in Bedroom.

Below stairs is a forced warm air heating plant, oil fueled, with provision for winter air conditioning. On the second floor there are three bedrooms and a bath.

The owner's bedroom, papered with an exquisite English chintz paper, is directly over the dining room, kitchen and garage part of the house. There is an alcove and niche for books in the bedroom proper, and beyond this is a large dressing room, amply fitted with wardrobes and built-in drawer spaces, and large storage closets at both ends.

100TH ST. PAVING TO SHUNT TRAFIC OFF BUSY DRIVE

Characterizing the paving of 100th street from Indianapolis to Torrence avenue as one of the most important projects on the south side in recent years, Roy F. Healy, chairman of the south area council of the Chicago Motor club, last week set July 1 as a tentative date for a celebration marking the completion.

Paving of this strip of cinder road with concrete will begin as soon as the weather will permit. It will cost about $250,000, which will be furnished by the county.

"The new project," Mr. Healy said, "will take trafic off South Shore drive and other congested streets in the southeastern part of Chicago, distributing it over to Jeffery avenue, Stony Island avenue, and Western avenue. The connection with the west will be made by way of 103d street, a companion project, which was opened last fall."

It was also reported at the meeting of the council last week that the contract for a grade separation at 79th street, Southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue at the Wabash tracks would be let within the next thirty days.

Clarence J. Bohling, East Side Chamber of Commerce, was named head of the committee to arrange for the 100th street celebration.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 13.

Try a few shrub branches as forced bouquets. Select only branches that are heavily in bud and place them in deep, wide vases or buckets. They make delightful decorative material at a time when only greenhouse flowers are available. The hotbed should be about ready for sowing seeds for early plants. All kinds of vegetables and flowers can be grown in it with a gain in time that provides a long season and insures good crops.

Tuesday, March 14.

To make a new lawn in the spring, start just as soon as the ground can be worked. Use a seed mixture of high quality. Mixtures for sunny locations or for shade may be purchased from the seedsman. Do not roll the ground if it is wet. It is roll the ground if it is wet.

Wednesday, March 15.

It is time to renew tanglefoot on the trunks of trees. It is a sticky material to prevent crawling insects from climbing the trunk. Cut out egg masses of tent caterpillar. Scale insects are controled by spraying with a dormant oil spray now or in early April.

Thursday, March 16.

Here is the right way to spade or dig the garden: Plunge the blade straight down its full length into the soil. Dump the soil upside down so that the top falls on the bottom or in the furrow. Then break up the turned soil with the back of the spade so that it will crumble. By breaking it up thoroughly it will rake easily.

Friday, March 17.

Buy good, strong tools for garden work and keep them in condition throughout the season. Keep them oiled and under cover when not in use. Do not attempt pruning unless you know something about it or you may do more harm than good.

Saturday, March 18.

Send for seed catalogs and select a number of the hardy annuals for sowing just as soon as the ground can be worked. Thinning to give each plant room to develop is important. Shrubs should not be planted too close together. Neither should trees. Consider the future growth of all the plant material used.

ARMY MEN LAUD DRILL UNIT OF SULLIVAN HIGH

Maj. Gen. Ford and Others Praise Platoon.

Place a gold star after the name of the Sullivan High school exhibition platoon and let the glory reflect on the Chicago R. O. T. C. unit! The platoon recently evoked words of high praise from Maj. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding the 6th Corps area, and his staf.

The occasion was a recent dinner sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce in compliment to Maj. Gen. Ford in the Palmer House. The Sullivan platoon, winner of the competition among the twenty-seven public high schools in the city last spring, was asked to perform before the more than 500 guests. The performance was made difficult by the limited space available.

Congratulated by Officers.

Gen. Ford was the first to comment and the first to congratulate the cadets afterward on the high caliber of their exhibition. Later his staf officers added their favorable comments. Some of their remarks follow:

Lieut. Col. Paul W. Newgarten, assistant chief of staf: "That was one of the best close order drills I've seen. The accuracy, the snap, the cadence, and the whole general efiect was exceptional. To me it was evidence of a tremendous amount of work. Sergt. Gristhus, the instructor, and Capt. Hobart Scott, the cadet commander, deserve great credit."

Col. M. M. Keck, commander of the Illinois Military area: "I complimented the platoon because the cadence was steady and the maneuvers were perfectly executed. For high school or any school it was something to be proud of."

Others Give Praise.

Lieut. Col. Joseph H. Davidson, 6th Corps area air officer: "The whole thing was excellent."

Lieut. Col. B. A. Brackenbury, chemical warfare officer: "With hardly any notice and never having practiced there before, these boys put on a remarkable exhibition. The personal appearance, poise, and drill were superb."

The general feeling was summed up by Lieut. Col. A. L. Hamblen, assistant chief of staf for military intelligence, who said: "The exceptionally skillful drill of the Sullivan platoon reflects not only a high degree of training in technique but, more important, reflects the esprit de corps and the fine leadership ability which our junior R. O. T. C. in Chicago is producing."

HARVARD SCHOOL P.-T. A. AIDS FUND FOR TWO MURALS

Paintings by Federal Art Project Completed.

Seasons may come and go but spring and autumn will be emblazoned permanently on the walls of the Harvard school auditorium, 7525 Harvard avenue. Two large murals, painted by the federal art project under the direction of Durzynski, were completed last Monday, terminating negotiations which began last May.

Money from bake sales, stage plays by students, movie shows in a neighborhood theater, all sponsored by the Harvard Parent-Teacher association, made it possible for the school to have the paintings. Pupils, teachers, and members of the P.-T. A. met informally last Monday to witness the installation of the murals.

The artist, Durzynski, studied in the academies of Berlin, Munich, and Paris and is represented in private collections both in America and Europe. An immigrant to America in 1932, he is now a full fledged citizen.

Mrs. J. D. Anderson, 7644 Normal avenue, who served as vice president of the P.-T. A. during 1938, is now president and will call a special meeting in the near future to make plans for the dedication of the murals in April.

PARTY LEADERS LISTEN TO RADIO VOICES FOR 1940

Dewey and Taft Manner on Air Called Good.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

With another presidential campaign year just around the corner party chieftains are beginning to appraise the vocal qualifications of the prospective candidates. They have their ears tuned to the kilocycles, hoping to encounter the enchanting sound of vote getting voices.

The voice era entered politics with Warren G. Harding. On his 1923 tour he spoke through the "enunciator," as correspondents called the microphone. The radio hurt Harding's florid style of oratory. But Harding was fascinated by radio [unlike Woodrow Wilson] and would not give it up. Edith Galt Wilson, in her recent biography of the President, revealed that he had arranged to speak on the radio on Armistice day after he left the presidency. But when the batteries filed at the moment he was to go on the air, the former President became disgusted and would have no more of radio thereafter.

Used by All Since Wilson.

But since Wilson all Presidents have used the radio with varying success. Roosevelt's mastery of the microphone, of course, is more complete than that of any of his predecessors.

Coolidge's voice, with its nasal twang, was clear. His speech was simple and easy to understand.

In 1928 Al Smith said: "The time is forever past when party leaders speak for candidates. Radio has made the candidate speak for himself directly to the people."

Smith's radio voice reflected his personality, and so did Hoover's. Smith's voice mirrored his confidence, aggressiveness, and his personal charm. Hoover's voice lacked friendliness and warmth. It was positive, sometimes stubborn. [After Hoover left the presidency he improved his microphone manner greatly. He introduced an informal note, resorted to story telling, and, in general, brightened his technique.]

Landon Coached on Mike Technique.

Landon's wooden delivery was regarded as a handicap to him in the 1936 campaign. From Chicago a radio expert was dispatched to coach him in microphone technique. Landon worked hard, using recordings of his voice, to improve it. There was some change for the better. But he never really conquered the microphone.

And now 1940 is in the offing. What are the radio voices of the leading Republican contenders like? The Democrats will continue to rely on Mr. Roosevelt. Whether he is a candidate or not his voice may be heard in the next campaign. If not for himself, then for the party nominee.

Since Senator Robert Taft has taken to the air with Congressman T. V. Smith in weekly discussions of "Foundations of Democracy" there has been jubilation in Republican councils. He has definitly impressed the voice critics.

Dewey's Voice Stirs Hope.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, a popular candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, is generally regarded as having a good radio presence. Early in his gubernatorial campaign last fall there was some complaint that his radio technique lacked polish and that his material was not as well prepared for radio delivery as possible. Much improvement was reported later.

His speeches at the end of the campaign were said to be again as effective as in the beginning. He learned fast. Several surveys conducted recently indicate that Mr. Dewey is regarded as having a definite radio "personality."

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, an effective orator on the senate floor, is regarded in some quarters as somewhat overemphatic on the radio.

The Effect of Television.

How long it will be before television plays a part in national campaigns is conjectural. Certainly television will have no bearing on the next presidential campaign. It may be eight years or more until it becomes an important factor over a substantial portion of the United States.

Of course, it is likely that the presidential candidates will be televised next year in New York and perhaps one or two other cities.

But nobody knows how soon a candidate's photogenic personality, his gestures and mannerisms, and even the drape of his coat or the tilt of his hat will play as great a rôle as his voice. But it may eventually come to pass.

"Shadow" Faces Death.

"Appointment With Death" is the ominous title of the next episode which "The Shadow" encounters over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4:30 to 5:00 p. m. today. Bill Johnstone plays the mysterious radio crusader.

Musical Steelmakers

Harold Stokes, director of the W-G-N dance orchestra, showing a group of talented amateur performers how a professional musician plays the accordion. The scene took place when Stokes made a guest appearance last week with W-G-N and Mutual Steelmakers at Wheeling, W.Va.

FOR SPONTANEITY ON RADIO YOU DO MUCH REHERSING

Even on Barn Dance It Takes Planning.

Spontaneity on the air is not easy to achieve. There are plenty of programs that float into the nation's living rooms in a free and easy and natural manner. That happens usually by calculation instead of by accident.

Glenn Welty.

Except in a few of the quiz shows, presided over by dynamic personalities, spontaneity is usually the result of careful planning and long rehersals.

In variety programs, comedy and sprightly dialogue conduce toward the "unlaxing," as Andy calls it. To achieve that air and feeling in shows predominantly musical is tougher.

It's Rehersed Plenty.

Take the WLS National Barn Dance, for example. Listeners write in by the thousands whooping and cheering for the pep, punch, spontaneity and sparkle of the show. They want to know whether it was rehersed. The answer is: It is rehersed and plenty.

Plenty of weight falls on the shoulders of Bill Jones, the director. But because it is so largely a musical show, Glenn Welty, the musical director, has an especially large share of the burden.

From a musical point of view the barn dance reverses the usual procedure of air shows. For many musical programs it is assumed that listeners want smart and sophisticated music—or music of the better type, either classical or popular. Once or twice during the program they may let the bars down and slip in a "corny" number to suit the less urbane listeners.

Hill Billy Music Preferred.

The barn dance, however, goes strong for rural rhythm, hill billy songs, mountain music, sentimental old ballads and those fast and furious barn dances. "Corn" is the rule. But on top of these there may be operatic arias by excellent singers, choral numbers by an outstanding quartet, or piano interludes by fine artists. Alec Templeton, the noted blind British pianist, is more at home on the barn dance than in the concert halls of his native England.

It's up to Welty to take these elements, which would have seemed incongruous in real barn dances, and make them fit the spirit of the radio barn dance. Much the same problem is faced on the Bing Crosby show which calls itself a Music Hall but is filled at the same time with Bob Burns' bucolic humor and relatives.

How to Get Spontaneity.

The effect desired is achieved in a measure through special arrangements of the music, in scoring the vocal numbers and orchestrations to avoid pretentiousness or formality. Thus listeners are spared the feeling that they have walked into a Toscanini concert by accident.

Despite the informality, high musical standards are maintained. Symphony musicians are eager to appear in the orchestra under Welty's direction. Franz Pfau, the Viennese concert pianist, who accompanies the soloists and plays in the orchestra, prefers the friendliness of the Eighth Street theater, where the show is aired, to the austerity of concert halls.

The manner of conducting the rehersals contributes to the spontaneity, too. Each act is rehersed as a separate unit. Over and over again the small groups do their separate contributions until they are letter perfect. All day Friday there are rehersals—first for the soloists, then the ensemble, and finally the orchestra. Late Saturday afternoon there is a dress rehersal. All the component parts are fitted together for timing and final polishing.

This system keeps the program from becoming boresome to the artists. They hear the whole show but once. Thus, they are not sick of it before it reaches the air.

Mark Love to Sing with N.Y. Philharmonic Orchestra

Mark Love, W-G-N basso, is busy with concert engagements these days. On Wednesday, March 22, he will sing at Carnegie hall in New York City with the Philharmonic orchestra. On Thursday, March 30 he will appear with the Chicago Singverein and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

When Stomach Ails, Be Sure Your Laxative Contains Pepsin

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to break-up fast that undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative contains Pepsin. That means Dr. Caldwell's famous medicine, because its Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove how quickly each dose of Syrup Pepsin fortifies your stomach with power to dissolve those undigested proteins which may linger in your stomach, to cause gas, belching, gastric acidity, nausea and headache. At the same time it wakes-up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. See how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work relieving that stomach discomfort, too. Guaranteed to contain no Cathartic Salts, does not cause distress. Even finicky children love to taste this family laxative. So buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin combined with Laxative Senna Compound on money back offer today.

Lose Weight Safely

IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First, eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second, mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strenuous exercises or taking harmful drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16.

Listeners will be invited to send in their suggestions for numbers to be broadcast.

"We feel there is a definite need and demand by listeners for this type of program," Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, said in announcing the new program.

"Great music, good music, and serious music have places in our cultural life. We feel that the least we can do is to try to give listeners the sort of music they want. That is why we are asking for their suggestions."

Little Orphan Annie
HOME, SWEET HOME--- PEACEFUL, "FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD'S IGNOBLE STRIFE," AS THE POET SAYS- BUT IN THESE DAYS OF RURAL DELIVERY AND DAILY PAPERS NO FAMILY NEED BE UNINFORMED, IF ONLY THEY WILL READ---
I SEE WHERE THAT CHAP, WARBUCKS, IS IN THE PAPER AGAIN - IT'S A STORY FROM OVER IN ASIA--- SOME PLACE I CAN'T PRONOUNCE- THAT MAN SURE DOES TRAVEL AROUND-
YES- I THINK I SAW SOMETHING ABOUT THAT THE OTHER DAY- AS I READ IT, HE OWNS SOME MINES OVER THERE AND A LOCAL BANDIT DECIDED THEY WERE WORTH STEALING-
WHAT'S THE NEWS TODAY? HAS OUR CONSUL PROTESTED TO THE GOVERNMENT?
NOPE- SEEMS WARBUCKS TURNED OUT TO BE ABOUT TEN TIMES TOUGHER THAN THE LOCAL BANDIT FIGGERED-
WARBUCKS SAYS HE PAID FOR THE MINES AND INTENDS TO KEEP THEM-
HM-M--DIDN'T OLIVER WARBUCKS GET INTO SOME BAD JAM A FEW YEARS AGO AND HAVE TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY? SOME FAKE PRODUCT OR SOMETHING?
EONITE! AND IT WASN'T A FAKE AND HE DIDN'T HAVE TO LEAVE TH' COUNTRY- TH' ONLY FAKES WERE SOME O' TH' STORIES WRITTEN 'BOUT IT BY SORE-HEADS WHO COULDN'T STAND TO SEE DA-- ER--WARBUCKS SUCCEED-
OLD MAN EON DISCOVERED TH' STUFF AND CROOKS TRIED TO KILL HIM FOR HIS SECRET--DA---THAT IS, MR. WARBUCKS SAVED EON'S LIFE- SO EON LET HIM MAKE TH' STUFF- IT WOULD HAVE MEANT PROSPERITY AND PEACE FOR TH' WHOLE WORLD-
--OR IT COULD HAVE MEANT SLAVERY AND DEATH--- IT WAS ALL UP TO WHOEVER CONTROLLED TH' SECRET O' EONITE--- MR. WARBUCKS WANTED TO BE SURE IT WOULD BE USED ONLY FOR GOOD--- TO HELP EVERYBODY-
TH' OTHERS STIRRED UP TH' POOR FOLKS WHO COULDN'T KNOW ANY BETTER- WARBUCKS MEANT WELL BUT HE WAS NO SPELL BINDER-
A MOB GOT STARTED- POOR OLD MR. EON GOT KILLED AND TOOK HIS SECRET WITH HIM- IT WOULD HAVE CURED ALMOST ANYBODY O' TRYIN' TO HELP FOLKS- WARBUCKS WAS TOO BIG TO TAKE IT THAT WAY- BUT IS IT ANY WONDER HE WENT AWAY FOR A WHILE?
HM-M---NO- BUT SAY- HOW COME YOU'VE MADE SUCH A STUDY OF WARBUCKS' LIFE AND WORKS?
WHILE A THOUSAND MILES AWAY---
YES, TOM, WE'VE BOTH SEEN THOSE FELLOWS BEFORE- BUT WHERE?
THAT'S WHAT I INTEND TO FIND OUT, SAM- THAT'S WHY I POSTPONED RETURNING TO WASHINGTON-
DO YOU MEAN YOU INTEND TO QUESTION THEM? WOULD THAT DO ANY GOOD?
NO! DON'T EVEN WANT TO ATTRACT THEIR ATTENTION- GET THE CANDID CAMERA READY- WE'LL DRIVE BY SLOWLY- THEN WHEN WE GET BACK TO WASHINGTON WE'LL CHECK THESE LADS' PICTURES WITH OUR FILES--
HAROLD GRAY
AXEL---- LOOK- IT IS THAT CAR WHICH PASSED YESTERDAY-
YES- I SEE IT, FOOL- THOSE SAME TWO-SHET YER GAB AND KEEP THEM SHOVELS HOT-

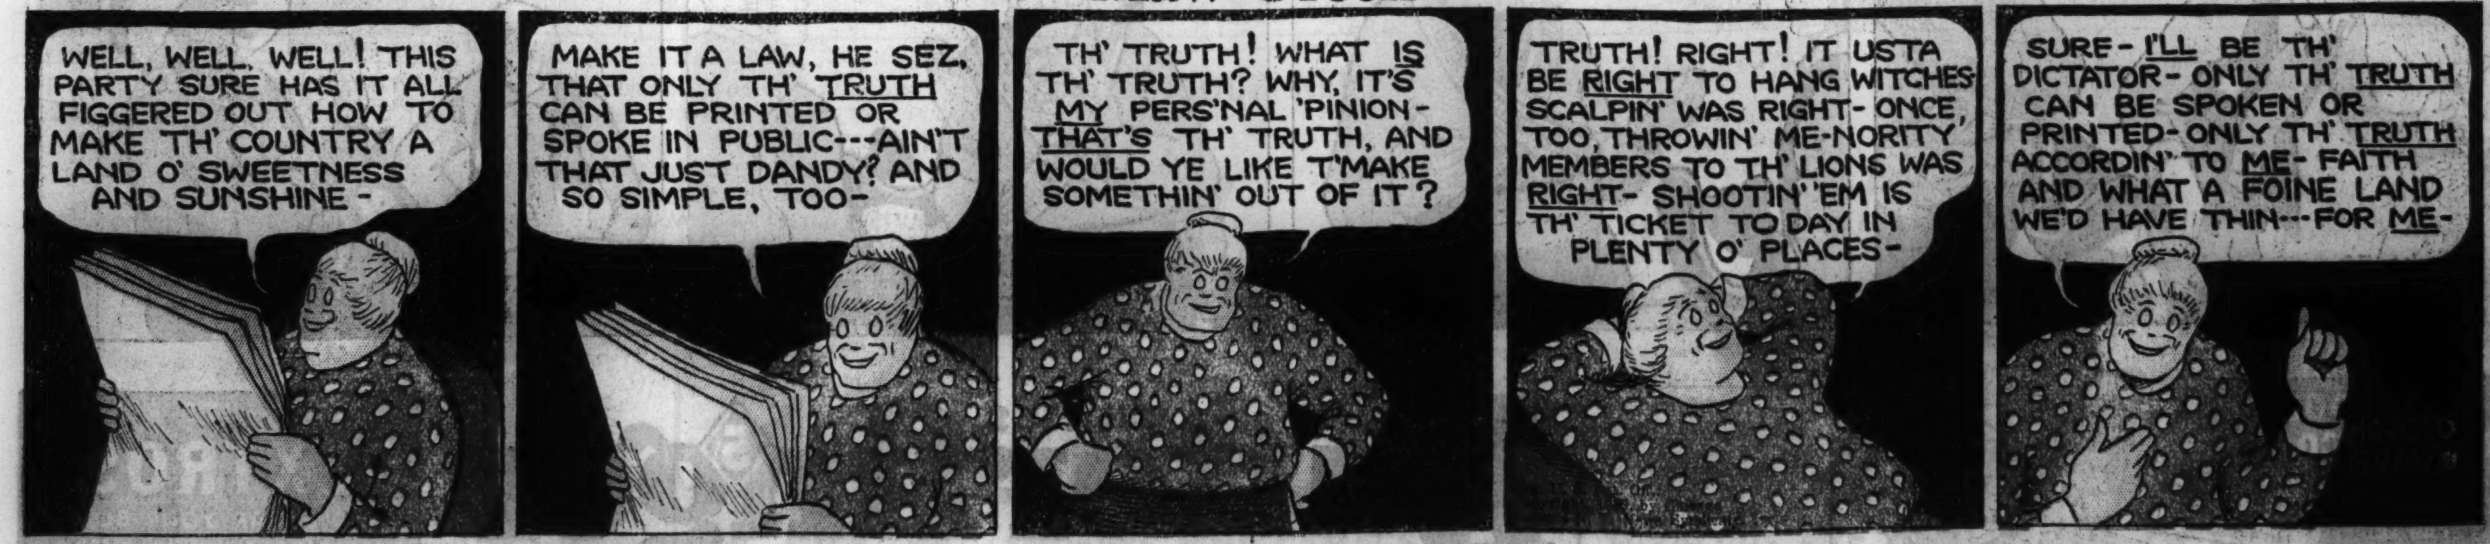
Maw Green



WELL, WELL, WELL! THIS PARTY SURE HAS IT ALL FIGGERED OUT HOW TO MAKE TH' COUNTRY A LAND O' SWEETNESS AND SUNSHINE-
MAKE IT A LAW, HE SEZ, THAT ONLY TH' TRUTH CAN BE PRINTED OR SPOKE IN PUBLIC---AIN'T THAT JUST DANDY? AND SO SIMPLE, TOO-
TH' TRUTH! WHAT IS TH' TRUTH? WHY, IT'S MY PERS'NAL 'PINION- THAT'S TH' TRUTH, AND WOULD YE LIKE T'MAKE SOMETHIN' OUT OF IT?
TRUTH! RIGHT! IT USTA BE RIGHT TO HANG WITCHES- SCALPIN' WAS RIGHT- ONCE, TOO, THROWIN' ME-NORITY MEMBERS TO TH' LIONS WAS RIGHT- SHOOTIN' 'EM IS TH' TICKET TO DAY IN PLENTY O' PLACES-
SURE- I'LL BE TH' DICTATOR- ONLY TH' TRUTH CAN BE SPOKEN OR PRINTED- ONLY TH' TRUTH ACCORDIN' TO ME- FAITH AND WHAT A FOINE LAND WE'D HAVE THIN---FOR ME-

YOU -- YOU'VE GOT TO LET ME WORK FOR YOU, SCARDOL -- YOU'VE JUST GOTTA! I'LL DO ANYTHING YOU WANT ME TO DO. WOLLEY'S DEAD AND THE GANG'S WIPED OUT --- ALL EXCEPT ME.
CHESTER GOULD
HOW DID IT HAPPEN? YOUR OUTFIT MUST HAVE BEEN A BUNCH OF DOPES.
THAT GUY TRACY DID IT. HE TRAILED WOLLEY OUT IN THE COUNTRY AND DRILLED HIM.
WHILE A BIG FIGHT WAS GOING ON DOWN BY A DITCH, I CRAWLED THROUGH A CULVERT AND BEAT IT INTO A WOODS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ROAD.
EVER HAD ANY EXPERIENCE HI-JACKING FILLING STATIONS AND STORES?
NOT EXACTLY, SCARDOL, BUT I CAN LEARN.

CONGRATULATIONS, DICK AND PAT, ON DOING A TOUGH JOB WELL. AND AS FOR YOU, POP, DON'T TAKE IT SO ABOUT YOUR SON.
HE GOT AWAY AND HE'S GOT THE WRONG SLANT ON LIFE - BUT - THERE MAY BE HOPE FOR HIM YET.
TO THINK, JIM, THAT AFTER ALL THESE YEARS YOU AND I MEET UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES LIKE THIS! IT'S HORRIBLE.
ALL RIGHT, KID, YOU'RE IN. BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO WORK HARD.
WHAT DO YOU WANT ME TO DO FIRST?
GRAB THIS PAINT SPRAY GUN AND FINISH SPRAYING THE CAR WITH COLD WATER PAINT.
COLD WATER PAINT?
YEAH - EVERY TIME I GO OUT TO DO A JOB MY CAR HAS A DIFFERENT COLOR. IT FOOLS THE COPS.
FIRST I BRUSH GLUE WATER ON THE FINISH TO MAKE THE PAINT STICK. THEN I SPRAY ON COLD WATER PAINT. OF COURSE THE LICENSE PLATES ARE HOT.
GLUE
WITNESSES WILL SAY THE CAR WAS LIGHT GREEN - OR WHATEVER COLOR I USE. THEN, WHEN THE JOB'S DONE, I DRIVE BACK HERE AND - LOOK!
GLUE
HYDRANT WATER WASHES THE STUFF RIGHT OFF - AND IN FIVE MINUTES MY CAR'S BLACK AGAIN.
GEE, SCARDOL, I CAN LEARN FROM YOU!

TERRY and the Pirates
by MILTON CANIFF
LANDING AT THE POINT WHERE THE BOAT CONTAINING SANJAK, APRIL AND THE GOLD MUST LEAVE THE SMALL STREAM ON WHICH THE PLANE LANDED, TERRY AND PAT TIE UP THE PILOT AND PREPARE TO CUT OFF ALL ESCAPE
SANJAK'S PROBABLY TRYING TO GET THAT GOLD OUT OF THE COUNTRY— SO SHE'LL HAVE TO GO DOWN THIS LARGER RIVER THAT FLOWS TO THE SEA!
YEAH—THE HEAD FISHERMAN HERE SPEAKS A LITTLE ENGLISH—HE SAID A MOTOR BOAT WENT UP THIS RIVER A FEW DAYS AGO!
THESE FISH NETS WE GOT FROM THE NATIVES WILL STRETCH ACROSS THE STREAM JUST BELOW THE SURFACE AND FOUL THE PROPELLER!
AND WE'LL LIE LOW ON AN ANCHORED FISHING BOAT TO NAB 'EM, EH?
GEE, PAT—THERE'S BEEN SO LITTLE TIME TO THINK... BUT TO REALIZE THIS SANJAK WAS DISGUISED AS MADAME SUD—AND I LEFT APRIL IN HER CARE...
DON'T FEEL GUILTY, TERRY! SHE FOOLED US ALL...
IT'S OBVIOUS NOW THAT SHE KNEW OF THE BARON'S PLAN—ENGINEERED US INTO THINKING HE HAD ABDUCTED KANE, AND SO ON—SO SHE COULD USE APRIL AS A SHIELD AND CASH IN ON THE CONFUSION!
SHE MUST HAVE WRITTEN THE NOTES THAT LURED ALL OF US TO THE OLD SHRINE!
THE NIGHT DRAGS ON... TERRY AND PAT TAKE TURNS WATCHING THE QUIET RIVER...
ALMOST MORNING, PAT!
SEE ANYTHING ?
COUPLE OF NATIVE CRAFT AND ONE ODD LOOKING JUNK ABOUT AN HOUR AGO!
NO SOUND OF A MOTOR, EH? FUNNY!—HEY, WHO'S THAT?
COME 'LONG BLING PAPER FOR WHITE MANS!
FOR WHITE MAN?...HOW THE DEVIL DID ANYONE KNOW WE WERE HERE?
It was rather a good idea — but men are so easily fooled. I had little trouble disguising my launch as a junk, covering the propeller, and drifting over your net in the darkness. Really, it is a waste of time. Why do you not go back to the United States and pursue gangsters? Sanjak
YOU MAY CAST OFF THE FALSE MATTEENG AND PROCEED... BY NOW THE AMEREECANS ARE READEENG THE MESSAGE—AND SANJAK EES HAVEENG THE BEEG CHUCKLE!

WORLD'S "SHUTOUT" KING OF HOCKEY!

THEY SAY: "NERVE TENSION IS OUT!"
CHUCK HYATT BASKETBALL SENSATION

THEY LET UP — LIGHT UP A CAMEL!

KERR IS DEFENDING THE RANGERS' GOAL IN A CRUCIAL GAME AGAINST THEIR CLOSEST RIVALS
THIS IS ONE OF DAVE'S TOUGHEST GAMES — AND HIS BROKEN FINGER HASN'T HEALED YET. I'M ALL KEYED-UP!
SO AM I — HERE, LET UP AND LIGHT UP A CAMEL
THE RANGERS LEAD BY 1 GOAL IN CLOSING MINUTE OF GAME — THEN A RANGER DEFENSE MAN GOES TO PENALTY BOX
WHAT A TOUGH BREAK!
SMACK!
THE VISITORS OPEN A DRIVE — TWO MEN THREATEN DAVE'S GOAL — ONE SHOOTS...
AFTER THE PUCK REBOUNDS OFF DAVE'S PADS — THE SECOND INVADER FIRES — BUT DAVE SAVES AGAIN
AFTER THE FACE-OFF — ONE MORE RANGER IS SENT OFF THE ICE ONLY 4 RANGERS LEFT AGAINST 6 VISITORS!
NOW THE VISITORS BEAR DOWN ON DAVE WITH A VENGEANCE ... FIVE OF THEIR FASTEST MEN PUT ON A WHIRLWIND POWER-DRIVE TO CRASH DAVE'S GOAL
IT'S SECONDS TO GO — 2 OPPONENTS AGAIN FLASH INTO SCORING POSITION
WHITE DOTS-RANGERS
KERR
BLACK DOTS-VISITORS
NO TIME TO SHIFT BACK, DAVE THROWS OUT HIS FOOT — STOPS THE PUCK AS THE GAME ENDS — A RANGER VICTORY CRACK!
DAVE, THAT WAS A TERRIFIC GAME. DON'T YOUR NERVES FEEL STRAINED AND JITTERY?
NOT MINE — I TAKE CARE OF MY NERVES!
I COULDN'T PLAY GOALIE IF I LET MY NERVES GET JITTERY. WHEN THAT PUCK COMES FLYING AT LIGHTNING SPEED, MY NERVES MUST BE SURE, STEADY. SO, BEFORE AND AFTER PRACTICE AND GAMES, I EASE UP ON MY NERVES... I LET UP — LIGHT UP CAMELS. CAMELS ARE REAL SOOTHING

Copyright, 1939, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

BEFORE YOUR NERVES GET YOU DOWN——

HAVE you ever noticed how a dog stops and rests instinctively as soon as he is tired? Although the dog's nervous system is complex, sensitive like your own, when he feels the urge to rest, he does so at once! We humans are apt to keep driving on at a task, piling up nerve strain. Learn to obey the impulse to rest—pause before your nerves get ragged—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! You'll like the mildness—the rich, ripe taste—of this cigarette smokers praise for pleasure and comfort!

NEW 1940 RINSO—here a year ahead of time with new "suds-booster" —at no extra cost to you!

• The New 1940 Rinso is here—a year ahead of time. It contains a new "suds-booster"—an ingredient that a few years ago was so expensive it couldn't be added to Rinso without increasing Rinso's price. At that time we thought that we'd be able to give you the New Rinso in 1940. Today, the price of this ingredient has been reduced to the point where the makers of Rinso can absorb the additional expense and bring you the New Rinso a year ahead of time—at no extra cost to you!

The New Rinso is even more economical than the old. It whips up quickly into heaps of lively, long-lasting suds—even in hardest water. And Rinso is safe for washable colors. Easy as ever on hands. The New 1940 Rinso is the soap recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. Try the New 1940 Rinso now!

B. Use 1 teaspoonful per cup, plus one for the pot.

C. Steep to any strength you prefer. (Most people who use cream or milk choose a 5-minute brew.)

INSTRUCTION.

THE WORLD'S MOST HONORED BEAUTY SCHOOL.
WILFRED ACADEMY
DOES IT AGAIN!

Frank Leben, recent graduate of Wilfred Academy, Chicago, Wins 1st Prize at the Mid-West Hair Style contest held Tuesday, March 7.

His first words were:
"I OWE MY SUCESS TO the excellent instruction I received in the hands of Mr. John Mueller in charge of all instruction and principal of the
WILFRED
ACADEMY OF BEAUTY CULTURE."

There are so many Wilfred graduates thruout the country winning high prizes that it is fast becoming a habit.

The success of our graduates is a direct reflection of the thoroughness in all subjects of the Wilfred System.

YOU MAY HAVE OUR BOOKLET OR MAGAZINE OR BOTH.

WILFRED
ACADEMY OF BEAUTY CULTURE.
9 W. Washington, Chicago.
STATE 5861.

YOU ARE INTERESTED IN LEARNING
BEAUTY CULTURE
UNDER THE MOST FAVORABLE CONDITIONS, OF COURSE.

A recent massmeeting at Hotel Sherman proposed law amendments for Beauty Culture, making it a great deal more difficult to learn.

Higher education—longer term—added apprenticeship — and several other amendments that make learning more expensive, perhaps impossible.

You still have time to enroll under present low rates and conditions, but you can't afford to wait and be ruled out.

THE SAME CONDITION GOVERNS

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Duck Thinks It's Spring.

March 11, 1939.

ONE duck on the Du Page county farm thinks spring is here. It has ignored March's frosty nights and uncertain temperatures by building a nest and laying eggs just as if it were May. A few days ago the flockmaster discovered the nest and took four egg from it. But he said this week he probably would have to give the ducks plenty of nesting material and let them do as they pleased. Several of the muscovies want to get busy with a clutch of eggs and hatch ducklings as soon as they can.

Turkey Style Parade.

The turkeys, too, are thinking about spring. The other morning they held a spring "style parade" as a rehersal for the nesting season. The parade was put on by two strutting gobblers. The spectators consisted of eight or ten hens sitting in a circle. When the hens started to lose interest in the parade one of the gobblers stretched his wing feathers until they scraped the ground and made a racket that caused the drowsy hens to again start watching the parade.

As soon as warm weather melts all of the ice on the big pond the swans and geese will be turned out of their temporary quarters. The big birds have been in an inclosure at the edge of the pond all winter. The other day they were trying to get over the fence that separates them from the water, but they couldn't do it. It won't take much warm weather to open up the large pond. The ice was thin last week. The swans have a tank of water in their winter quarters. This is small compared with the wide expanse of the pond.

Judging by the way the little lambs jump, sprint, and hurdle in the big sheep barn, one might get the idea that the little fellows were training for some kind of a barnyard track meet. The newborn lambs remind one of a big outdoor gymnasium with rookies going through a routine for their first exhibition.

A Broncho Lamb.

One lamb was jumping up in the air like a bucking broncho. At one end of the barn two lambs were racing at top speed. To complete the picture of a track meet, the lambs all had numbers on their backs. The flockmaster has been "branding," but the branding irons don't hurt the youngsters. The flockmaster has ten branding irons, each formed in the shape of a numeral. The irons are dipped in a black branding solution and then applied to the lambs' backs. It's a kind of marking that's harmless. There is no pain or injury involved.

The black numbers stay on the lambs' backs for about six months. The numbering system is used to identify the lambs until they are old enough to have a metal numbering tag in their ears. The flockmaster has to keep track of the youngsters so that their pedigrees can be kept in order.

SCOTT CUSTOM RADIO
Like a used Rolls Royce, a reconditioned Scott—even though two or three years old—is generally from one to three years ahead of many new production line receivers just announced. All exposed parts are beautifully plated with chromium instead of inexpensive cadmium; the ordinary radio receiver is guaranteed for 90 days, but a reconditioned Scott is guaranteed for one full year; the parts used are from 2 to 3 times as large as those found in many receivers, and are selected for quality found only in fine laboratory instruments.

From time to time, Scott owners trade their receivers for a later model and the traded-in instrument is available at a great saving. At present we have one 27 tube Scott [priced at nearly $400 2 years ago] for only $149.50. Cabinets extra from $25. Also one 16 tube Scott at $125 and one 23 tube Scott at $125. Time payments on reasonable terms. Visit our studios and learn how really GOOD radio reception and recorded music can be. Open daily [except Sunday] until 9 p. m.

"How I Got a Loan of $100 without embarrassment
or delay."

"I needed $100 in a hurry. I decided to ask friends for a favor. And I had no security for getting a loan at a bank. What was I to do? Fortunately I heard about Household Finance and so went to a nearby office. The manager was courteous and friendly. He merely asked me a few simple questions. The next day I got the money with 20 months to repay. Only my wife and I signed the paper. I was delighted to get a loan so simply and promptly."

Whether you are married or single, if you need a loan of $20 to $300 the manager of the Household office near you will be glad to discuss your problem with you in complete privacy and without obligation. Why not phone or visit him today?

There Are More "New" Used Cars AT YOUR Ford Dealer Every Day

If you haven't seen your Ford Dealers' big used car stocks in the last few days, you are due for a surprise.

Many "new" used cars come in every day for you to choose from. Never before have Ford dealers had such a wide range of good used cars, especially priced for quick sale, because of the sales of the Mercury 8 and the new features of the fast-selling 1939 Ford "V" Eights.

Remember, only Ford Dealers give you "R & G" protection and the 30-day guarantee in lower priced Used Cars.

"How Does It Feel To Get Ahead?"

"You had it coming to you, Jim. We all knew that old man Powers was soon going on pension, but you were the only one who did anything about it. Going to school in your spare time was the thing that made the big impression on the superintendent."

Are you a logical candidate for one of the better jobs with your organization?

If responsibility were suddenly thrust upon you—the opportunity of a life-time—would you fail because you didn't know enough?

Today, in an era when opportunities to get a better education are greater than at any other time in history, the best jobs go to the men and the women who have trained themselves for additional responsibility.

Review the offers of interest to ambitious men and women of all ages in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools, and Dancing Schools columns in the Tribune want ad section.

"HOW I TOOK TELL-TALE LINES FROM MY FACE"

"Bob called the lines in my face 'laugh lines'—but I knew better. I was worried, tired. I couldn't get a maid with the qualifications I wanted. Besides taking care of the children I had all the housework to do. Finally, my sister suggested I run a want ad in the Tribune. The results were almost magical. The maid I hired is a jewel."

If household help with the qualifications you require is hard to find, a low-cost want ad in the Tribune can put you in touch with competent workers. Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. If your name is in the phone book, you may charge your want ad if you wish.

"You're the First One We've Invited"

"I want you to be the first to see the lovely apartment I rented as a result of your tip to consult the Tribune rental want ads."

The common experience of women who consult Tribune rental want ads is to find satisfactory apartments with minimum effort and time.

You have far greater opportunity to find the apartment you want when you consult Tribune rental want ads. The Tribune prints more apartments-to-rent want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

"You've Burned Out the Main Bearing, Mister"

If your car is at the age when motor troubles and repair bills will soon be inevitable, now is the time to replace it with a dependable, late-model used car.

Scores of late model used cars are offered in the Automobiles-for-Sale columns of the Tribune want ad section every day. Your present car may be the only down payment required.

Turn now to the want ad section. Compare the values offered, and drive your present car to the dealers' showrooms. A better car will save your time, money and temper.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Coats in First Showings Are Exciting, Important

By RHEA SEEGER

ARGUE as you like, coats found in the first showings of a new season are the most exciting as well as important. New silhouettes, fascinating flared short skirts, all the clever details to be found in the shoulderlines, the sleeves, and the blouse tops, mark them as early spring models difficult to resist.

This spring the fitted dresslike coats (that is, the coats that have snug, defined waistlines, smooth-fitted tops, and interesting fitted sleeves, all accenting a flared short skirt) are the spotlight fashions. They are the coats that can be worn anywhere and everywhere with slim tailored daytime dresses, with full-skirted afternoon dresses, and with casually detailed spectator sports clothes. Versatile, extremely young in streamline, they're the favorites in every collection.

Skirts are especially interesting. Soft folds, unpressed plaits, and tucked formations of plaits and fullness mark them as 1939 models. Materials all are soft and flexible and feminine in texture, with even the sports coats made of soft, easy-to-manage fabrics. Navy blue is the first color. You'll find the largest assortments in this perennially popular shade, a good vital blue the basic or foundation coat for any wardrobe. Unfurred daytime coats are high fashion. With such a coat you can wear spanking white accessories when it is warm and fur pieces when it is not. The belts can be alternated to achieve a new color contrast with either metal or patent lether. Most of the belts sold with the coats are of dull lether, with big, blocky buckles or clasps.

Checked and striped woolens make some especially smart and young looking coats. They're made in the same young streamline, boast extremely short, full skirts, and have furless collarlines. The buttons or clasps are the only contrast or decoration. Linings usually are dark in a definite contrast, or harmonizing with the darkest color in the pattern or design. Clever striped materials feature precise formations of wide and narrow colored stripes. Even though these stripes are, for the most part, used horizontally, the coats are amazingly slender. Yokelines and unusual shoulder designs are details that keep them semidress parade even though the fabrics have somewhat of a sports material flavor.

Five of the newest early spring coats have been sketched, five distinctive types with such amazingly low price marks you'll scarcely believe the good news.

Happy Medium Course Best in Child Control

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Happily for my peace of mind, it's only the rare reader who misunderstands me, my article, I mean.

When I talk or, rather, write about freedom, I take pains to make myself clear.

When I advocate gaining obedience without spanking, I still mean gaining obedience, not giving the liberty that is license.

When I advise the young mother whose run-about child is discontented, and apparently destructive, to give him a chance to use his young muscles and five senses instead of keeping him quiet and expecting him to play only with "toys," I am really advocating a fine education in controled freedom.

• • •

As I say, happily for my peace of mind, my readers do almost invariably understand me. Their many letters show that clearly. But once in a great while I receive a long script from some one who hasn't the faintest conception of what I'm talking about! For example:

"What kind of homes would we have if children weren't taught to respect the furnishings in them? Why should they be allowed to break and soil and upset everything?"

"Where will our adolescent boys and girls end up if they are permitted to do anything they please, and run around with the other sex at all hours of the day and night?"

"If children have freedom to do just as they please, when will they learn self-discipline?"

When these letters do come along, I like sometimes to look beneath the surface for possible reasons for their misinterpretation. A few, I decide, may honestly misunderstand my "stance" on these subjects, and so, naturally, disagree. Some, I know, "see red" when the freedom of children is talked about, being convinced that anything modern is responsible for this, to them, terrible younger generation. Some are just thoughtless. And there may be others who fall under the classification of the writer of the following letter [it was written after an article appeared in which I used a communication saying, "My neighbor's little girl runs wild and she says she is following your advice"].

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I read, with much interest, your article in today's paper which caused me to recall feelings similar to those of 'Indignant Reader.' No doubt 'I. R.' hasn't any children and has had the misfortune to meet mothers of unruly children, who very glibly quote your articles to explain the free hand they give their offspring.

"Since that was my experience [or lack of it], I started reading your articles [with a very prejudiced viewpoint] and decided your views on children were somewhat too liberal. Well, it was like reading directions for making a cake and deciding from printed matter that it wouldn't work. I didn't have any children at that time and was forced to watch results others obtained.

• • •

"Finally my baby girl arrived and I once more proceeded to read your column, in a wary fashion I'll admit, and realized with a great deal of delight that your information and advice when intelligently applied have excellent results. I now read your column daily and wouldn't miss it.

"May I once more congratulate you and trust that your fine work will continue."

The point probably is that it is hard for some persons to believe in a middle course. They belong to the extremists or "either-ors." They think that either you must believe that children should touch nothing, or that they should handle and mar everything. Either you must believe that adolescents should be absolutely controled by their parents, or that they should run wild. Either you believe that children should be under strict military discipline, or you believe they should have no discipline at all. All of which, of course, is quite silly. There is such a thing as a happy medium, or a middle course.

A middle course is one between the two extremes of absolute freedom and absolute control by an adult. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, and very good proof we have, we who have tried this way of managing our inquiring, busy, friendly, very "small ones," our lively, rackety, all-over-the-place 8 and 10 year olds, and our fascinating, dear-but-difficult tall sons and daughters in their middle and late teens.

We have a booklet on what to expect of children from seven to twelve, and one for later, during the teens. EACH BOOKLET requires a stamped, addressed envelope with your request. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

We have so many smart new fashions up our sleeve that we have a difficult time keeping them secret. Today we've gathered together three modes with more or less the same lines and all in the spirit of spring. If you have figure problems these dresses will solve them for you, and if your silhouette is nothing short of perfect any of the frocks will flatter it. Reading from left to right:

A model for home or country, a paneled dress with notched collar, buttons all the way down the front, and strategic flare below the waist.

Next, an afternoon dress with V neckline, gathered sleeves that are bracelet length, a high waistline, and a gently flared skirt. Perfect in patterned silks.

At the right a youthful princess line dress for all kinds of social occasions. It has a curved and high V neckline, puffed sleeves, shirring to define the waist, and a paneled skirt.

These streamlines sculpture the figure and drape as well in cottons as they do in silks. Just consider the needs of your wardrobe and get busy. Here's to a smart spring season!

Style No. 2613 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, parhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Men's clothing continues to be one of the greatest needs listed in our files. For some reason it is more difficult to obtain than other apparel, and requests for it are more numerous. Every mail brings appeals, and almost every man who makes a personal call for help is out at the elbows, down at the heels, and in need of all kinds of apparel.

Can some reader supply a suit, size 46, for Mr. F.? He is the father of a large family and is afflicted with arthritis of the spine and unable to work. His home is on the south side of the city, and he must make regular trips to the loop for clinic treatment. His suit is completely worn, and he is, of course, unable to replace it.

Mr. G. has been working on a relief project in an effort to support his wife and two children. His wages are barely adequate for food and rent, and any surplus money must be used for the children. He has experience which will help him to find other work, which he hopes to do, but he is very badly in need of a suit, size 37 or 38. He is 5 feet 8. The address is on the north side of the city.

Mr. C. is 64 years old. At one time he was able to make a good living, but the depression and his advancing age made it impossible for him to find work. His wife is an invalid, and they now are on relief. He has not given up his search for work, however, and has the promise of a selling position if he can obtain suitable clothing. He is almost 6 feet tall and wears size 38 or 40. The address is on the near north side.

Mr. M. has only temporary and irregular work and, while he earns enough to stay off relief, he is unable to replenish his clothing, which is extremely worn. A suit and overcoat, size 40, tall, will greatly improve his appearance and help him to find permanent work. Since he sometimes is able to obtain work as a waiter, he will be able to use a tuxedo in the same size, if any reader has one to discard. He will be glad to call for offers.

Mr. D. needs a suit, size 36. A young man, he is employed, but earns a very small salary, and has a sick wife and a baby to support. His clothing has become frayed and worn and, if he is to hold his job.

These are but a few of the requests on hand, which have come to us from all parts of the city. Be you fat or thin, short or tall, if you have clothing to give we can locate a man in need of it.

To Get the Best Cough Medicine, Mix It at Home

Saves Good Money. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because it makes such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

PINEX for Coughs

Corn Meal Grinding.

The method of grinding corn meal that leaves most of the food value in the meal is called either "entire grain" or "old process," "water ground," or "stone ground."

Endearing Term Used Freely Is in Poor Taste

How should a guest be introduced to a roomful of people? The correct way to make introductions is told in the leaflet, "The Etiquet of Introductions," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn Street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

In itself it is a minor little irritation, but repeated time after time, with each succeeding offense pyramided on the last, I sometimes think if I hear another, just one other, salesperson call me "dearie" or "honey" I shall . . . I shall . . . I shall wish lumps into her mashed potatoes. Men clerks are never the guilty ones. If they were they would get a very different reaction, something resembling the smart impact of gloved palm on unsuspecting cheek.

"Dear" and "darling" and other words of endearment which some persons cast about so loosely are words that really have depth and meaning to them, and I resent having the young lady who sells me a package of pins say: "I'll have your change for you in just a moment, dear." These little words can mean so much and sound so sweet when spoken with sincerity, but become so cheap and objectionable, and in such poor taste, when used promiscuously.

I don't want to seem unjust in pointing my finger exclusively at the girls behind the counters. As a matter of fact, the membership of the group does include some others who are not so classified. It is just that, in my own experience, that is where I have noticed it most. Beauty operators come a close second. Surely there is no selling advantage involved. As far as I'm concerned, it is a distinct disadvantage. So I would recommend that those of us who find that we are guilty upon self-examination, school ourselves to overcome that which is just a habit.

It is just a habit, I know. And I'm also sure that the people who do it are not aware that it might be offensive. Their intention is to be friendly and cordial, and they neglect to see that they border on familiarity. There is no charm in appearing undignified and common, and there are plenty of other ways of demonstrating a friendly attitude and a willingness to be of service. So let's reserve the words of endearment for the proper time, place, and person, instead of wasting them and destroying their meaning through insincerity and wanton repetition on persons who are strangers.

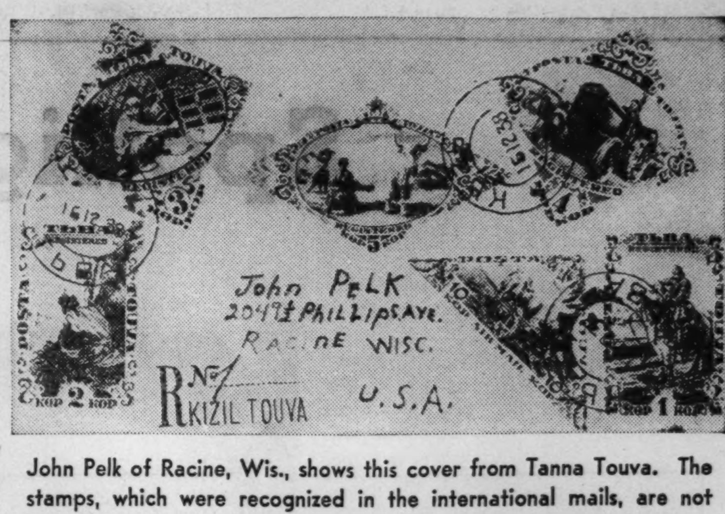
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



John Pelk of Racine, Wis., shows this cover from Tanna Touva. The stamps, which were recognized in the international mails, are not listed in the standard catalog except in a section devoted to questionable stamps. The cover and its source are described in an adjoining article.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

A cover from Tanna Touva is shown in the principal illustration today. Covers from this little known country are very uncommon although the stamps are plentiful in both used and unused condition. For several years there was some question among collectors about the entire status of the stamps of Tanna Touva and quite a few were of the opinion that they were simply a little sideline originated by the Soviet Philatelic agency in Moscow for sale to collectors.

More recently covers have been illustrated which appear to have been sent through the mails in orthodox fashion, although in some instances they bear a postmark showing that they have passed through Moscow. John Pelk of Racine, Wis., who has loaned the cover for the illustration, says that he prepared this envelope with five values of the unperforated variety of the 1934 registration stamps and mailed it under cover to the postmaster at Viga, Vlan Bator Hoto, Tanna Touva, Northern Mongolia. The envelope was further marked to be forwarded through the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and a dime was inclosed with a letter in Russian, asking the postmaster to cancel the stamps and mail the cover according to the address.

From the postmark it is apparent that the cover was handled in the city of Kizil. Here a 10 kopeck airmail stamp was added, and the letter was registered. The Kizil mailing date was Dec. 16, 1938, and the United States registry backstamps were applied in New York on Jan. 7, and in Racine on Jan. 9, 1939. Curiously enough, it is registered letter No. 1, from Kizil, but without knowing the system of numbering, it is not possible to say whether the number applies to the day, or the month, or the year. Russian characters are used in the postmark, but the dates are in numerals according to the Gregorian calendar, and the registration label is in Latin letters.

Tanna Touva appears to embrace the region which was the district of Urianghay when Outer Mongolia was under the rule of the Manchu dynasty of China. The final separation of Outer Mongolia from China was accomplished in 1921, and the Mongol People's republic established without including Urianghay, which then set up the government of the Tanna Touva People's republic. This is not a part of the U. S. S. R., but is completely dominated by it and its administration is under the control of Moscow.

Kizil, the capital of the country, has been mentioned in the press as Kyzyl, Kyzylchoto, and Krasny [meaning red], and in past times was known as Bielot-sarsk, and as Khem-Belder.

Stamp Notes.

There are six values in the set of stamps which Turkey will issue to commemorate the sesqui-centennial of the United States constitution, according to information obtained by John Pelk of Racine, Wis., from the consular service in Istanbul. The stamps were prepared in Switzerland and 300,000 copies were provided in 2.50, 3, 6, 7.50, 8, and 12.50 piaster values. It is understood that they will be placed on sale at a date to coincide with the opening of the New York World's fair.

A second day service for the 3 cent Golden Gate International exposition stamp was held in Washington, D. C., on Feb. 19. There is some excuse for collectors who like covers with a postmark showing the first day of use, but a second day cover appears to be of interest only to those who "missed the boat." Why not have tenth day covers, or thirtieth, sixtieth, and ninetieth day covers, just like the notes collectors have to sign.

The 1939 edition of the Catalog and Check List of Official United States First Day covers, edited by C. Reitter and published by Reitter and Imhoff, 11 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, is now available at 25 cents. The catalog lists commemorative issues beginning with the Pilgrim set of 1920, regular issues beginning with the stamps known as series 1922-'26, and air mail issues from 1918. Only official first day cities are listed and correct dates are given in each case. The number of covers is given when definitly known. An appendix lists the covers of the Trans-Pacific Clipper service. Prices reflect the actual retail market and are given for singles and for blocks.

Collectors in the deep south should be on the lookout for a rare pre-cancel from Toomsuba, Miss. According to the Precancel Bee, which illustrates a cover, this was used by R. E. Thompson, a job printer, in mailing a circular. The cover bears a three cent offset printed stamp and has the townmark and cancellation printed in black ink. The townmark is a straight line type, reading Toomsuba, Feb. 4, 1919 —Miss. The cancellation which may or may not tie the stamp to the cover, depending on the position of the stamp, contains four horizontal bars. This pre-cancel should be left on the envelope or it will lose much of its value.

The first day sales of the Golden Gate International Exposition stamp on Feb. 18, at San Francisco, amounted to 804,906 copies, and 352,165 covers received the first day postmark. Second day sales at Washington on the following day reached a total of 380,261 copies, but only 10,296 covers were serviced. The initial printing of this stamp has been increased from 50,000,000 originally announced, to 65,000,000 copies. The plate numbers are 22289 and 22290.

Ice Cream Is Most Widely Served Dessert

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

More than sixty million gallons of ice cream are sold in a year in this country. And goodness knows how many hundreds of thousands of gallons more are made and eaten at home. The American appetite for ice cream is insatiable. Ice cream is by far our most popular dessert.

Since this is so, recipes for home-made ice creams never come amiss. Many are the good ice cream mixes, in powder and liquid form, which make cream-making a simple and sure procedure. Two of the following recipes are based on mixes. The first four ice creams are the refrigerator type, and the last in the group are meant for the good old-fashioned freezer.

CARAMEL ICE CREAM.
[Serves six.]

2 cups milk
¾ cup sugar, caramelized
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon maple flavoring
1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped

Scald the milk in the top of a double boiler. Caramelize the sugar by heating it in a heavy skillet over a low burner, stirring constantly until melted and golden in color. Add to milk, and stir and heat until sugar dissolves. Add salt and cornstarch mixed to a paste in a little cold water. Cook and stir for 15 minutes, until thickened. Add flavoring, cool, and freeze to a mush in the refrigerator tray. Stir thoroughly, fold in the whipped cream, and finish freezing at the coldest temperature. After cream has frozen, turn cold control up to a point which will just hold the cream in a frozen state.

ST. PATRICK'S ICE CREAM.
[Serves six.]

1 package vanilla rennet ice cream mix
1 pint cold coffee cream
Few drops green coloring
½ cup finely chopped green cherries
Few drops oil of peppermint or ½ teaspoon mint flavoring

Beat the mix into the cream until thick. It will not stiffen. Add coloring, cherries, and flavoring. Place in freezing compartment and freeze until firm, but not too hard. Set cold control back so that cream will remain mellow. Serve with marshmallow sauce and top each serving with a whole green cherry.

TOFFEE MOUSSE.
[Serves eight.]

½ pound toffee candy, ground
1 pint cream, whipped

Put the candy through the food grinder, using the coarse blade. Whip the cream until it barely holds shape. Fold in candy and freeze without stirring until firm. Reduce coldness to hold the mousse until served.

PAPAYA ICE CREAM.
[Serves six.]

16 marshmallows
1 cup milk
½ cup papaya sirup
¼ cup lemon juice
½ pint cream, whipped

Melt marshmallows in milk in the top of a double boiler. Chill until slightly thickened. Add papaya sirup, lemon juice, and fold in whipped cream. Freeze in refrigerator tray at coldest temperature

CHERRY ICE CREAM.
[For freezer; serves 12.]

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
2 cups milk
2 cups light cream
1 cup pitted red cherries, ground
1 cup sirup from cherries

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, then add scalded milk and cream, and cook in the top of a double boiler, stirring constantly, for about five minutes. Cool, add ground cherries, and cherry sirup. Freeze in ice cream freezer.

PEACH ICE CREAM.
[Freezer; 1½ quarts.]

2 cups milk
1 package vanilla ice cream powder
1 cup heavy cream
2 cups canned peach pulp

Add milk very gradually to ice cream powder. stirring until dissolved. Add heavy cream. Freeze until thick but not hard. Add peach pulp [mash or sieve canned peaches to make the pulp] and continue freezing until firm.

MOCHA ICE CREAM.
[Freezer; 2 quarts.]

1-3 cup ground coffee
2 cups milk, scalded
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, cut in pieces
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 quart thin cream
1 tablespoon vanilla

Add coffee to milk and bring to boiling point. Let cool, strain through a cloth, and add chocolate. Heat and stir until chocolate has melted. Mix flour, sugar, and salt and add to beaten eggs. Pour milk-coffee and chocolate over the mixture gradually, stirring constantly. Cook the combination in the top of the double boiler, stirring constantly, for about five minutes, or until it coats a clean spoon. Add cream and vanilla. Freeze in a mixture of six parts ice to one of rock salt. After freezing has been completed, remove dasher, pack the cream in four parts ice to one of salt to ripen for several hours before using.

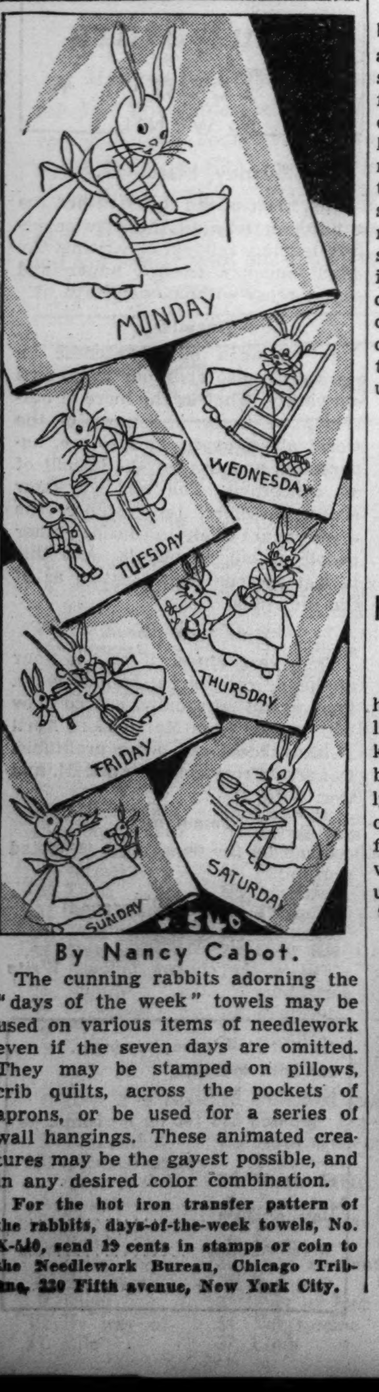
Transfer Pattern Places Rabbits on Varied Items



By Nancy Cabot.

The cunning rabbits adorning the "days of the week" towels may be used on various items of needlework even if the seven days are omitted. They may be stamped on pillows, crib quilts, across the pockets of aprons, or be used for a series of wall hangings. These animated creatures may be the gayest possible, and in any desired color combination.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the rabbits, days-of-the-week towels, No. X-540, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

The color you wear on your nails is as much a costume color accent as the flower in your lapel or the stone in your ring. Here you see a winter gown doing spring duty, ably assisted by fuchsia nail enamel, a flower locket, and a bracelet of fuchsia flowers that exactly match it.

Revarnishing nails between professional manicures is a tedious job and one at which most women are not particularly expert. It takes a good deal of practice and a steady hand to apply a coat of dark polish in clean, smooth strokes.

Every woman who does it ultimately develops a method that works best for her. Our own is to give up any attempt at "half moons" at the base of the nail, or even leaving the tips free. Getting these lines clean is more than we can cope with. We cover the nail entirely, and like the effect better, anyway.

• • •

The big trick is not to get too much on the brush. The polish should be thinned if it has become sticky, and when the brush is withdrawn from the bottle be certain to press it against one side as you draw it out so that polish doesn't hang heavily from the bristles. If you use that side of the brush which has not been pressed against the bottle for the actual application, you should be able, if you bear down gently on the brush, to lacker a nail with one stroke rather than three. Then, with your orangewood stick clear away any polish close to the nail rim, leaving a small space entirely free. The cuticle should be kept free of polish.

The simple trick of using a polish base will eliminate the necessity of frequent polish repair. It will give a higher luster, too. And, if it's a good base, the protective sheath beneath the lacker will cover the minute roughnesses which so often are responsible for making polish chip long before it logically should.

One of our favorite bases is a cloudy pink liquid that is thin and quick drying. It's transparent on the nails and far easier to apply than some of the heavier foundations that we've tried. It gives a perfectly smooth surface on which to apply your polish and intensifies the luster. To make the polish coat still stronger and to make it even more lustrous, you can apply a coat of the base over the polish, as well. It's easy to do. Drying time isn't nearly as long as you'd expect, and the life of the polish coat has been lengthened by days.

• • •

Don't be too hasty in blaming the manufacturer, however, if you think nail enamel chips too easily. Some colognes and perfumes will remove polish if you chance to get a few drops on the nails, something that's easy to do. We had a sunburn preventive lotion one time that wrecked polish in a matter of minutes. Scouring powders and steel wool will play the dickens with the polish on the housewives' hands. There are adverse external influences on polish that you must always keep in mind.

The subject of shades is a large one. There must be hundreds on the market now. During the past winter the purplish reds were by far the favorite. What will be first choice for spring and summer no one can foretell at the moment. But the fashion people are pretty pleased with the effect of subtle purplish reds against the grays and the tender pastels. They might be with us for many more months.

Has Your House Shutoff Valves to Each Fixture?

Has the plumbing system of your house shutoff valves to each branch line and to each fixture, and do you know where they are? When a pipe bursts, action is required—and quickly. And, of course, if you have shutoff valves to each branch line and fixture, the water supply for the whole house won't have to be cut off until it is mended.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

You can't dress a child in utilitarian clothes all the time and expect her to grow up with clothes sense. Training a daughter in fashion is as much a mother's responsibility as seeing that she learns to brush her teeth and hair regularly. Part of the program should be a new dress at as frequent intervals as possible, and these frocks need not be expensive, but they must be smart. You may throw a dressmaking lesson in, too, by having your daughter make her frocks herself. She might begin with the simple model illustrated today.

The one-piece frock has a pointed-up waistline and a flared skirt, topped by a softly shirred bodice and puffed sleeves. If your daughter is a growing-up at the fashion conscious age, by all means create the frock with the bolero. The dress might have cuffs and a collar of contrasting material, and buttons down the bodice front. You should make the bolero in any case, however, because it may be laid aside when Sissie wants to wear the dress just by itself. The neckline, if you wish, may be square, and given lace or ruffling for the finish, more of which may be used on the sleeves.

Both prints and plain shades make up well, and silks and cottons are equally acceptable.

Style No. 2932 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

French Frocks Growing Rich in Personality

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—There comes a time in every man's life when a woman needs a new dress, and this is it. The girls who live alone and like it feel no less called upon to follow that urge, and with the spread of dresses that are on display this spring, it's going to take a terrific control to halt with one dress.

Dresses, I'd like to state, have left off being simple, background helpmates to coats, jewelry displays, and furs. They're off on a program of developing personality in a very big way.

There are countless little numbers with swaying, flaring skirts and provocative fitted blouses, most of which end around the hipbones. Each bids for personal character via a guimpe, pockets, frilly collar and wrist work, or some such thing.

• • •

Soft and flattering frocks that give a wasp-waisted effect, but are easy to wear because of plaiting and paneling of skirts and fulness above the waistline, are good for almost every type of woman. Their corselet girdles often are inconspicuously set in, and made of the same material, so they can be worn by women whose girth around the waistline is a problem.

There are many sophisticated dresses to be found, whose subtly draped blouses make them irresistible to the woman who knows "all" about dressing. Some of these have front fulness in the skirts, others have a "full-hipped" line achieved by side fulness.

Dresses of the new season have abandoned the uniform neckline, and you'll find that, although many dress necklines are high, you may wear a lower rounded or squared neckline without loss of chic, if it suits you better. Similarly, sleeves no longer are regimented. There are short sleeves, medium length sleeves, very big sleeves, and long, fitted sleeves, all excellent in their fashion importance.

• • •

The printed silk dresses form a larger group than ever before. Spring will start off with dresses made chiefly of tiny-patterned silks. Patterns tend to be neat and orderly, and small flowerheads set in rows are being stressed. So are dotted patterns, checks, and stripes.

In color the choice is unlimited. A large number of very smart women will wear black or dark blue dresses this spring, dresses that will have personality trimming of lace or lingerie, and that will be paired with pastel colored wraps. Bonbon pastels will make many dresses, and there will be tamarlane beige frocks, tobacco yellow, fuchsia and terra-cotta red, and soft green and blue dresses for all who like them.

The two-piece afternoon frock will be a new item. One model comes from Mainbocher, and is made of navy blue crêpe. The long blouse is delicately trimmed with double rows of navy blue lace, and long net gloves also are edged with lace ruffles. The simple skirt has an inverted box plait at the front, and is worn over a taffeta petticoat having a many-ruffled lace hem.

• • •

Taffeta dresses will be smart this season. Bruyere designed a model which has a long bodice, ending in a peplum, and a skirt that's flared by box plaits and gathered panels. The taffeta is patterned with flower sprays in yellow, blue and red, and a yellow felt hat is worn with the dress.

A printed silk Balenciaga dress is one of the draped fraternity of frocks, and has a very new neckline, cut low at the back and buttoned to the waistline. The draped shoulder yoke at the front is cut in one with the elbow sleeves.

French Sports Costume Is Provided with Lumberjacket

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — One of the smartest fashions, by far, to appear in behalf of cruise and southern vacation clothes is a recently launched Paris model. According to what I hear from the couturier who created it, this costume has traveled to the Riviera in some of the most fashionable women's trunks. The outfit ought to be just as popular in the south of the United States, in high favor with those busy women who are just managing to squeeze a southern vacation into their hectic programs of business and philanthropy.

The lumber jacket mode hit Paris in the middle of the winter season, and has survived, in modified form, to doll up some of the nicest warm climate numbers. It's used to advantage in this sports costume. The dress that is the foundation of this ensemble is backless and sleeveless and has a halter neckline in back, a rather high round one in front. A slide fastener is used down the front of the bodice and the skirt is flared.

Topping this fundamentally simple dress is a lumber jacket in the inevitably fashionable plaid. It has a round "little girl" collar, short sleeves, buttons down the front, and a draped waistline. The original costume has the dress of white pique, and the jacket of plaid washable silk in bright colors.

Style No. 5285 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Jean Hoffman, 3647 W. 5th avenue, Chicago: I keep a toy magnet with my sewing and pick up pins with it, instead of with my fingers; then, too, in cleaning through the house it picks up those hairpins that fall in corners and are hard to pick up if you are wearing rubber gloves for your cleaning work.

* *

Mrs. Frank Savel, 5532 South Damen avenue, Chicago: Here are two "helps" I'll pass on. In bad weather when clothes are dried inside and you have a limited space, string two lines about two and one-half feet apart, hang clothes with one corner on one line and the other corner on the other line. In this way two lines will accommodate more clothes. My other help: when one has to ship a mirror or a glass covered picture, paste narrow strips of paper across the glass. This breaks vibrations and prevents cracking.

Mrs. E. C. Lewerenz, Fort Wayne, Ind.: When my children's socks need mending I use embroidery floss in colors to match the hose. For cotton socks I use three strands of the floss, while one or two strands make a neater darn in silk or lisle socks or anklets. It is easy to get this embroidery floss in colors that match pink and green, yellow, blue, and red hose.

There Are Numerous Ways to Make Your House a Quiet One

There are numerous small ways to make a house quieter:

If you carpet the second floor stairs, the clank of heels won't be so irritating.

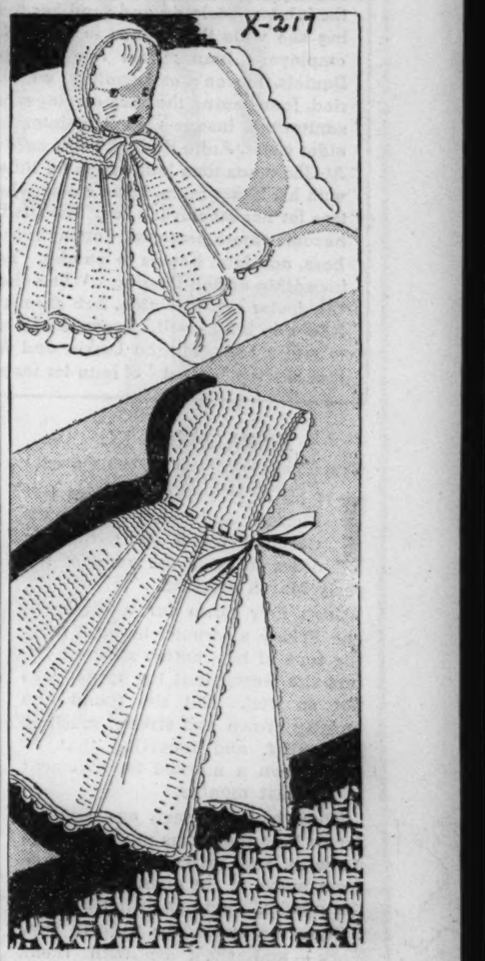
Any good carpenter can silence a rattling window or shutter, or squeaky stair.

Any good plumber can silence noisy plumbing.

And as for insuring better sleep at night:

Venetian blinds will shut out the morning sun if you have an east bedroom; weather strips on bedroom doors will keep the noises out of your bedroom from the rest of the house; a comfortable mattress, with a good pad to keep it smooth will do wonders for you.

Crocheted Cape with Hood Keeps Baby Protected



By Ellen Bruce.

Crocheted capes with hoods attached are a boon to babies taking their afternoon airings. Not only are they a protection against drafts around the head and shoulders, but they keep the infant's hands warm without being noticeably confining. This simple crochet item is not difficult to make, and is especially attractive when crocheted of fine baby wool or pompadour in soft pink or white. A narrow ribbon ties the neckline closely.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Joan Armstrong learns that Adelaide Noonan, with whom she'd attended secretarial school, has collapsed with tuberculosis just as she was about to start work as secretary to William Bowen, executive of an export firm. Dr. Deering, friend of Adelaide's father, has gotten the job for her and has now arranged to send her to his uncle's sanitarium in Arizona. Joan has longed to work, but agreed with her parents that she shouldn't deprive some needy girl of a job. She has refused to marry faithful Tommy Emerson, whom she doesn't love. Now Joan offers to hold down the job for Adelaide and send her the salary. With the aid of Bob Deering she wins the chance in spite of the misgivings of Bill Bowen, her employer. Joan moves into an apartment of her own. From Alice Daniels, Bowen's ex-secretary, who left his employment when she married, Joan learns that her employer is married and that his wife is in a sanitarium, insane except at intervals since the birth of her son. Her elder sister, Anita Hadley, takes care of Bill Bowen's child and household. At Christmas time Joan shops for little Bill Jr., as his aunt is ill, and dines with his father in the latter's den, where Joan has decorated a Christmas tree for her employer's son. The friendship between Joan and Bill Bowen becomes more personal. Tommy teases her about falling in love with her boss, and Joan begins to wonder. Yet she is happy in her work and the friendship of Bob Deering. When she tries to promote romance between the doctor and Adelaide, Bob shocks her by telling her that he loves not Adelaide but herself. Because she is rich, however, he does not ask her to marry him. Martha Larkin and Anita Hadley strike up a friendship that has the "defeat" of Joan for inspiration.

INSTALMENT IX.

(Copyright: 1939: Faith Baldwin Cuthrell.)

IN MARCH the Armstrongs left Florida and went to South Carolina for a short time in order to avoid the worst of the early March weather.

Joan flew down for a week-end one Friday afternoon because from the tone of her mother's recent letters she feared that her father was not so well. But she found him looking brown and strong, much to her relief, and reporting that he had shown a marked improvement in the last months.

They had not seen one another for so long there was much to catch up with, and Joan's tongue wagged from morning till night. "Hung in the middle," said her father happily.

Soon they would be back in New York — and she'd be with them, wouldn't she?

Joan shook her curly head. She'd see them every day if she could. But she was going on living alone.

"And liking it. Besides, I have a lease."

Her mother indicated that leases could be broken, but Joan said, no, that wasn't very businesslike, was it? She smiled at them both. "I'm getting very businesslike," she added.

When she had gone her parents settled down to the inevitable discussion of their child and her problems. Mrs. Armstrong commented, frowning a little: "She talks a lot about this man Bowen. At least in spurts. After which she doesn't talk about him at all—for a while."

"She talks just as much about Dr. Deering," said Joan's father thoughtfully. "You know, I like that lad. Failing Tommy—well, my money's on Deering."

"Tommy," his wife repeated, shrugging. "I'm afraid there's no hope at all in that direction. I have felt it ever since that two-hour session with him in Palm Beach. . . . I was dreadfully sorry for him," she interrupted, "but I must say striding up and down and railing at Joan's job didn't help matters. If he talked that way to her it's the surest way to antagonize her—and he should realize it."

"All very well, but men aren't as smart as women," said her husband. "Now, about Bob Deering—— "

"O, there's nothing in that," replied Mrs. Armstrong confidently. "Let me see—I think Joan told me some time ago that he was interested in her little friend Adelaide Noonan. The girl's illness and all that followed brought them together. I'm sure she likes him enormously—but she isn't in love with him. Can't be, she speaks of him so frankly. But that Bowen man," she went on, going back to the original topic.

Her husband patted her shoulder and laughed.

"Don't be so disturbed," he said. "Joan has far too much sense. I can't visualize her running around falling in love with a married man even if he is her boss!"

"I know. But she'd talk along so—so ingenuously about him, and then she'd close up like a clam. And she raves about his little boy. She seems to have been seeing more of Mr. Bowen than her work would warant. And I don't like it."

Her husband said quietly: "There's nothing you can do about it, my dear, even if what you think is true. Mind you, I don't agree with you. You can't bring any pressure to bear on her. That is, you can, emotional pressure, if you wish. But suppose you're wrong? You'll estrange her perhaps irrevocably; or even if you're right. Financial pressure is out of the question. Joan has her own money. Personally I think you are making a whole range of mountains out of a molehill. I wish you'd stop worrying. Anyway, we'll soon be back in town and you can keep an eye on here and her activities."

"She's going on with the job," said Mrs. Armstrong, "all summer—— "

"Well, you expected her to, didn't you? You didn't think she'd quit as the thermometer rose?" asked her husband, smiling.

"No. But I hoped. But she'll be down on the island week-ends at least," said his wife, sighing. "That will be something. She'll see all her friends again."

"While you pray that they will seduce her into idleness, you wicked woman!"

"Perhaps." She smiled at him self-consciously. "I do miss her so much," she said quietly.

"So do I—but one way or another you lose your children," he said soberly, "and this is the better way. For if this situation hadn't arisen we might have lost her more completely, Evelyn, even though she remained with us."

She said: "I suppose you're right. You are, as a rule. And that's a confession for a woman to make to her husband. Yet — all I want is Joan's happiness."

● ● ●

JOAN was too busy to think much about personal happiness. Yet she was happy without being conscious of it. March had come in like a lion, but its leonine qualities were of short duration. The days were bright and blue, the air deliciously fresh and soft, and Joan's work more exacting.

Bowen was away now and again for several days at a time. Kirk, his senior partner, had a long and difficult case of influenza and had been ordered out of town to convalesce, so Bowen took over some of the more pressing details of his work in the export end of the business. This meant trips to see manufacturers, and Joan found that he was beginning to rely on her more and more to keep the office running smoothly. She thrived under responsibility and took it very seriously.

She had not seen much of Tommy since his return from the south. She was human enough to be a trifle piqued by his apparent neglect, although she told herself frequently that it was a great relief. And she had seen Bob Deering only a few times. Once he stopped in one evening and found her battling with a head cold. He became very professional, ordered her to bed and to stay. But she defied him, laughing.

"It's nothing. It will be over tomorrow; I have it licked."

"That's what you think! If you don't consider yourself, why not think of the people in the office to whom you'll give it?" he demanded.

But she wouldn't listen. And he went on, looking around the familiar room with the air of a man who has been in exile. "I really called to inquire about Mac. He came to my office once or twice after I discharged him from the hospital, but now he's vanished."

"He's fine," said Joan. "Back at work. Mr. Bowen didn't want him to, but he insisted. Said he'd die if he were idle. So what was there to do? They put another man on as assistant, so-called. He's younger, needs the work, and understands the situation.

"Mr. Bowen found Mac a place to live with a middle-aged couple who have a pleasant apartment, lots of sun and air. They'll look after him. The woman's a grand cook; she'll fuss over his food. He's paying the same rent he paid at the lodging house, and just what he'd always allowed himself for meals. It isn't enough, of course, but Mr. Bowen makes up the difference without his knowing. He's going to try to ease him out of the watchman work in a year or less and pension him. If he can do it without hurting the old man's feelings. He's dreadfully proud."

Deering was watching her shining eyes, the play of expression on her ardent face. His heart was heavy within him. There was nothing he could do or say . . . he'd only antagonize her, and he had no right. Moreover, if he said anything at all, commented ever so lightly on her perfectly obvious hero worship of her employer, she would believe it jealousy on his part. So he commented, smiling with an effort:

"Bill Bowen's a good sort—generous, kindly."

"Indeed he is," agreed Joan eagerly. "You've no idea—I hadn't until recently when when I was taken more into his confidence—the fine things he does for people—— "

She stopped, flushed, as if suddenly conscious of her enthusiasm, and began to chatter about her parents, her last letter from Adelaide.

Deering rose to go. He had stolen the time; it did not belong to him. He said: "Well I'm glad Mac's all right — and — you, too. But take care of that cold."

Her little nose was red and she did not look her best. But she was lovely always to him. He took her hand, slid his fingers to the pulse, and said after a minute during which she laughed at him, making no effort to release herself:

"Well, no temperature, at any rate."

Joan took her hand away and made a face.

"Of course not."

"If you run one—into bed you go and stay, young lady. And you would be smart to anyway, temperature or no temperature."

"I haven't time," she told him carelessly.

"No, of course not." He walked toward the door, picked up his bag in the little foyer, and laid his hand on the knob. There he hesitated and turned.

"Joan?"

"Well?"

He said awkwardly: "You're forgotten what I said to you — the other night?"

"It wasn't the other night. It was ever so long ago. No, I haven't forgotten," she answered honestly, "although I wish I could."

His fine face looked haggard and unhappy. He asked, "You wish you could?" slowly, and she saw that he had hurt him deeply. She exclaimed, put her hand on his arm impulsively.

"I didn't mean that—I meant I was afraid it might spoil our friendship. That's meant a great deal to me. I've missed seeing you. You've helped me all along so very much. And I've thought perhaps you didn't mean it, or were—joking."

He said gravely, almost sternly:

"I wasn't joking, as you very well know. And I've cursed myself for a fool ever since that night. I could have gone on, kept my mouth shut, kept at the same time your friendship and confidence."

"You have those, Bob," she said. And then sincerely, "I wish I had more to offer."

"It will serve." His eyes laughed at her suddenly, crinkled at the corners. "I won't be such a fool as to say it is enough. Joan . . . if you ever need me——? You'll forget then that I'm in love with you and remember only that I love you —you can rely on that, can't you?"

Her eyes were bright with tears. She said:

"I can rely on that, Bob."

"Well," he said, "that's all I want to know—that you won't let —what I feel set up a barrier between us."

He opened the door and said strongly:

"And I'm supposed to know something about psychology! Of course it will—if the barrier weren't there already I'd have no occasion to speak of it. But no barrier's impassable. Except death."

He looked at her with his quick, flashing smile and was gone.

Joan went back to the living room. It was as if he had warned her. Of what, of whom? She knew, but pretended she did not know. Her head ached a little. There on the living room desk lay a blue slip. A prescription. She remembered him sitting down to write it, looking at her with impatience, saying: "Women are such idiots. People are such idiots. Only a cold! Only a cold can become a lot of vastly more unpleasant things. Wouldn't you rather stay in bed for twenty-four or forty-eight hours than a month or six weeks? Don't shake your head at me You're all alike!"

She went to the house telephone and called the drug store to send for the blue slip. She'd take the medicine and go to bed and read.

But she could not keep her mind on the book. She began to wish that she had not seen Deering, much as she had missed him. He had made her feel uncomfortable and, yes, guilty. She had no reason in the world to feel guilty. She hadn't done anything; she——

It was perfectly natural for any young woman to admire Bill Bowen whether she was employed by him or not. But in his employ she had so much more opportunity to see just what sort of a man he was—the generous impulses, the humanity, the decency——

She had learned to discount his moods, his occasional irritability; had shut her eyes to one or two glaring examples of injustice which had occurred during the month of her employment. At least they had seemed like injustice to her—said and accomplished in what was clearly a fit of anger or depression. But Bowen had always been able to explain his reasons, his motives.

I'm too sentimental, anyway, she argued with herself. He isn't sentimental even when he is being kind. Yet Andrews' case lingered in her mind. Andrews of the Rio office, who had pulled the enormous boner, actuated by the unconsidered zeal of youth and who was coming to the United States by the first boat in consequence.

Joan had even put in her little plea. She felt as if she knew Andrews — his letters had passed through her hands, and his cables. He had married a Brazilian girl; there was a baby on the way. His last despairing communication had made that clear. But Bowen was adamant. Andrews' error had cost the firm money and, more than money, embarrassment. Such errors were costly and must not be repeated. Definitly Andrews must be dismissed.

Joan had spoken of the situation to Miss Harrington, who was fully conversant with it through her presence at conferences between the firm's executives.

"I don't understand," said Joan. "He's so kind, so willing to overlook mistakes."

"Not that sort. That, my dear, was darned near a political situation. Competition is all very well, and a lot of slick methods get by. But when it comes to getting a man drunk and grabbing an order—especially when the man happens to be the son of a diplomat of another great country—— "

"All's fair," began Joan rebelliously.

"Not in this case. And Bill Bowen is as hard as nails where the firm's prestige is concerned."

"What will Andrews do? He's completely discredited — his wife probably doesn't speak a word of English—and they'll land here next week."

"Joan," said Miss Harrington seriously, "worry less, will you? That's the bosses' business, not yours. Once you make it yours you're a gone goose. Take my advice."

She said absurdly "He was so nice to Mac!"

Miss Harrington laughed. "All that cost him was a little time and some money — from his personal pocketbook. Don't you know the firm's his idol, his god? Nothing must threaten it. Nothing."

JOAN'S cold vanished and she felt prepared for any emergency. But she was not prepared for the morning in late March when she went into Bowen's office with her notebook and found him, as usual, by the windows, with his hands behind his back.

He said without turning, "Sit down a minute, will you, Joan?"

He did not always call her Joan. But now and then he did; it was a habit into which he had slipped lately.

Presently, as she waited quietly, her heart beating in odd anticipation, he came over and sat down at his desk. He said, his hard gray eyes regarding her:

"This Rio situation has emerged into something fairly important. Andrews—— " he began.

He shrugged. "He's well out of it. But the office is haywire. I'm flying down."

"When?"

"As soon as possible. And I shall take you along."

"Me?" she said faintly.

"Yes, you." He regarded her with what seemed like anger.

Then he spoke gently and as patiently as if she were a child. "It's not unusual," he assured her, "in this day and age for a woman, even as young and personable as you, to accompany her employer on a business trip in a secretarial capacity."

She was far angrier than he had been. Did he take her for a congenital idiot?

"I wasn't questioning it," she said hotly. "I was surprised, that's all."

He said quickly: "Forgive me . . . I'm on edge. While Alice was with me she made several trips with me. Generally I have young Kinsmith from the accounting department. He began his career as a very fine secretary. He's laid up now with the prevailing flu. I'm taking a new man down in Andrews' place, Norton, who was in the Madrid office. And you. There will be a lot of work we can clean up en route. I'll attend to your passport and visa and all the necessary things—and you'll travel light. You'll want to, because it's the end of summer down there."

She found herself saying, "Yes, Mr. Bowen," with a deceptive meekness. Her heart danced, and her eyes. But she kept her eyes down, and he could not see her heart. He was asking, "Have you ever been to Brazil?"

"On a cruise," she told him, "some years ago."

"Then it won't be new to you," he said, and there was a note of disappointment in his voice.

"No, but I've never flown. That will be new—from Porto Rico. We touch at San Juan, don't we? I've flown there and to the Bahamas and Nassau."

But now she was flying to South America.

With customary dispatch Bowen got things under way for the trip. The official regulations would take very little time. He was very well known in Brazil and other parts of South America through the wide-flung branches of the firm, established now for over four years. And Joan went home faced with a hundred details and one large problem, that of telling her family.

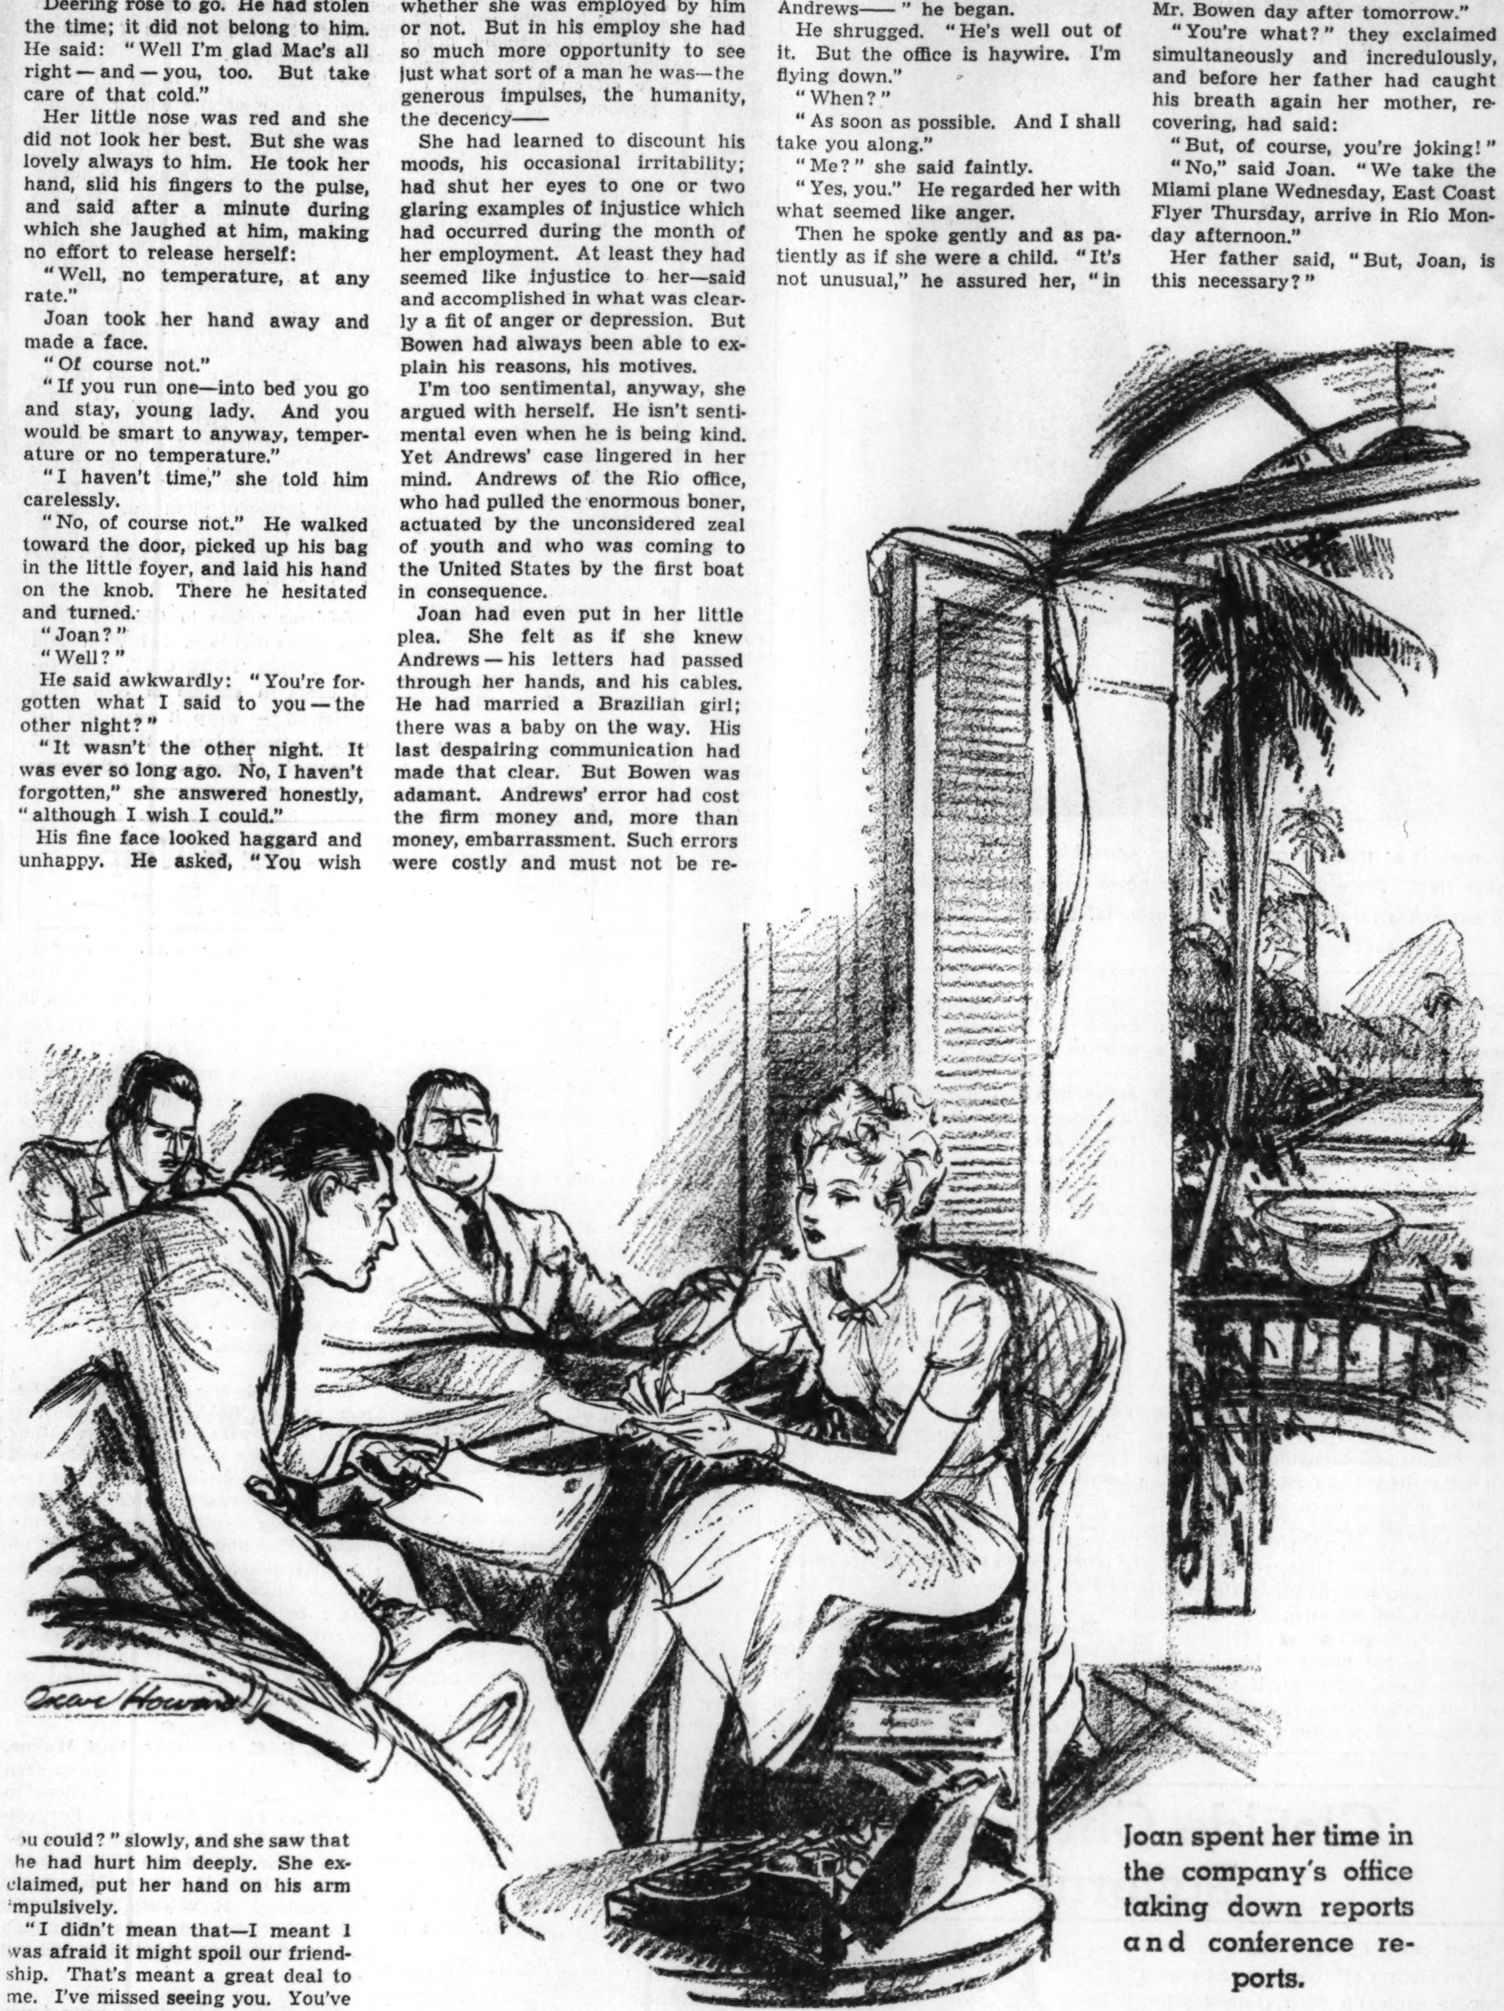
They were home now; therefore she went uptown that evening to dinner and to break the news. Wise girl, she waited until the meal was over and her father had said comfortably, "Traveling's all right, but one's own dinner table is a lot better, eh, Evelyn?" before she said carelessly, "Speaking of traveling, I'm flying to South America with Mr. Bowen day after tomorrow."

"You're what?" they exclaimed simultaneously and incredulously, and before her father had caught his breath again her mother, recovering, had said:

"But, of course, you're joking!"

"No," said Joan. "We take the Miami plane Wednesday, East Coast Flyer Thursday, arrive in Rio Monday afternoon."

Her father said, "But, Joan, is this necessary?"



Joan spent her time in the company's office taking down reports and conference reports.

"Of course it isn't," her mother said before Joan could reply. "It's out of the question. You're not going."

Joan said quietly, "But I am."

Her mother made a gesture of despair. She said, "I've never heard of anything so crazy!"

"That's pretty stuffy," said Joan coolly. "Business men go everywhere with their secretaries with them. Last time we were south Mr. Pedersen, who had the suite next to us, had two. Both young and pretty. And no one said or thought anything. On our way to the coast summer before last Bailey, the lawyer you knew, had his secretary with him. She was in the next compartment to mine."

"Suppose we discuss this," said Mr. Armstrong, "over our coffee."

● ● ●

"Granted that the practice is usual," she said, "in your case it isn't."

"Why? I'm working. I'm doing the same work Alice Daniels did before me or that Adelaide would have done. Just because I'm Charles Armstrong's daughter doesn't give me special privileges. When Mr. Bowen wants me to go somewhere with him on business he can't be expected to provide a chaperon. I'm not," said Joan furiously, "a sacred cow, thank God."

Her father said gently:

"We aren't forbidding you, Joan. We can't. You're of age; you have your own income. But you must not expect our whole-hearted approval."

She said shrewdly: "You don't mind — very much, I know. It's mother."

He mother said weakly, feeling she had lost her strongest support:

"How can you blame me, Joan?"

Joan went over to sit on the arm of her chair and lean her curly head against her mother's. She said: "Darling, why are you worried? I —I'm dying to go. It will be a marvelous experience, and Mr. Bowen really needs me." She explained rapidly that her predecessor had made many trips with Bowen, that sometimes on longer trips he took a young man with secretarial training, that there would be another man along.

Her mother said in the middle of her argument, "But this man—this Bowen—— " She broke off; her husband had caught her eye and was shaking his head. Joan went on talking. She was saying coaxingly: "You'll have to help me. I—I won't have time to shop. I'll need some light dresses."

When she left that night it was to embrace them both, hold them in her strong young arms, beg them, half laughing, half crying: "Don't be cross with me, please, darlings. It's all part of the job."

"But when will you be back?" her mother asked.

"We expect to catch the Thursday Flyer back," she said. "That gives us all of Tuesday and Wednesday to attend to business."

They stood together in the square foyer, and the bell rang. Joan opened the door. "Tommy!" she said in some dismay.

"A little bird told me you'd be here," he greeted her. Joan looked at her mother with reproach. "So I dropped around. But you're running out on me."

"I have to go," she said. "Sorry, Tommy."

"Got your car?"

"Still in storage; I'll take it out soon."

"I'll drive you home."

"The family car—— " began Joan.

But he wouldn't hear of it. "I'll take you," he repeated, "and don't say me nay, woman, or I'll abduct you bodily."

So he drove her home. He had been keeping away from her, on Mrs. Armstrong's advice delivered to him when he went to see her in Palm Beach. But he was tired of it. He began to plan: We'll do this, we'll do that. "What are you doing over the week-end? The Davises are opening the lodge on Peconic. We might make it a reunion."

"I'm going to South America on business," said Joan calmly. "To be gone in all something less than two weeks."

He said, "On business—you!" He laughed. "That's a good one."

"Watch your driving," she warned him. "You'll be run in if you do anything like that again. Yes, it is a good one, isn't it? But it happens to be true."

He wouldn't believe it. He followed her into the apartment and argued with her. And when he had learned the details he was speechless with exasperation.

"I never heard of such damned foolishness. Jaunting down to South America with your boss. Your people are crazy to let you go."

"It would be hard to stop me," she said serenely.

But he wouldn't let it rest there. He had plenty to say about Bowen and his possible motives. "Damned good excuse—as if you were so invaluable," he added. In the end Joan, as angry as he, ordered him out of the house, and he went, slamming the door hard. It was their most serious quarrel. As far as she was concerned, she hoped it would be permanent, she told herself, almost weeping with rage.

● ● ●

IT WAS not yet ten o'clock. When the telephone rang she went to it, blowing her nose vigorously, her heart full of black thoughts against Tommy, his insinuations and general behavior.

It was Deering. He said pleasantly:

"Glad I caught you at home, where you should be. How's that cold?"

"It's fine, Bob, thanks; all over with."

"Doesn't sound like it," he said suspiciously.

Joan began to laugh.

"Don't mind me," she said cheerfully. "I've just had a set-to with mother and father and a knock-down-drag-out fight with Tommy Emerson."

"That accounts for your voice," he suggested. "Rage, not coryza. That's good. But what's the matter?"

She drew a deep breath and for the third time that evening explained the situation. There was a brief silence when she finished, and she said with exasperation:

"Don't tell me you're coming all over heavy parent, too, Bob."

He said: "Why should I? Part of your job, isn't it? And it should be fun, too. You like flying. Look here, when were you vaccinated last?"

"Before I went to South America on that cruise—four years ago."

"Did it take?"

"And how!" she said fervently.

"What about typhoid?"

"Last summer when I took that jaunt out to a couple of dude ranches with the Davis girls," she said cheerfully. "Mother insisted."

"Good!" said Bob cheerfully. "Then you'll be okeh. Hope you have a swell trip. Call me when you come back."

Presently she severed the connection and sat by the telephone looking thoughtful. In a way Bob's unconcern was as maddening as her parents' and Tommy's disapproval.

Mrs. Armstrong acquitted herself very well on the shopping trip, and Joan, together with Bill Bowen and the pleasant middle-aged Mr. Norton, got off on the first lap of their trip. And the next day they took the East Coast Flyer from Miami, the beautiful silver ship.

The weather was perfect, fellow passengers agreeable, if on occasion curious, and the overnight stops were made on schedule. Cable reports followed them everywhere, and Joan found herself working with as much ease on board the plane or in the strange high-ceilinged room of some tropical hotel as if she were in her own office.

She saw nothing of Bowen alone except when she took dictation from him. He and Norton were in conference most of the time. He was always most considerate of her comfort, saw that her accommodations were the most luxurious obtainable. And somehow it ceased to be strange to be with him under tropic skies and over a bright blue ocean.

Moonlight, starlight, sunlight, strange ports, strange countries. The overnight stops in San Juan, Port of Spain, Belem, Recife, and the arrival at Rio. She had liked Rio on her visit before, but this time it had almost seemed magical to her—broad avenues and hillside gardens, hotels and casinos, crowds of tourists, the dark faces of the natives, the soft, quick-spoken language.

But she was not to sight-see very much. She went with Norton and Bowen to the company's offices and spent her time there, taking down reports and conference notes as prosaically as if she were in New York. The heat was oppressive, but she did not mind, although the men did. The two evenings were spent having a late dinner, walking through the brightly lighted streets, and on the second and last evening in driving outside the city in a big car.

Norton was staying. His luggage would follow him. And in two days the business had been concluded, proper calls made on the proper people and Andrews' error smoothed over and so, Bowen was assured, forgotten.

● ● ●

NOW they made the return trip. But that was different. No Norton. There was, of course, considerable work. But more time for play, sightseeing, leisurely meals together at the overnight stops.

Their last stop was San Juan, in the late afternoon. Heat shimmered up from the pavements, but in the great gardens of the hotel it was cool, with fountains splashing and flowers opening heavy with perfume. They went shopping for souvenirs, and there was time to buy suits and go for a swim on a white beach with a curving, rocky coast line. Palms and blue mountains and golden stars hanging so close that you could reach up and pick them.

"I'm having such a good time," Joan said as Bowen took her to the door of her room that night and held her hand in his own.

He had been unusually quiet, she thought, following their dinner. Now she saw that he looked tired and inexplicably sad. He said:

"I'm not."

"But—— "

"O," said Bowen angrily, "what's the use? I shouldn't have brought you. I knew it, of course. I welcomed the excuse. It was an excuse. Do you think my mind has been on business—on Andrews and his folly, on the wings of blue butterflies, on mate yerbe and baskets, tortoise shells and feathers, hats from Ecuador and rag dolls from Bahia? You know it hasn't. It's been on you--you all the way, your loveliness, your companionship, your sweetness. . . . I'll never forgive myself."

She was looking at him with great blue eyes distended with some emotion he could not fathom. He put out his arms, caught her to him, kissed her tremulous mouth, and released her.

Joan went in her room and closed the door. She was shaking from head to foot. She stood there a moment trying to think. She said aloud, "What shall I do?"

Your Stars Today

By WYNN

Sunday, March 12.

The week ahead looks rather too emotional; let's all think twice before leaping, talking, or writing. Today: tendency toward anger and haste; relax without worry.

Enemies.

As we open our awareness inwardly we also open our awareness outwardly. That is, the more of ourselves we know, the more of the world about us do we also see, understand, and use for the benefit of all concerned. The less we know about ourselves, for instance, the more we are likely to consider other people as our opponents. And this is just as true of the nation as of the individual.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead, if this is your birthday, can be a banner year. Push ahead personally, but go slow with money from March 27 to April 27. New ideas can prove profitable. Danger: From now to April 24, and Dec. 9 to 27.

Tomorrow.

Food properly seasoned is an art in itself. Salt and pepper are the basic seasonings and should be used during the cooking of the food—not after the food is cooked. A good cook in the home should study the tastes of the members of the family, so that no additional salt and pepper should be added when the food is placed on the table.

Many times I have watched a diner sprinkle salt and pepper on his food before he even tasted it. Well, of course, that is purely a habit and it reminds me of a small restaurant in Paris, France: Maison Montagne. The proprietor is Prosper Montagne. He is also the chef. I am not sure whether he is among the living today, but a generation ago he was a great authority on culinary matters.

When a party entered his restaurant and ordered one of his specialties he would take his post behind the curtain as the waiter was serving the food. He would watch closely the mobile features of his guests and if they registered approval then M. Montagne would chuckle happily. But if the facial expressions indicated disappointment then M. Montagne would leap through the curtains and remove the food.

He would then start to prepare another one of his specialties, and even another one, until his guests were perfectly satisfied. His great boast was that no patron ever left his restaurant disappointed or dissatisfied.

SWEETBREADS NEWBURG.

Sweetbreads are purchased by the pair. Separate them and soak in cold water for one hour. Then cover them with boiling salted water, to which has been added one-quarter cup of vinegar; simmer for 20 minutes. Drain and plunge into cold water to harden. Remove any pieces of windpipe and membrane and cut into edible sized pieces. To two cups of sweetbreads prepare the following sauce: Melt two tablespoons of butter in saucepan, blend in one tablespoon of flour, and gradually add one-half pint of cream, stirring constantly until smooth and boiling point is reached. Season to taste with salt and a few grains of cayenne, add sweetbreads, and hold over low heat until thoroughly heated. Just before serving add three tablespoons of sherry wine. Serve in patty shells or on freshly made toast.

WIENER SCHNITZEL.

- 1 veal cutlet, cut thick
- Salt and pepper
- 1 egg
- 1 cup fine dry bread crums
- Hot fat or butter

Cut veal into pieces for individual service; discard bone. Season meat with salt and pepper and roll each piece in fine bread crums, then in beaten egg and again in bread crums. Cook veal in hot skillet until nicely browned on both sides. Use only enough fat to keep meat from sticking to pan. Serve with a well seasoned tomato sauce or a cream paprika sauce made as follows: When veal is cooked and browned on both sides have ready to pour in the pan one-half pint of thick cream and one tablespoon of sweet paprika. Spoon the cream over the veal, heat thoroughly, and serve.

SOFT SHELL CLAMS, MEXICANO.

- 12 soft shell clams
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Few grains cayenne
- 2 shallots, finely chopped, or
- 1 teaspoon minced onion
- ½ green pepper, finely chopped
- 1 large fresh tomato, peeled and chopped
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Wash clams, open shells, remove clams, and save liquor. Melt butter in saucepan, add clams, and cook several minutes. Add seasonings, shallots or onions, green pepper, and tomato. Add reserved clam liquor and Worcestershire sauce and bring to boiling point. Serve with toast points.

BROILED SALMON STEAK, FINES HERB.

Have the salmon steak cut three-quarters inch thick. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and dip in oil. Broil under moderate flame, allowing about 12 minutes for each side. Add a piece of butter to pan and baste during the broiling. When cooked place on hot platter and carefully remove the skin. Sprinkle each steak with one-quarter teaspoon of finely chopped parsley and one-quarter teaspoon of finely chopped chives. Add the juice of one lemon to the pan containing the melted butter and oil. Hold over heat for a minute or two until it is hot—then pour it over salmon steak. Allow about two tablespoons for each steak.

CHEESEWICH.

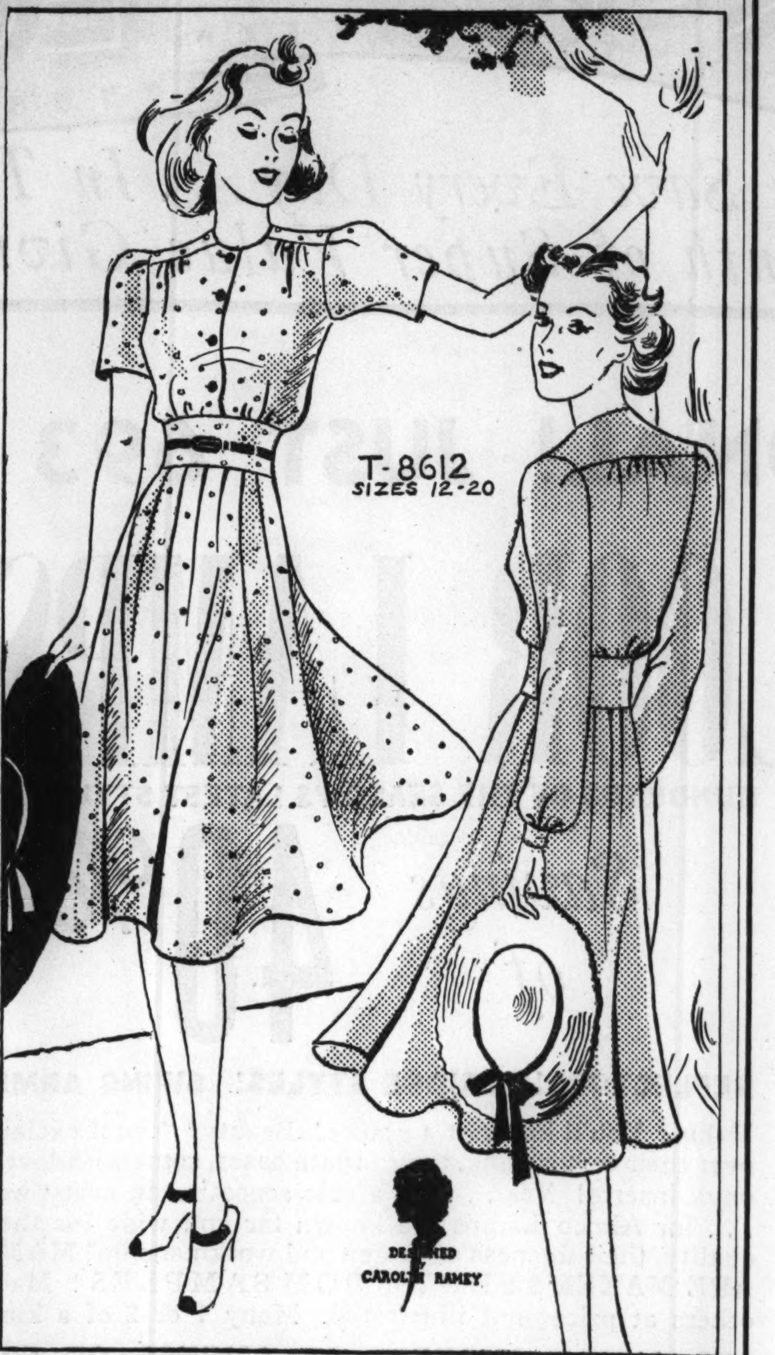
Cut one-day-old bread in one-quarter inch slices. Thinly slice American cheese and make a sandwich. Season with salt and spread a light coating of mixed English mustard over cheese. Press sandwich gently together and trim off crusts. Sandwich may be left whole, cut in quarters or triangle shape. Melt some butter in a frying pan and over very low heat fry sandwich in butter until lightly browned, turning but once in the cooking. These fried sandwiches are delicious, but they must be cooked slowly and additional butter added to pan, as it is quickly absorbed.

ORANGE CUSTARD.

- ½ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- Few grains salt
- 1 pint milk
- 2 egg yolks
- ⅛ teaspoon almond extract
- 3 oranges
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 2 egg whites

Mix together sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Add milk and cook in top part of double boiler till thick, or about 20 minutes. Add beaten egg yolks and cook one minute longer. Remove from fire and add almond extract. Cut oranges in half and carefully remove sections with a small sharp knife. Place diced orange in bottom of shallow baking dish. Pour custard over fruit and cover with meringue made by beating egg whites with one-third cup of sugar. Place in a moderate oven to brown. Serve cold.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

The dean thought I was going home during the mid-semester vacation recently, but my family didn't expect me, having been informed that I was going to Palm Beach! Aside from escaping the ghastly northern weather, I profited in a fashion sense, because I garnered some grand inspirations for late spring and summer styles. The first of these brain waves I'm passing on today for your approval. Hope you like it!

The top is shirtwaist in spirit, without a collar and with a shoulder yoke. Beneath the brief yoke is shirring to give the tailored bodice some fullness. Buttons are used down the front. The waistline is a fitted affair with a narrow belt running through it, and the skirt is flared with a suggestion of unpressed plaits just below the midriff.

My own frock is anticipatory in that it is made of figured linen, but you may make yours of silk if you like. I chose a linen with a cream background and lots of little dots in colors all over it. Red predominates in the color scheme, so the buttons and belt of my frock are fire engine red, no less!

Style No. T-8612 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Address orders for Campus Modes to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 414, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

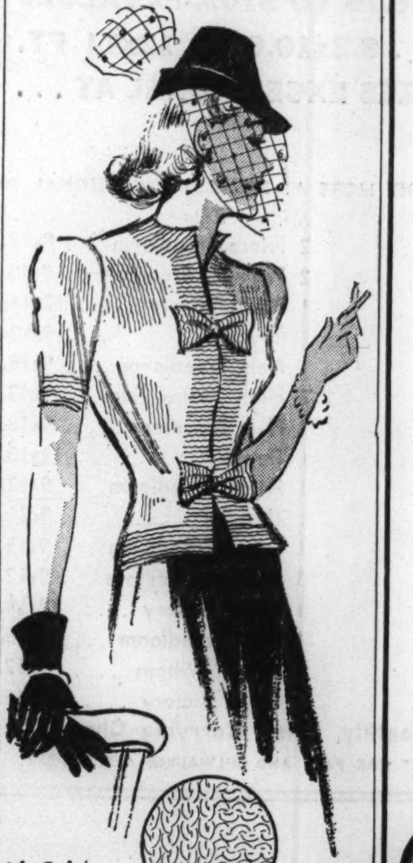
New Hassocks Offer Plenty of Storage Space

The hassock now assumes the rôle of a treasure chest.

New boudoir hassocks, recently introduced in the Merchandise Mart, hide receptacles for the storing of various supplies beneath well-padded tops. One attractive hassock, kidney shaped, called a "vanity hassock," has beneath its top a storage place for cold creams, tissues, and cosmetics.

Another hassock, either square or round, is a general utility cabinet, with storage space for either shoes or hats. All the new models have attractive fabricoid linings for the hidden compartments.

Knitted Blouse Is an Accessory for Latest Suits



By Jean Macdonald.

Choosing a soft hand knitted blouse for the highly styled suits of the season is a major problem of the fashion conscious woman. Various yarns are in favor, and may run from soft angora, fine cashmere, and delicate crêpes to nubby cottons. The pattern preference at the moment is for simplicity. The stockinette stitch is used throughout the body, with bands of moss stitch around the bottom. A moss stitch vestee trims the front, and a tiny standup collar, as well as the bows, is knitted in moss stitch. A suede belt matching the suit may be substituted for the knitted one.

For knitting the jacket with bows and trimming in moss stitch, No. X-216, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Right: Providence, R. I., gave Ruth Hussey to the screen. She arrived in Hollywood as a member of the "Dead End" road company. M-G-M saw and put her under contract. Her first films were "Rich Man, Poor Girl" and "Spring Madness." She's now in "Honolulu" with Eleanor Powell and Robert Young.

Right: This is Ann Rutherford, who, when not working in pictures, helps her garden grow. Miss Rutherford has just completed a featured role in "Four Girls in White."

"Angela Is Twenty-Two" Opens Tonight at Selwyn Theater

Lewis Comedy Seen 75 Times in Middle West

By Cecil Smith.

With more than seventy-five middle western performances to its credit as a result of an unusually extensive premetropolitan tour, "Angela Is Twenty-Two" makes its deferred entry upon the Chicago scene at the Selwyn theater tonight.

Sinclair Lewis, Nobel prize winning American author, devised the plot and problem of "Angela Is Twenty-Two" at Cohasset, Mass., last summer. He had come there originally to make his stage debut as one of the principal actors in the dramatization of his own "It Can't Happen Here," produced at the South Shore playhouse in the Cape Cod resort. Soon after his week's acting engagement ended Fay Wray, well known as a featured heroine of many a movie "horse opera" and horror film, came to the playhouse to appear in another play.

Mr. Lewis broached to Miss Wray the notion of a drama surveying the emotional problems of a man of 50 married to a girl of 22. Miss Wray felt that the subject had interesting potentialities and offered many suggestions embodying the point of view of a young woman. Accordingly the play's attribution of authorship includes an acknowledgement of the actress' help and discussion—"written by Sinclair Lewis in collaboration with Fay Wray."

• • •

Since "Angela Is Twenty-Two" was first presented in Columbus, O., last Dec. 30 both play and cast have undergone revision. Mr. Lewis originally thought of his work as fairly serious drama and he wrote his last act conclusion to conform to this conception. Audiences have characteristically found more comedy in the story than he had supposed and less heavy drama. With admirable pliability he has therefore reshaped his play to make it a consistently lighter comedy without allowing it to become thin or empty. Indeed the last act has been rewritten twice. The newest version, only a week old, has been seen up to now only in Detroit.

Mr. Lewis also wanted to act in his play and John Wildberg, the producer, let him. This quickly proved to be a piece of bad judgment. When I saw the celebrated author in his part in Milwaukee I was charmed by him as a personality but distinctly depressed by his idea of effective histrionism. So was everybody else. Mr. Lewis, being broad-minded and also having the good of his brain child at heart, shortly consented to withdraw from the cast in favor of Philip Merivale, one of the most distinguished and accomplished actors of the present day.

• • •

Mr. Merivale's leading lady, the 22 year old Angela, is a newcomer to Chicago named Flora Campbell. Last summer she appeared with Mr. Lewis in the Cohasset performance of "It Can't Happen Here." Before going onto the professional stage she left her home at Nowata, Okla., to come to Chicago for the purpose of studying violin at the Chicago Musical college. At the same time a twin sister went to the Goodman theater to study dramatic art. Soon Flora Campbell deserted music and joined her sister at the Goodman. Now she is a promising young actress and her twin sister is the wife of a bottle manufacturer in Toledo. Apart from a variety of rôles in summer stock her most important professional assignments have been in "The Country Wife" [with Ruth Gordon], "Excursion," "Many Mansions" [with Alexander Kirkland], and a touring company of "Room Service."

The director of "Angela Is Twenty-Two" is Harry Wagstaff Gribble, one of New York's versatile author-actor-directors. His comedy "March Hares" enjoyed success on Broadway. Chicago saw him as an actor last year in S. N. Behrman's "Wine of Choice," in a rôle which Alexander Woollcott took over when the Theater Guild play reached New York.

VANCE GLANCE

Prominent in the Harris theater's popular tenant, "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," is Vivian Vance. As Myra Stanhope, the ex-movie queen, she indiscriminately distributes her affections in search of a coveted screen role.

If you have seen Vivian Vance's lush impersonation of Myra Stanhope, the jealous, man chasing movie siren of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" at the Harris theater, you only know half the talent of this blonde charmer. Actually she is a dual personality, good in spoken comedy parts, and even better at singing of a somewhat torchy order. Clare Boothe once thought of writing a song into her play for Miss Vance, but could not figure out how to do it naturally.

This is a pity, for something ought to be done to get Miss Vance's exciting vocalizing out into the public eye again. Her singing, as it came to light in the wee small hours of last Wednesday morning at a private gathering, proved to be a bit on the order of Benay Venuta but less raucous and much more sensitive to inflections of words and music. At least one of her listeners was quite bowled over by her lithe, pungent performances of songs from "Anything Goes" and "Red, Hot, and Blue"—both shows in which she has appeared.

The new Vivienne Segal is the talk of the town since Tuesday's opening of "I Married an Angel" at the Grand Opera house. In her first comic part she projects her good lines with wonderful timing and a brash directness that lift her a million miles out of the operetta prima donna category in which we always have seen her before. She still sings well, too, with a strong, clear voice of attractive warmth.

The sumptuous musical comedy is now settling down into a cheering run. No lyric piece in a number of years has been so rapturously received by first nighters and none deserved its reception more fully. If I keep harping on the merits of "I Married an Angel" in weeks to come take it as a token of gratitude for a production so magnificent, so completely above the common run of things, that I wish every one in Chicago could get over to the Grand Opera house to see it. In these days of high pressure advertising and ballyhoo it is sometimes hard for the lay public to distinguish between a good thing and a well advertised one. "I Married an Angel" can claim the unusual distinction of never having been overadvertised.

The loop is supplied with such good plays right now—as far as the supply lasts—that a dramatic editor, in order to be a conscientious mirror of things as they are, finds himself inadvertently becoming a Pollyanna. "What a Life," the George Abbott comedy of high school life at the Erlanger, also is giving off its ray of warmth along the Rialto. Eddie Bracken, the boy on whom every misfortune is destined to fall while he is on the stage, is climbing right into the lap of good fortune in his professional career. Mr. Abbott, seeing his great success here, has named him a featured player, which means that he has a right to see his name in bright lights on the marquee. Incidentally "What a Life" is giving nine performances a week—every night, including Sunday, with Wednesday and Saturday matinées.

Current Music News

Maria Kurenko will give her postponed recital this afternoon in the Civic theater. Of special interest on the Russian soprano's program is the concluding group of Moussorgsky numbers. This she is singing in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the composer's birth. Three other songs—those by Glazounoff, Cui, and Rimsky-Korsakoff—will have flute obbligatos played by Roy Knauss. As in Mme. Kurenko's fall concert, the accompanist will be Sergei Tarnowsky. The complete program follows:

Aria from "The Abduction from the Seraglio"	Mozart

"On the Banks of the Don" "Hopak" "At the Nursery" Peasant's Lullaby Paruscha's Reverie and Dance, from "The Fair at Sorotchinsky"	Moussorgsky

The young Chicago pianist, Florence Kirsch, appears in recital at the Goodman theater today. At the age of 11 she appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Dr. Stock, continued her training in this city till she went to Europe when she was 16, and studied there for several years under various teachers, of whom Artur Schnabel was one. She made a sort of redebut last season when she played in Orchestra hall as part of the Musical Arts piano series.

On today's program are a Capriccio in B flat major by Bach; three Bagatels, opus 33, by Beethoven; a Sonata in E minor by Weber; Impromptus, opus 90, in C minor and B flat major, by Schubert, and three mazurkas and the Polonaise-fantasie by Chopin.

An 18 year old violinist, Josef Goodman, will present a program in Curtiss hall today. Included on his program are Brahms' Sonata in D minor and Goldmark's Concerto in A minor.

Out at the University of Chicago the Collegium Musicum offers another of its free Sunday evening concerts tonight. Siegmund Levarie will direct a chorus and chamber orchestra in vocal and instrumental music by Albinoni, Schutz, and Bach. A special feature will be the first American performance of a choral work by Peritonus Magnus, musical director at Notre Dame in Paris around 1200. Henrietta Chase will be the soprano soloist in the concert, which begins at 8:15 in the Reynolds club, 5714 University avenue.

No Gymnastics Needed When Morgan Plays

A coal miner in tails is usurping Chez Paree's overcrowded star throne these March evenings. He is Russ Morgan, whose 18 piece orchestra opened at the Chez a week ago before one of the club's best opening night crowds of the season.

Much has been written about Morgan's aversion to swing, yet he plays a danceable type of music that swings with the best of them—excluding the faddish aggregations that specialize in making teen age dancers go into gymnastic hysterics. The Morgan brass section has a symphonic quality that accentuates the band's definite leaning toward music for its own sake, and not merely for the more primal one of rhythm. "The Morgan manner" is essentially honest—it stays close to the composer's intention and injects the maestro's personality only as a technique of presentation, not as an alteration of the music itself.

The acid test of a Chez Paree band is how it plays a show, for the show is the thing on Fairbanks court. From the Chez Paree Adorables, who perform Fred Evans' imaginative and intricate ensemble routines, comes the word that Russ plays a good show. That is praise.

* *

Ina Ray Hutton and her Melodears at the Rose Bowl are proving Frank Howard's theory that Rush street likes name bands. He remodeled the club to accommodate the 14-girl orchestra and Miss Hutton revamped the musical style of her band to fit the comparatively small room. The combination has won consistent audible approval from Rose Bowl crowds. The Hutton figure and personality still provide the major attraction, despite a repertoire of good music and a commendably well balanced floor show. Elaine Merritt, red head singer with the band, is the hit of the entertainment program, particularly when she swings into the finale number "Boogy Woogey." Jeanne and Marjorie Burke and Vera Fern get a good response.

* *

More newcomers:

Gene Krupa, 29 drums and tomtoms; singing Irene Daye, and novel food carts to the jungle depths of College Inn's new Panther room at the Hotel Sherman. Opening was scheduled last night.

Chuck Shanks and his amusing 7-piece band; Patsy Marr, who taps on top of her military hat; Adele, Trent and Sawyer, dancers in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel.

Lou Holtz and his dialect stories and Jean Travers at the Hi-Hat.

* *

Jay Mills, Mary Fran Sackley, Ramos and Nanette at the Edgewater Beach hotel, where Harriet Smith's Lovely Ladies round out the sprightliest show of the midwinter season in the Marine dining room.

Coming: Freddy Martin, recently of the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles, to the Aragon next Saturday night. Dick Jurgens' band moves south to the Trianon, replacing Bill Carlson, who will bow out at a Friday night St. Patrick's day party.

* *

The Drake hotel's show, which was augmented last night by the Hibbert, Bird and La Rue team, features two stars in two fields. Bernice Parks sings as much with her dark eyes as she does with her low pitched, haunting voice. When she swings into a rumba, those eyes flash with a fire that is as Cuban as her dark hair and the words she sings. The Cuban influence ends there, however, for Miss Parks is very much a Bostonian. At 14 she was a dancing star with the Boston opera, and her interpolations of dance steps into her song routines give graphic evidence of that training.

Surprise of an occasional show is when Wayne King, long and widely known as a musician and maestro, reveals a soft and very dramatic voice in a chorus of "I'm Lonesome."

* *

Mary Jane Brown, an eccentric dancer, has been added to the Blackhawk floor show. She shares the spotlight with Orrin and Betty Lou, shag dancers; Dorothy Claire and Marion Mann, singers, and Bob Crosby's band. Crosby, in addition to drawing a young crowd to the Saturday and Sunday afternoon jam sessions, has developed Friday night into a popular college night, with talent from Chicagoland schools taking turns on the floor.

* *

Boswelling the Bistros:

Russ Morgan telling the story of a delicate dental operation on Charlie Margulis, at present first trumpeter for Paul Whiteman, in which a buck tooth was removed at the risk of ending a promising career. The false replacement actually enabled Margulis to reach notes he'd never hit before. A tooth for a toot. . . . Busmen's holidays: Paul Haakon, ballet star of the Chez Paree show, dancing to Morgan's music, ballroom style; and Paul Draper dancing with nary a tap to Lew Fidler's music at the Colony. . . . Also at the Colony, Peggy Fears, star who seems headed for a record engagement at the Goldstone-Dean club, telling about a Miami bellhop turned night club owner; and Charlie [Harry's New York CaBARet] Hepp muttering something about "one night club owner who's going to be a bellhop if the flu doesn't let up." . . .

Appleton and Oshkosh, Wis., fans sending greetings to Bob Neller, native of Appleton, and Orrin and Betty Lou, the Blackhawk jitterbugs from Oshkosh. . . . The new waltz routine that Rod Drigo and Francine have made so popular at the Continental room is built around the tune "Our Memory Waltz," written by J. A. Hones, Stevens hotel manager. . . . Eddie Brandt, who plays the tune, has three more weeks at the Continental.

On April 7, the night after Eddie Duchin opens in the Empire room, Orrin Tucker will be at the Tower theater, Kansas City, en route to a World's Fair date in San Francisco. . . . The Onyxpected rhythms of Stuff Smith will continue to wobble the walls of the Hotel La Salle Blue Fountain room until April 7. . . . Sad note: Mildred Fenton has left the Balinese room, favoring the Paddock club in Miami, Fla. . . . The Beachcombers, four Hawaiians dressed like Hawaiians, playing twangy music at their debut dinner show in the Congress hotel's Glass Hat, and coming back in summer formal attire for a bit of danceable supper swing.

Learns 'Frank Fay Vaudeville' Is Vaudeville

By Robert Sylvester.

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — Two "streamlined" versions of favorite theatrical formulas came to town last week and were received with mixed emotions. The Federal theater's "The Swing Mikado," which is Gilbert and Sullivan with a shot of Lindy Hop, came east from Chicago and at the moment looks to be the town's newest solid success. And Frank Fay deserted Hollywood to sponsor a program of good, old-fashioned vaudeville polished up with some sophisticated humor and what the radio folks call audience participation.

For some months now we've been hearing about Chicago's "The Swing Mikado," and for some weeks a local commercial producer has been gnashings his teeth over its importation. The local producer, Michael Todd, will be along in a week or two with Bill Robinson in a similar show called "The Hot Mikado." Considering the New York reception for the Federal theater exhibit, Mr. Todd is going to have quite a struggle on his hands.

Opening to an audience which might have been transplanted from the dear old days of Ziegfeld premières, "The Swing Mikado" proved to be a gay and pleasant novelty with a splendid colored chorus and, almost without exception, a set of principals who know how to make the most of excellent, natural voices. Only Edward Fraction, as the mikado, had trouble making his lyrics clear, but since his "Make the Punishment Fit the Crime" number is one of the swingiest in the show nobody seemed to mind.

Most of us expected more swing than G. and S., from advance reports, but the lyric and original portions of the operetta are so easily and pleasantly handled that at times the audience might well have been listening to the D'Oly Carte troupe in its current invasion of New York.

• • •

As for Frank Fay and his vaudeville show, it's still anybody's guess whether or not variety can pull its bruised and battered bones together and get up on its feet again. Although there isn't a single objection to be made about the Fay talent [the program includes such sterling entertainers as Elsie Janis and Eva Le Gallienne], the show as a whole lacks novelty and we've probably been spoiled by the fast, smart little revues which have taken the place of the old eight act variety bill.

Any good vaudeville bill has its highlights and this reporter hastens to admit that the Fay bill has far more than its share. Elsie Janis, making a second attempt in her recent comeback, is as electric and able as she was when we tossed our hats in the air after her first Sunday night concert, recently. Miss Le Gallienne does her own "Juliet," which isn't our favorite "Juliet," but is still art, probably, and Maestro Fay has collected a long list of topflight entertainers from the radio and the night clubs. Too long a list, perhaps, since the last curtain opening night didn't come down until well after midnight.

Mr. Fay, ever a brave individual, has attempted one "innovation" for which he is to be heartily thanked. He refuses to allow one of those things called microphones on the stage. Even the Merry Macs, four radio singers who have probably never before worked without the aid of electricity and amplification, stand up with nothing to hide their merry faces and sing their first rate swing songs without mechanical aid.

• • •

Taking a cue from the phenomenal success of Olsen and Johnson, former vaudeville colleagues who have upset the town with their "Hellz-a-Poppin" revue, Fay has an audience full of professional aids and the cash customer never knows, from minute to minute, when a phony cameraman is going to take his picture or when the sedate old lady next to him will suddenly leap from her chair and intone a poem about the "Poor Little Swollen Swallow."

Smith and Dale are back with their still hilarious doctor's office sketch; a young magician from the night clubs named Glen Pope does the kind of magic that's impossible; there is a good Chester Hale chorus; Poodles Hanneford and family still have their big white horses, and Avis Andrews treats modern songs the way they should be treated.

Through it all, Fay wanders in and out with his easy humors and sure touch. There's really nothing wrong with "Frank Fay Vaudeville" except that it's still vaudeville, and the old formula has worn a little thin. It's been dormant so long that watching a variety bill is a bit like again buying a ticket for "The Passing Show of 1922," with the original cast.

Although spring isn't so very far away, there's considerable activity promised for the last weeks of the theatrical season. New plays in preparation or now on tryout tours will eventually bring us such actors as John Barrymore, Katharine Hepburn, Gertrude Lawrence, Burgess Meredith, Orson Welles, Bobby Clark, and Tamara Geva. And new plays being talked about, some of which may turn into realities, have rôles for Nazimova, Dudley Digges, Eddie Dowling, Martha Sott, Francine Larrimore, and Greta Nissen.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT!
Matinees: Wed. & Sat. at 2:30. Eves. (exc. Mon.) 8:30

CECIL SMITH in the TRIBUNE says:
"Last night a joyous capacity audience folded 'I Married An Angel' to its collective heart and set the Grand Opera House to ringing with the sort of exuberant, repeated demonstrations that only a genuine smash hit can arouse."

ASHTON STEVENS in the AMERICAN says:
"Of course, this is only every man's opinion, but Rodgers and Hart's comedy with music and dancing is everybody's show . . . It's a fabulously funny story."

CLAUDIA CASSIDY in the JOURNAL OF COMMERCE says:
"It has the beauty of ingenious decor and a vaulting sense of imagery, and yet it keeps its dancing feet solidly on the ground of universal entertainment. I haven't liked a musical comedy so much in a long, long time."

LLOYD LEWIS in the NEWS says:
"'I Married An Angel' repeats its New York success at the Grand."

DOROTHY DAY in the HERALD & EXAMINER says:
"What a show! What beautiful girls! What a break for the waning theatrical season to have such a truly grand production. It shoots the monumental fireworks."

ROBERT POLLAK in the TIMES says:
"'I Married An Angel' is that rare phenomenon, a perfectly satisfying musical comedy, and it deserves to be cherished by local theater-goers at least until harvest time."

Week to Bring Martha Graham and Ted Shawn to Chicago

New 'American Document' Will Have Premiere

By Cecil Smith.

This week brings forth two major events in the realm of the modern dance. Martha Graham's long awaited Chicago première of her newest and most imposing dance composition, "American Document," takes place in the Civic Opera house Saturday evening. This afternoon Ted Shawn and his men dancers make their only appearance of the season at the Studebaker theater, in the course of their sixth transcontinental tour.

When the history of American dancing in the 1930's is finally written and recorded, it is likely that the name of Martha Graham will lead all the rest. She has been called the strongest American creative genius of the dance since Isadora Duncan, and no competitor has arisen with enough power to contest this judgment.

The early years of Miss Graham—her poverty, her struggle to find her own style and to find an audience willing to look at it—have often been told. Now, at the height of her powers, she is able to profit fully from those first years of stringent discipline, ascetic living, and self-dedication. Each year her artistic horizon has broadened perceptibly, until now her compositions have a breadth of view and a variety of perspective that she could not have begun to hope for earlier.

• • •

When Miss Graham renounced the exotic romanticism of the gauzy Denishawn troupe and the whole arty unnaturalness of their period, she began to discover that the human body had immense uninvestigated powers of movement. Neither the classical ballet nor the filmy, flimsy modernists of the prewar decade took a sufficiently realistic view toward the human body and its relation to the ground beneath it and the space surrounding it. Miss Graham began to consider this relationship. She demanded that the body should feel the force of gravity pulling it downward, and demonstrate the exertion needed to pull it upward. This was a direct contradiction of the principle of ballet, which holds that the art of dancing should enable the dancer to float in the air and pretend that gravity does not exist.

While Miss Graham, perforce, appeared chiefly as a solo dancer at first, she soon found that the dancing of a group can be definitly more varied than that of a single performer. Since the early years of her experimental period she has preferred to be the center of a group rather than an isolated solo artist. Out of the changing personnel of her group have graduated, from year to year, many of the most promising and gifted American dancers.

• • •

The extent of Miss Graham's divergence from the traditional ballet art was especially dramatically indicated in a League of Composers performance of Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps." As joint choreographers of this endeavor Miss Graham and Leonide Massine [now head of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo] were selected to work together. The collaboration proved to be one of the unhappiest in the recent history of art. It is doubtful whether the two choreographers, both top notch creators, ever got together on a single idea. Naturally the ultimate spectacle of "Le Sacre du Printemps" was a uniquely sorry affair. Some of the choicest anecdotes of the dance world, which it would be wiser not to print, emerged from this strange association.

It did not take more than one such experience to teach Miss Graham that she would have to work alone, evolving each new composition solely from the experience of the last. Following this plan, she has made a constant crescendo of her artistic career.

The present climax of her development would seem to be "American Document," composed in Bennington, Vt., last summer. It is her first serious excursion into theater art, as distinguished from the pure movement in which she has always dealt heretofore. The plan of "American Document" is patterned after a minstrel show. A narrator, corresponding to the traditional interlocutor, plays an important share. The script was written by Miss Graham. The dancers are chorus, principals, and end men, as in any minstrel show.

• • •

For the first time male dancers appear with the Martha Graham group. Erick Hawkins, the leading male dancer, is borrowed from the Ballet Caravan. The very fact that Miss Graham can now make use of a ballet-trained dancer as her partner argues a confidence of purpose she did not have in her collaboration with Massine.

Lincoln Kirstein, one of America's ablest dance critics and a wholehearted antagonist of most modern dancing that is not rooted in ballet, was lost in admiration for "American Document." "It is the most important extended dance creation by a living American," he wrote, "and if there has been another in any other time more important, there is no record of it."

The participants, in addition to Miss Graham and Mr. Hawkins, are Houseley Stevens Jr. [the interlocutor], Anita Alvarez, Thelma Babutz, Jane Dudley, Sophie Maslow, Marie Marchowsky and the group. The performance is sponsored by the Chicago Civil Liberties committee.

• • •

Ted Shawn also has a new large composition, "Dance of the Ages," which he describes as an "elemental rhythmus" in four movements. The four movements rest on an ideational, symbolic basis, being concerned with the four elements of fire, water, earth and air. Each movement also represents a particular stage in the development of human society. Fire shows human culture at the tribal level. Water associates human culture with the ancient city-state. Earth is connected with democracy. Air dreams of a state "beyond democracy." Presumably these metaphysical connections will somehow be clarified by the choreography. At any rate, Mr. Shawn considers "Dance of the Ages" his most important and ambitious work.

DANCES SATURDAY

Martha Graham, America's foremost dancer, comes with her company to the Civic Opera house on Saturday night. At that time her new and much-heralded composition, "American Document," will receive its Chicago premiere.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Two members of the Chicago City Opera company will take part in the Illinois Symphony orchestra's concert at the Great Northern theater today. Leo Kopp will conduct the program of four familiar items, and Elizabeth Brown, contralto, will sing the incidental solos in the suite drawn from de Falla's ballet, "El Amor Brujo" or "Love, the Magician." The program:

Overture to "Abu Hassan" .... Weber
"Fantastic" Symphony .... Berlioz
Suite, from "El Amor Brujo" ...... de Falla
Elizabeth Brown.
Symphonic Poem, "Mazeppa" .... Liszt

Like her predecessors, Frank Bishop and Eugenia Buxton, Patricia Travers returns to Orchestra hall two weeks after her appearance with the Civic orchestra for a solo recital. Despite her age—she is only 10—the young violinist is tackling a program that would tax a performer twice her age. She will open her program this afternoon with a sonata in G minor by Tartini, continue with Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole and Bach's Partita in E major for solo violin, and conclude with numbers by Beethoven, Novacek, and Wieniawski.

Claude Smith, baritone, and Fred Berndt, violinist, will share today's program at the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club. The former was the winner of the 1934 Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Berndt comes to Chicago after having served both as concertmaster of the Vienna Symphony orchestra and as conductor of the Hamburg Grand Opera company. He will include two of his own compositions on his part of the concert.

Elsie Alexander will give a piano recital in Kimball hall at 3 o'clock today. Major compositions on the scheduled program include Bach's Italian Concerto and Beethoven's Thirty-two Variations. Chopin and Ravel groups complete the list.

To the many performances of Bizet's "Carmen" given this year in honor of the composer's centenary, add one by the Cantor-Rounds opera class in Kimball hall on Wednesday.

The Federal Music project continues its activities this week with three concerts at its headquarters, 632 North Dearborn street. On Tuesday at 8:15 the "Masterpieces of Chamber Music" series will present the Forum string quartet and assisting artists in three compositions: Rameau's Concerto No. 2 in G major, Mozart's Sonata in B flat major for violin and piano [Köchel 454], and Schubert's quartet in D minor.

On Friday at the same hour Walter Aschenbrenner will conduct the Illinois Philharmonic choir on an all-Bach program. Two cantatas and a chorale will be sung; Fritz Siegal and Alexander Joseffer will play the Sonata in E major for violin and cembalo, and Mr. Joseffer will play the Busoni piano transcription of the D minor organ Toccata and Fugue.

Finally on Saturday at 2 o'clock the sixth of the "Musical Matinées for Young People" will be given. The forty piece American Concert orchestra will feature works by Schubert, and Conductor Ralph Cissne will supply biographical and explanatory comments on the life and works of the composer.

At 2 o'clock on Monday, Ann Motluck will offer both vocal and violin selections illustrating Ukrainian music. The recital is sponsored by the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue.

The DePauw university choir will sing at a special vesper service of the New England church today at 4:30 o'clock. Van Denman Thompson is the conductor of the choir, and the service will be held in the St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street.

An audition of male voices for the extra chorus which will augment the Chicago City Opera company's regular chorus will be held at 8:30 o'clock this Thursday in room 458 of the Civic Opera house. This chorus of fifty extra voices will be used at various times throughout the 1939 season of the opera company—Oct. 28 through Dec. 16.

At 2 o'clock on Monday at the Blackstone hotel the Lake View Musical society will hold its next concert. Artists due to appear are Catherine McCutcheon Baker, soprano, Marjorie Middlekauff Sherman, contralto, Millicent Chapman Cooke, pianist, and a trio.

The twenty-eighth transcontinental tour of the San Carlo Opera company brought the famous troupe into the Auditorium theater last Friday. Tonight this organization, which has given more than 8,000 performances before 17 million persons, begins a characteristically crowded San Carlo week. There are operas every night, with a matinée on Saturday. As usual, popular prices prevail. Following are the works to be sung and the casts scheduled to sing them.

Tonight at 8:20—Puccini's "La Bohême," with Bianca Saroya, Dimitri Onofrei, Leola Turner, Mario Valle, Harold Kravitt, Stefan Kozakevich, and Natale Cervi.

Monday at 8:20—Verdi's "La Traviata," with Lucille Meusel, Charlotte Bruno, Onofrei, Francesco Curci, Mario Cozzi, Fausto Bozza, Cervi, and Louis de Cesare.

Tuesday at 8:20—Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci"; the first with Norina Greco, Bruno, Tandy MacKenzie, and Kozakevich; the second with Turner, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas, Kozakevich, and Curci.

Next Sunday at 8:20—Bizet's "Carmen," with Hertha Glatz, Turner, Baldwin, Dickson, Lindi, Cozzi, Curci, Kravitt, Cervi, and Francis Scott.

Besides its special performance of Saturday afternoon, the San Carlo Opera ballet will perform in all operas requiring dancing. Carlo Peroni conducts all performances.

Albert Spalding, Chicago born violinist, who has risen to the point where he stands among the dozen elect of his profession, makes three appearances this week with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Frederick Stock. Tuesday afternoon he will introduce to Chicago the new Jacobi violin concerto. His choice for Thursday night and Friday afternoon is the Elgar concerto.

Frederick Jacobi is a 47 year old American composer who has to his credit interesting experiences—many long periods of residence with the Pueblo Indians, for instance—and out of the ordinary opinions—a preference for Weber, Verdi, and Mozart among composers.

Do not look too confidently for any Indian influences in the concerto, for Mr. Jacobi has said that the Indian strain in his music, if it exists, is wholly unsought for and unconscious. He would no doubt make an exception in the case of his String Quartet on Indian Themes, which was chosen for performance at the International Festival of Chamber Music in Zürich in 1926.

Do not look even for any spectacular modernity in the new concerto. Mr. Jacobi has tried to keep himself apart from the musical modes of the moment and to write music which will not appear dated ten or twenty years from now.

• • •

Albert Spalding was born here in 1883, and fourteen years later graduated from the Bologna conservatory with honors which upset the records of a century. His first tour of the United States was in 1906, his first appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1908.

Complete programs follow:

Tuesday at 2:15:

Serenade for Wind Instruments, Opus 7 .... Strauss
Symphony No. 4, B-flat major, Opus 60 .... Beethoven
Concerto for Violin and Orchestra.... Jacobi
Suite from the Ballet, "The Fire-Bird" .... Strawinsky

Thursday at 8:15 and Friday at 2:15:

Introduction and Scherzo, "Prince Csongor and the Goblins".......Weiner Symphony No. 4, "Italian," A major, Opus 90.......... Mendelssohn
Concerto for Violin, B minor, Opus 61...Elgar
Waltz from "Der Rosenkavalier"....Strauss

Saturday at 8:15 [popular concert]:

Overture to "The Improvisatore....D'Albert
Trio, A minor, Opus 50........Tschaikowsky
[Arranged for modern orchestra by Frederick Stock.]
Overture to "Donna Diana"..Von Reznicek
Lyric Suite, Opus 54..........Grieg
Waltz from "Der Rosenkavalier"....Strauss

Mr. Stock will conduct the popular concert as well as the three in the regular subscription series and the one on Wednesday for young people. At this last mentioned concert a movement of the Mendelssohn G minor piano concerto will be played by Theodore Lettvin, a 12 year old Chicagoan.

Vaudeville

At the Chicago theater this week Harriet Hoctor and her corps de ballet are dancing. The ballerina has long been a popular feature in musical comedies and revues. Sharing headline honors with her is Ethel Shutta, the character songstress. Lowe, Hite, and Stanley, comedians, and the Three Trojans are also on the stage program. Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, and Fay Bainter are featured in the screen attraction, "Yes, My Darling Daughter."

Doris Rhodes, radio song star, heads the Palace theater stage show, which also includes Gilbert Brothers, all-American athletes; Carroll and Howe, comedians; Bud Harris and Lowell Howell, and the Chester Hale girls. "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," with W. C. Fields, Charlie McCarthy, and Edgar Bergen is the motion picture.

On the Oriental theater's stage Harry Kahne is displaying his mental wizardry. The Dancing Sweethearts, Bob Carney, Shirley Lloyd, Geraldine and Joe, Fenwick and Cook, and Verne Buck and his famous orchestra are other acts on the vaudeville bill. "I was a Convict" and "Love from a Stranger" are the screen features.

Hal Leroy, the original Harold Teen of the movies and former musical comedy player, tap dances on the State Lake stage this week. Johnny Perkins, the comedian, also holds forth, with such other entertainers as Ginger Manners, Sully and Thomas, Ken and Roy Paige, Fitz and Carroll, Kampus Kapers Kompany, Four Rhythm Revelers, La Rose Sisters, and Stubby Kaye. On the screen Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, and Bobby Jordan are seen in "Off the Record."

Dame Schools Conserved U. S. Basic Ideology

[This is the fourth article on sesquicentennial observance of the Presbyterian church, which is dedicated to higher education.]

By the Rev. John Evans.

During colonial days of the 1700s, education was both a completely localized and entirely personalized matter. The most recent picture of the program, if such it might be called, is seen in the early days of Abraham Lincoln at the feet of Nancy Hanks.

Except, generally, for one thing:

In communities where several families lived Nancy Hanks, or a woman of her motherly spirit, would have set up a "dame school" in her home, where either she or possibly some traveling teacher would lead the children through the early but simple disciplines of an education.

It is worth noting that such schools laid all needed foundations for the flowering period of American statesmanship and literature. These simple schools conserved the thought which became the basic ideology of American democracy. A Declaration of Independence or an American bill of rights scarcely could find its way out of a school in which pupils are virtual wards of government, local, state, or, as trends now point, federal.

And, Lincoln lovers assert that the Gettysburg address only could have had roots in Nancy Hanks' motherly teaching or in a dame school.

The first Presbyterian college in America was founded under the dame school impetus by the Rev. William Tennent for the education of Presbyterian ministers. Following his arrival in the colony of New York from Ireland in 1718, he moved a few years later to Neshaminy, north of Philadelphia.

His four sons convinced him of the need of an advanced school where ministers might be trained and he founded the historic "Log college." So adequate was the result that the fame of "Log college" spread throughout the colonies. Presbyterian congregations sought ministers trained under Tennent's guidance.

When William Tennent died in 1746, Log college passed out of existence, but the Rev. Jonathan Dickinson succeeded in obtaining a charter for a college in New Jersey. He was elected president of the new college which was begun in his home in Elizabethtown. Dickinson died a year later and the Rev. Aaron Burr succeeded to the presidency and the school was moved to Newark.

Growth demanded increased facilities and the Presbyterian synod sent Samuel Davies and Gilbert Tennent to England, Scotland, and Ireland, to seek financial aid. These secured $20,000 for the project, and the town of Princeton, N. J., gave 200 acres of woodland and 10 acres of cleared land. Other benefactions from the colonies assured the construction of the first building of the College of New Jersey in 1755—the now historic Princeton structure, "Old Nassau."

It was a far cry, Old Nassau, from "Log college." But it was "Log college," after all, that gave the essential personalized character not only to Presbyterian higher education, but also in a wide sense, shaped the destiny of the American way of life. Of William Tennent an historian has said:

"The Presbyterian church is probably not more indebted for her prosperity and for the Evangelical spirit which has generally pervaded her body, to any individual, than to the elder Tennent."

The late Rev. Dr. Harold McAfee Robinson, who was buried last Wednesday, conceived the sesquicentennial program. He had declared it was William Tennent and his "Log college" students, Gilbert, John, William Jr., and Charles Tennent, Samuel Blair, John Blair, Samuel Finley, William Robinson, Charles Beatty, who were the heralds of the great religious awakening of the middle colonies which "saved the American church from the death of formalism; unified the colonies enough to support the revolutionary war and enabled them to set up a government dedicated to the preservation of liberty."

[Next Sunday's article will trace the spread of log colleges through the western wilderness.]

Critics' Choices

Variety, the famous amusement periodical, made its annual list of the best performances on Broadway during 1938 recently. This it did by requesting the leading New York reviewers to name what they deemed the outstanding examples of acting. Their lists were unlimited. Named more often than any one else—seven times—was Robert Morley for his performance of the title rôle of "Oscar Wilde." Seven critics mentioned Maurice Evans ["Hamlet"], Raymond Massey ["Abe Lincoln in Illinois"], and Laurette Taylor ["Outward Bound"]. Six named Sir Cedric Hardwicke for his work in "Shadow and Substance." Four votes apiece went to Frank Craven ["Our Town"], Dudley Digges ["On Borrowed Time"], and Eddie Dowling ["Here Come the Clowns"]. Several other performers were mentioned once, twice, or three times.

Rosemont College Offers 3 Scholarships

Rosemont college, women's school at Rosemont, Pa., is offering two tuition scholarships for 1939-'40 valued at $300 each. The awards will be determined by competitive examinations conducted under the supervision of applicants' local school principals on April 15. Awards will be made late in May through local principals.

Good Morning!

This is "sophisticated" fare—not for children. But no child would give a whoop about it anyway, so what's the difference?

The film's an adaptation of a stage play that had a successful run on Broadway. It has had bouts with censors both here and in New York, who listened to its heart and lungs, tested its reflexes and finally gave it a clean bill of health.

It tells the story of a modern daughter who would follow in the footsteps of her mamma who—along about in the gay nineties—had been modern for her times, but sanely married to a nice, regulation husband, has learned the advantages of discretion and would have Daughter Ellen profit by her own hard earned experience. [Nineteen times, no less, had Mamma Murray been in jail for too violent participation in Greenwich Village and suffrage activities!]

Ellen is a nice, breezy girl, engaged to a pleasant, wholesome boy who has just got himself a job in Belgium and expects to be away for two years. . . . She figures that, before Douglas leaves, he and she should spend a week-end alone together in order to really know each other. . . . The youth hesitates, he never having heard the like of such before. But Ellen is adamant. . . . She doesn't intend to have the news leak out to her family—but it does.

Mother turns old-fashioned on her. Grandma cackles triumphantly to Mother that now SHE'S getting a dose of what Grandma had been through in Mamma's youth. . . . Ellen's much divorced and married Aunt Connie and Titus Jaywood, a poet and publisher who had been part of Mamma's past, figure prominently in future developments, as does Ellen's papa. Papa doesn't hear about it until the week-end is under way. Do the kids GO? Sure they do. . . . To a little cabin on a lake.

Sounds risque, doesn't it? Well, really the situation is pure as the driven snow. For the week enders aspire to only the Best Things in Life and are completely minus a sense of humor.

The hours they spend alone, Dear Hearts, are occupied with Socratic discussions. When bedtime comes Douglas plants a chaste kiss on Ellen's brow and retires to seek Morpheus on the porch. [Isn't that pretty?]

In the meantime, merry hell is breaking in and around the old homestead, the adjacent high roads, and the town jail.

The finale takes place on an ocean liner—and again Ellen and Douglas are alone. . . . But you know how captains have the power to perform marriage ceremonies, don't you?

"Yes, My Darling Daughter" is brightly acted and has some clever lines. It's quite amusing and not very shocking—and its story really has whiskers if you ask me.

See you tomorrow.

Contract According to Culbertson

Ability to Count Is Prime Factor in Bridge Play

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

If I were asked what is the most important single factor in bridge I would unhesitatingly answer: Ability to count thirteen cards of a suit. The simplest as well as the most involved plays spring from counting, and most errors can be traced back to miscounting or, what is worse, not counting.

Counting is the mortal enemy of guessing, and the more precise the count, the easier it is to dispel the darkness of the unknown. Counting can be defined as a recollection of the number and rank of the played out cards in order to determine the number and rank of the remaining cards in the opponents' or partner's hands. Thus the process of recollection and elimination [counting] mirrors once more the length and rank principles in the structure of a thirteen card suit.

[Simple counting must not be confused with card and suit placing, an involved inferential process, though also based on counting. In card and suit placing a player attempts to "place," on the basis of probabilities or other inferences, outstanding honors and lengths of suits in opponents' hands.]

The principles and rules of memory explained in this chapter are applicable equally to declarer's and defenders' hands.

◆

In card games counting is not only an act of addition, subtraction, and division, but also an act of memory. As the play progresses, more and more cards are played out, and toward the eleventh trick the player's memory must retain forty played cards. But the effort of memory required for fairly good playing is quite moderate and can easily be acquired with practice. Card sense, so called, is to a large extent ability to count, and I have seen a number of players miraculously recover their card sense once they learned to remember.

In order to remember well the player must learn:

1. Active observation of cards.
2. How to "tie" up one card [event] to other cards [other events] in a trick, a suit or a hand.

◆

One cannot remember what is not lodged in the mind. As each card passes before the player's eyes he must possess the habit of imprinting it on his consciousness. This observation must be active—that is, a card must be intelligently recognized not merely as a thing to be remembered but as it is related in position and rank to the other cards.

In a suit of thirteen cards the important event is what is happening to the big fellows. Names make news. It is news if a fat spade ace is pulled down by a lowly three of trumps. The trey will be remembered and the spade six and seven in the same trick will also be noted because of their connection with the spade ace. It is also news if on the second round of the suit some player failed to follow, discarding a deuce of another suit. This deuce will be doubly remembered, first because the player had no spades and furthermore because the player in discarding a deuce signaled to partner his unwillingness to have that suit led—when and if. It follows that, as a rule, cards should be remembered not as isolated units but as logical parts of a trick.

Every trick can be compared to a package containing four cards. Individual cards can be remembered by tracing them through such packages.

The memorizing by "packages" is based upon the assumption that each such package or trick or round contains four cards of the same suit. When one of the players does not follow to the suit, discarding from some other suit, the trick is then remembered as an imperfect package containing three of one and one of the other.

When thoughtful observation and ability to tie up the individual cards in a logical chain of plays do not suffice, the player may summon two valuable memory aids: repetition and reconstruction.

The player, declarer or defender, should invariably pause, study the situation anew and recollect, if necessary, the past events, whenever something unusual or important takes place on the play of a trick. Among the unusual and important occurrences are: failure by one of the players to follow suit [review the led suit and also note the signals of the discard and its suit]; unexpected trumping of a trick [reconstruct, theoretically at least, the opponents' hands]; the play of a surprisingly high card [determine whether such a play is a bluff or sincere and draw inferences accordingly]. These are the principal grade crossings of the suit.

Reconstruction consists in impressing upon one's memory an "impression" of his own hand by its hand pattern [say, 5-4-3-1], each suit in turn being tied up with its important card. Using his hand as a vantage point the declarer will know how fate has treated the masters, relatives or servants of the thirteen card family in his hand, how they died and how many are left.

◆

It is now possible to give a summary of some of the more important steps and methods of trying to remember a card, a trick, a suit or a hand. While these rules are not necessarily applicable in their entirety to all types of minds, they are in the main correct. Here are the rules:

1. In order to remember a card, "tie it up" [associate it] with a related trick and with the type of play it represents.

2. In order to remember a trick, think of it as a "package" in which the smaller cards of the same suit are tied up with the big ones and the trick itself is tied up with a particular type of play. When all players do not follow to the same suit of the played trick note the discard.

3. Keep in mind the original suit structure—A-K-Q-J-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2—in spades, hearts, diamonds, and clubs. The cards of each suit, as they are played out, create so many "holes" like falling soldiers in the ranks. Each time the suit is played rearrange the ranks of the suit in your own and opponents' hands, mentally "promoting" the lower ranking cards to the position occupied by the played out cards. Stress the attention of your memory on the cards which have been played, if there are seven or less of them [usually this is true after the first two leads]; when more than seven cards of the same suit have been played out make a mental switch by concentrating the effort of memory on the unplayed cards of the suit and by "forgetting" the played cards of the suit. Thereafter, every time a card of the suit is played subtract it from the remaining unplayed cards of the suit.

4. In order to remember your own hand photograph it on your memory immediately after the deal on the basis of the suit pattern [for lengths or distributions] and important cards within each suit [for honor tricks]. By tying up each card to its associated play and trick the player is then able to trace and reconstruct the cards, suits, and accompanying plays of partner and opponents.

5. Forget what is no longer needed as a prop to memory, and above everything, learn to forget the deal which has just been completed. A great number of errors are made because the player does not meet the new deal with a plate wiped clean of intellectual and emotional crumbs.

South is playing a contract of three no trump. West opens the six of spades, dummy plays low, and East wins with the king. What must be East's line of defense to defeat the contract?

Answer: At the second trick, East must return a low diamond, forcing one of dummy's diamond honors. Declarer cannot run nine tricks without knocking out both the heart and club aces. When West takes his first ace, he returns a diamond and East must duck. When West wins with his second ace, he again leads a diamond and now East can cash two diamond tricks, thereby setting the contract.

Unique

A unique attraction was presented by the St. Louis Symphony orchestra recently in its home town. In conjunction with a performance by the orchestra under its conductor, Vladimir Golschmann, of Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," reproductions of the paintings which inspired the musical composition were shown on a screen. The reproductions were made from a collection gathered by Alfred V. Frankenstein, San Francisco music and art critic and former member of the University of Chicago's music department. Mr. Frankenstein acted as commentator on the pictures, which have never been on public exhibition since they were first shown in 1874 in a St. Petersburg gallery.

Mitropoulos Re-engaged.

Dimitri Mitropoulos, who recently conducted the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra in the Auditorium theater, has been reëngaged by that organization for two more years.

Cradle Dedicating New Nursery

By Betty Browning

Twenty-five years ago an Evanston woman went to old Dr. E. H. Webster, her family physician. Her sister's baby had died. Could he help her to find another baby, just the right baby, for her sister?

After careful search a baby was found. When she proved to be very much the right baby other women asked for babies. Soon Mrs. William B. Walrath was going about maternity wards, talking to doctors, nurses, young mothers, hunting always for babies to bring back to men and women who wanted and needed them.

From such a beginning sprang the Cradle, the Evanston nursery to which parents from all parts of the United States appeal in ever increasing numbers when they want to adopt children. Today, on its 16th anniversary, the Cradle is dedicating a $150,000 home on Ridge avenue, just a few yards north of the little red brick house that first sheltered it. From that house, where just eight babies at a time were cared for, the Cradle has expanded into a neighboring house, then into another, and now a fourth structure.

• • •

In this new home thirty-six babies can be sheltered, but still it will be impossible for the Cradle to supply the children that are wanted. In fact, the Cradle actually has come to the point where it is discouraging applications for babies. It receives approximately 1,000 applications a year, more than three applications for each baby it has to place.

Why are there Cradle babies in all the forty-eight states, and even in China and South Africa? Why is it that parents turn to the Cradle—and wait impatiently one, two, three years for a baby when near by are orphan-

Visitors to Rio Have Fun at Carnival

By Cousin Eve.

RIO DE JANEIRO

There's so much raving over Rio's harbor, and its magnificent bays Botafogo and Guanabara, that the beauty of the city itself is lost in hyperbole. The approach to Rio is a wonder of the world, far lovelier than the Golden Gate and Bay of Naples in one. Its narrow mouth admits to a paradise of tropical isles, mountainous skyline, foreground of sparkling metropolis, and one hundred miles of scalloped shore line.

The skyscrapers of Rio rise white above the sapphire sea. One lands at the Rio Touring club's quay, with its gardens, trees, marble halls and breezy patios. Coffee, absolutely free, is wished upon us, but we hasten along greedy for everything else. Two million people live in the city, but now there are added thousands here for the carnival. There are great numbers of smart private cars, buses and trams, and the tempo of the place is astounding.

The first striking thing is the deep dark pigmentation of the people whose ancestors have been sun bathers for countless generations. Rarely does one see a white face. Even among the diplomats the fashion for suntan makes the whole world of Rio akin, from palest café au lait to hues of richest ebony.

We cross superb boulevards lined with department stores, and small streets where enticing shops have no fronts and trade goes on in the open. One sees fresh air cafés, with chess and checker fans, and great intake of coffee. Also a flower market, full of funeral pieces, a wonderful fish market with fish too beautiful to eat, and a whole block of cinemas, most spectacular. There are gorgeous trees and among them tearooms where weary shoppers have sodas with iced cream, cakes and tea, also coffee galore.

• • •

It's all most modern, yet extremely quaint. Portugal has left its mark, also Germany with neatness, old Hanseatic names, and bright blue Saxon eyes in dusky faces. The mosaic sidewalks, in large patterns of butterflies and floral swirls, give us the willy-wabbles when we try to walk.

One rather misses the push carts of Paris with their seasonal fruits and flowers. And there are no drays or vans to make trafic jams. Brazilians do their own trucking right on top of their heads, and what ho! There goes a slim fellow with a sofa balanced jauntily on his pate. And they tell me even pianos are moved in the same informal way. We met walking flower shops and fish stalls, complete as to stock, scales and wrapping paper, all carried on the owner's cranium.

We came to Rio for the carnival, which is the great annual thrill. Everybody takes part. The carnival has been done this way for one hundred years; before that its rites go back into the darkness of unwritten ages.

Nobody stays at home during the carnival. Servants don't work, housewives feed their families on tinned foods, and two million people move into the open to sing and dance. The songs have been written and learned by one and all. The holiday of four days begins Saturday with a great procession of floats and flowers at eventide, winding in and out the boulevards and promenade to the sea. The Negroes have come down from the surrounding hills, and in carnival clubs and bands sing and dance all day as they weave through the narrow streets. All are masked, many are dressed in feathers, a few wear pelts of wild animals and leap in furious excitement. It was exciting to see the grotesqueries of these dancing hordes, in little bystreets lined with houses aged and charming, the lacy ironwork of old Spain and Portugal at doors and windows.

for the carnival ball at the Copacabana. Very foolishly as it turned out. But what is life if not one long lesson? We drove out about midnight with some lively youngsters who live in Rio, and had quite a time getting in, so great was the push. Swarms of young men in white linen were keeping the door, abetted by cordons of police armed to the teeth. But at last we achieved the air-cooled cabaret, finding our table hard by the dance floor and the two orchestras tuning up with mighty thuds of drums and tootling of horns. All the vast gaming rooms of the Copacabana were turned into dance floors, with hundreds of supper tables and thousands of people. Each table had a dancing doll au centre, and the white clad waiters were rushing champagne on ice to all and sundry. Excepting for ourselves, the diners and dancers were residents of Rio, beautiful women and men with crow black hair. Wernher Von Levetzow, the German counselor, had a table and party next to ours and was very gay. There is no German ambassador in Rio for the same reason that there is no Italian ambassador, and that is another story, long and dramatic.

Jefferson Caffery, American ambassador, was saying before I went to Rio that there was something extra-special about Brazilian dancing. The Brazilians, said he, are sold to their own idea of dancing, which is extraordinary. There are two dances, the samba and the maxixe, both of ancient African origins. The Negro band, standing a solid row of fourteen men, blares forth the carnival music. The beat of the drums, the blasts of the horns, and, over all, the crash of wonderful time keeping cymbals, sets every heart athrobbing. The music is black magic itself—quick, honeyed, and sad, merry, yet full of yerning. Pulsing rhythms with themes new and fresh to the ear that one hopes never to forget.

• • •

They told me beforehand at the American embassy, that they dance the samba from midnight till breakfast without fatigue. The fast tempo and wild urgency of the horns, the hearty song of the dancers, with the stentorian baritones of the band keep one going on and on in a trance of barbaric excitement. The rise and fall of the dancers, the rhythmic stamp of their feet, the light skip and prance, were fascinating to behold. The bands changed at half hour intervals, and a fresh lot of bandsters carried on with the same gorgeous insistence. So mad are Brazilians about dancing that many dance alone in the most graceful and charming way, smiling and showing gleaming teeth in an ecstasy. My South American friends say the reason we languish in our dance and cannot keep up with them is twofold—first we change from slow rhythm to medium, then to fast time, and from one combination of steps to another, and utterly relax at the intervals—whereas in the samba there are no pauses and no change of time, but always the crash of cymbals, the maddening fever of the trumpets and the drums.

• • •

The crowd kept growing at the Copacabana and getting wilder. Beautiful Brazilian belles wore native dress mostly, full skirted, bright kerchiefs, beads, roses in the hair. Some lovely creatures were all in white, and white is exquisite in the tropics.

The one disagreeable feature of the carnival broke loose at the Copacabana ball—the ether squirting. They sell thousands of little gilded tin cans filled with perfumed ether, and friendly souls squirt it down your back, in your eyes, on your frock; anywhere. It was here we regretted our glad rags, for we had plenty of ether squirted at us. It is meant to be a charming compliment, but, as the ether burns coldly and the perfume is terrible, the average visitor hates it. Hugh Gibson, former American ambassador to Brazil, says in his book "Rio" not to rub the eyes when they are full of ether—rather let it evaporate and the pain is less. Unluckily I read this item some days after a playful old Portuguese had filled my eyes with the fiery stuff. This liquid confetti is, however, a great feature of the carnival and our friends who trekked on the boulevards had their clothes saturated.

A wonderful five course supper was served at 1 a. m. and all in all it seemed to us a brilliant, gorgeous gala.

• • •

On Monday night the Negroes have their celebration at Praca Onze, a square and length of boulevard where the tallest palms wave their fronds against a star strewn sky. Ten thousand Negroes have come down in swarms from the foothills, the far away mountains and jungle lands, and this is the supreme sight of the four day fiesta. They are an almost aboriginal people, proud of bearing, with magnificent physiques and gleaming skins. Many of the Bahian women are huge creatures wearing amulets, fetiches, and feathers, strings on strings of garish beads, the gaudy turbans of the tropics.

The clubs have their bands, and are called Ranchos. All are in fantastic array and the bands are collections of queer instruments, mostly drums. Sometimes the band has no instruments but cigar boxes and boards, on which time is kept for the singers. Even children are romping in the line of march, and African witch doctors who hop weirdly about. Huge Negresses from Bahia make the greatest hit, advancing in slow rhythm, on bare feet or flat sandals. Billowing skirts, gay kerchiefs, and glittering beads adorn them, and many carry pencas, a wooden contrivance for displaying their gold and silver amulets. The crowds roar approval of these black dancers, also of the music makers, from whom have come the smashing musical hits of the carnival.

The carnival is a many sided affair. Two million or more citizens at play cover much ground, street dancing goes on everywhere, and youths pass among the crowds with trays on their heads with coffee and iced fruit drinks for the dancers.

The weather at Rio has been superb this season. It is hot to be sure, but always with nice air stirring from the sea, and not a drop of rain although it is the rainy season.

• • •

There are lots of fascinating all day picnic trips out of Rio, most of them by water. Paqueta is one of them, a divinely quaint old settlement on an island, while others are the island Bom Jesus, and the German Yacht club at Nictheroy, which is a place to dine on the terrace overlooking the bay and return late by boat in the moonlight. However, it was thumbs down on boat rides as far as we were concerned, having had plenty of boat and water en route to Rio, and we hugged land until the very last minute.

The Gavea Golf club is another matter. It is a comfortable, made over farm house furnished with Brazilian antiques, which most of us know are very handsome and the world's heaviest furniture. It seems there is in Brazil a sharped toothed beetle which honeycombs ordinary wood in a jiffy. But the wood used in Brazilian furniture is beetleproof and hard as iron. The view is gorgeous from the Gavea club and a great temptation is to sit there and enjoy it and do nothing else whatever. Here, too, there are mountains and the sea, which makes it hard to rise up from your wicker chair for golf, polo, tennis, a swim in the lovely large pool, or any of the delicious meals they serve at the club.

They say that so many distractions and beauties of nature assail your passage across the golf course that it is fairly difficult to keep one's eye on the ball. Gavea mountain, purple and well bowered with banana plantations, bars the view on the first tee. On the others in succession are swarms of butterflies beautiful as jewels. Birds of incredibly bright colors flit in and out of masses of bougainvillea, and there are magnificent mango, jaca, and breadfruit trees and poinsettias.

When Chicago Was Young:

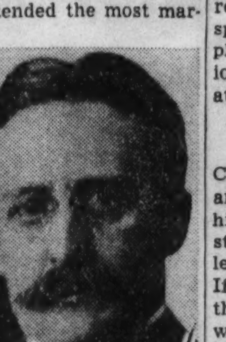
H. Gordon Selfridge-Rosalie Buckingham United in Marriage

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 12, 1890.

Dear Julia: Will and I, Sandy and Martha, have attended the most marvelous wedding today . . . that of Rosalie Buckingham and Harry Gordon Selfridge. It was indeed like a royal marriage, with its disregard of expense, its carefully thought-out details.



Harry Gordon Selfridge.

Three thousand persons thronged Central Music hall, where Central church, of which the two young people are members, holds its services.

The bride has been conspicuous in Chicago society, for she is not only a personable young woman, but a fine linguist, a clever artist and a skilled musician. Harry Selfridge, too, has "arrived," being known and respected everywhere, though he's only 35 years of age. He was born and educated in Jackson, Mich., and began business there. Eleven years ago he came to Chicago and took a position in Marshall Field's wholesale store, from which he was transferred to the retail division of the business. A year ago he was made general manager of the store, and last January he was taken into the firm. So he is really one of the great merchants of Chicago.

But to the wedding! The hall was a difficult place to decorate, but the florist had accomplished the impossible. Blossoming chrysanthemums were massed around the platform. In front of the organ-loft were eight white pillars, with pointed arches of smilax and white roses, simulating a Gothic choir. In addition, there was a great screen of green rose branches, studded with fragrant white roses. In the center of the open space in front of the platform was placed a carved gold-and-scarlet cushioned prie-Dieu, with delicate ferns at its base.

• • •

Harrison Wild, one of our great Chicago organists, sat at the organ, and Madame Chatterton was near him, with her harp. Behind curtains stood W. L. Tomlins and twenty selected voices from the Apollo club. If there had been no wedding at all the musical program would have been worth going far to hear. The families of the bridal attendants sat in the boxes.

When the strains of "Lohengrin" were heard there appeared on the platform the well-known figure of Dr. David Swing, accompanied by Dr. H. H. Sanford of Syracuse, N. Y., a former teacher of the bride. Then the bridegroom appeared, with his best man, Mr. R. B. Macpherson of New York, and in a moment the bridal procession approached from the back of the hall . . . a bevy of lovely young women. Kate Buckingham and May Sturges walked together; Marie Winston and Eva Kimball; Belle Quan and Fannie Moss. Now the bride came, in her exquisite white satin gown, followed by more maids . . . Fannie Cowles and Carrie Griggs; Jennie Grannis and Frances Lee; Ellen Williams and Julia Buckingham.

The personnel of the men's group was interesting, too. There were M. Bruwaert, French consul in Chicago, walking with T. Benton Leiter; Harry Higinbotham and Eli Gage, E. Spencer Sturges and Clarence Buckingham, Harry Buckingham and C. M. Alexander, W. Preston Harriss and James Cary Evans. Little Alice Higinbotham was flower girl and youthful Buckingham Chandler led the ushers. It was a gorgeous sight, as the maids, with colorful Russian girdles fastening their white muslin gowns, swept down the aile.

• • •

Dr. Swing made the ceremony very unusual by reciting Shakespeare's sonnet, beginning:

"Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediments. Love is not love
Which alters when it alteration finds,
Or bends with the remover to remove:
O, no; it is an ever-fixed mark,
That looks on tempests and is never shaken . . ."

This, said Dr. Swing, was the declaration of the man to the maid. Next he recited Elizabeth Barrett Browning's lovely poem, which he called the words of the maid to the man. You probably know it. It ends:

"I love thee with the breath
Smiles, tears, of all my life, and, if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death."

It was really most affecting.

In the evening we attended the reception held in the Frank Chandler home on Rush street, near Chicago avenue. Mr. Chandler is a brother-in-law of the bride. The presents were gorgeous. One of them couldn't be shown . . . the gift of Madame Selfridge, mother of the groom, who had presented her new daughter-in-law with a carriage and pair. The horses are named Prince and Maximilian, and their harness is all silver-plated. This stunning equipage was used by the bride in driving to and from the wedding and was a grand sight, all decked as it was with flowers.

But I have written too long a letter. I must close.

Your loving friend,
Martha Freeman Esmond.

Visitors to Rio Have Fun at Carnival

By Cousin Eve.

RIO DE JANEIRO There's so much raving over Rio's harbor, and its magnificent bays Botafogo and Guanabara, that the beauty of the city itself is lost in hyperbole. The approach to Rio is a wonder of the world, far lovelier than the Golden Gate and Bay of Naples in one. Its narrow mouth admits to a paradise of tropical isles, mountainous skyline, foreground of sparkling metropolis, and one hundred miles of scalloped shore line.

The skyscrapers of Rio rise white above the sapphire sea. One lands at the Rio Touring club's quay, with its gardens, trees, marble halls and breezy patios. Coffee, absolutely free, is wished upon us, but we hasten along greedy for everything else. Two million people live in the city, but now there are added thousands here for the carnival. There are great numbers of smart private cars, buses and trams, and the tempo of the place is astounding.

The first striking thing is the deep dark pigmentation of the people whose ancestors have been sun bathers for countless generations. Rarely does one see a white face. Even among the diplomats the fashion for suntan makes the whole world of Rio akin, from palest café au lait to hues of richest ebony.

We cross superb boulevards lined with department stores, and small streets where enticing shops have no fronts and trade goes on in the open. One sees fresh air cafés, with chess and checker fans, and great intake of coffee. Also a flower market, full of funeral pieces, a wonderful fish market with fish too beautiful to eat, and a whole block of cinemas, most spectacular. There are gorgeous trees and among them tearooms where weary shoppers have sodas with iced cream, cakes and tea, also coffee galore.

• • •

It's all most modern, yet extremely quaint. Portugal has left its mark, also Germany with neatness, old Hanseatic names, and bright blue Saxon eyes in dusky faces. The mosaic sidewalks, in large patterns of butterflies and floral swirls, give us the willy-wabbles when we try to walk.

One rather misses the push carts of Paris with their seasonal fruits and flowers. And there are no drays or vans to make trafic jams. Brazilians do their own trucking right on top of their heads, and what ho! There goes a slim fellow with a sofa balanced jauntily on his pate. And they tell me even pianos are moved in the same informal way. We met walking flower shops and fish stalls, complete as to stock, scales and wrapping paper, all carried on the owner's cranium.

We came to Rio for the carnival, which is the great annual thrill. Everybody takes part. The carnival has been done this way for one hundred years; before that its rites go back into the darkness of unwritten ages.

Nobody stays at home during the carnival. Servants don't work, housewives feed their families on tinned foods, and two million people move into the open to sing and dance. The songs have been written and learned by one and all. The holiday of four days begins Saturday with a great procession of floats and flowers at eventide, winding in and out the boulevards and promenade to the sea. The Negroes have come down from the surrounding hills, and in carnival clubs and bands sing and dance all day as they weave through the narrow streets. All are masked, many are dressed in feathers, a few wear pelts of wild animals and leap in furious excitement. It was exciting to see the grotesqueries of these dancing hordes, in little bystreets lined with houses aged and charming, the lacy ironwork of old Spain and Portugal at doors and windows.

I was buying delightful antique pieces in the shop of Marquis dos Santos, antiquary of ancient lineage in rua Chile, when one of these bands of dancing Negroes went by. Everybody rushed to the sidewalk to watch and fling money at the carnivalists.

• • •

Rio is a great shopping place. You buy quite lovely silks for nearly nothing, tortoise shell, old Peruvian silver, ancient jewels, wood carvings in polychrome, aquamarines, beautiful brocades, and native lethers. Polite haggling is expected, and shopkeepers are ravished by these hordes of lavish patrons who land from the cruise ships and invade their marts like locusts.

We put on our very best clothes for the carnival ball at the Copacabana. Very foolishly as it turned out. But what is life if not one long lesson? We drove out about midnight with some lively youngsters who live in Rio, and had quite a time getting in, so great was the push. Swarms of young men in white linen were keeping the door, abetted by cordons of police armed to the teeth. But at last we achieved the air-cooled cabaret, finding our table hard by the dance floor and the two orchestras tuning up with mighty thuds of drums and tootling of horns. All the vast gaming rooms of the Copacabana were turned into dance floors, with hundreds of supper tables and thousands of people. Each table had a dancing doll au centre, and the white clad waiters were rushing champagne on ice to all and sundry. Excepting for ourselves, the diners and dancers were residents of Rio, beautiful women and men with crow black hair. Wernher Von Levetzow, the German counselor, had a table and party next to ours and was very gay. There is no German ambassador in Rio for the same reason that there is no Italian ambassador, and that is another story, long and dramatic.

Jefferson Caffery, American ambassador, was saying before I went to Rio that there was something extra-special about Brazilian dancing. The Brazilians, said he, are sold to their own idea of dancing, which is extraordinary. There are two dances, the samba and the maxixe, both of ancient African origins. The Negro band, standing a solid row of fourteen men, blares forth the carnival music. The beat of the drums, the blasts of the horns, and, over all, the crash of wonderful time keeping cymbals, sets every heart athrobbing. The music is black magic itself—quick, honeyed, and sad, merry, yet full of yerning. Pulsing rhythms with themes new and fresh to the ear that one hopes never to forget.

• • •

They told me beforehand at the American embassy, that they dance the samba from midnight till breakfast without fatigue. The fast tempo and wild urgency of the horns, the hearty song of the dancers, with the stentorian baritones of the band keep one going on and on in a trance of barbaric excitement. The rise and fall of the dancers, the rhythmic stamp of their feet, the light skip and prance, were fascinating to behold. The bands changed at half hour intervals, and a fresh lot of bandsters carried on with the same gorgeous insistence. So mad are Brazilians about dancing that many dance alone in the most graceful and charming way, smiling and showing gleaming teeth in an ecstasy. My South American friends say the reason we languish in our dance and cannot keep up with them is twofold—first we change from slow rhythm to medium, then to fast time, and from one combination of steps to another, and utterly relax at the intervals—whereas in the samba there are no pauses and no change of time, but always the crash of cymbals, the maddening fever of the trumpets and the drums.

• • •

The crowd kept growing at the Copacabana and getting wilder. Beautiful Brazilian belles wore native dress mostly, full skirted, bright kerchiefs, beads, roses in the hair. Some lovely creatures were all in white, and white is exquisite in the tropics.

The one disagreeable feature of the carnival broke loose at the Copacabana ball—the ether squirting. They sell thousands of little gilded tin cans filled with perfumed ether, and friendly souls squirt it down your back, in your eyes, on your frock; anywhere. It was here we regretted our glad rags, for we had plenty of ether squirted at us. It is meant to be a charming compliment, but, as the ether burns coldly and the perfume is terrible, the average visitor hates it. Hugh Gibson, former American ambassador to Brazil, says in his book "Rio" not to rub the eyes when they are full of ether—rather let it evaporate and the pain is less. Unluckily I read this item some days after a playful old Portuguese had filled my eyes with the fiery stuff. This liquid confetti is, however, a great feature of the carnival and our friends who trekked on the boulevards had their clothes saturated.

A wonderful five course supper was served at 1 a. m. and all in all it seemed to us a brilliant, gorgeous gala.

• • •

On Monday night the Negroes have their celebration at Praca Onze, a square and length of boulevard where the tallest palms wave their fronds against a star strewn sky. Ten thousand Negroes have come down in swarms from the foothills, the far away mountains and jungle lands, and this is the supreme sight of the four day fiesta. They are an almost aboriginal people, proud of bearing, with magnificent physiques and gleaming skins. Many of the Bahian women are huge creatures wearing amulets, fetiches, and feathers, strings on strings of garish beads, the gaudy turbans of the tropics.

The clubs have their bands, and are called Ranchos. All are in fantastic array and the bands are collections of queer instruments, mostly drums. Sometimes the band has no instruments but cigar boxes and boards, on which time is kept for the singers. Even children are romping in the line of march, and African witch doctors who hop weirdly about. Huge Negresses from Bahia make the greatest hit, advancing in slow rhythm, on bare feet or flat sandals. Billowing skirts, gay kerchiefs, and glittering beads adorn them, and many carry pencas, a wooden contrivance for displaying their gold and silver amulets. The crowds roar approval of these black dancers, also of the music makers, from whom have come the smashing musical hits of the carnival.

The carnival is a many sided affair. Two million or more citizens at play cover much ground, street dancing goes on everywhere, and youths pass among the crowds with trays on their heads with coffee and iced fruit drinks for the dancers.

The weather at Rio has been superb this season. It is hot to be sure, but always with nice air stirring from the sea, and not a drop of rain although it is the rainy season.

• • •

There are lots of fascinating all day picnic trips out of Rio, most of them by water. Paqueta is one of them, a divinely quaint old settlement on an island, while others are the island Bom Jesus, and the German Yacht club at Nictheroy, which is a place to dine on the terrace overlooking the bay and return late by boat in the moonlight. However, it was thumbs down on boat rides as far as we were concerned, having had plenty of boat and water en route to Rio, and we hugged land until the very last minute.

The Gavea Golf club is another matter. It is a comfortable, made over farm house furnished with Brazilian antiques, which most of us know are very handsome and the world's heaviest furniture. It seems there is in Brazil a sharped toothed beetle which honeycombs ordinary wood in a jiffy. But the wood used in Brazilian furniture is beetleproof and hard as iron. The view is gorgeous from the Gavea club and a great temptation is to sit there and enjoy it and do nothing else whatever. Here, too, there are mountains and the sea, which makes it hard to rise up from your wicker chair for golf, polo, tennis, a swim in the lovely large pool, or any of the delicious meals they serve at the club.

They say that so many distractions and beauties of nature assail your passage across the golf course that it is fairly difficult to keep one's eye on the ball. Gavea mountain, purple and well bowered with banana plantations, bars the view on the first tee. On the others in succession are swarms of butterflies beautiful as jewels. Birds of incredibly bright colors flit in and out of masses of bougainvillea, and there are magnificent mango, jaca, and breadfruit trees and poinsettias.

When Chicago Was Young:

H. Gordon Selfridge-Rosalie Buckingham United in Marriage

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 12, 1890.

Dear Julia: Will and I, Sandy and Martha, have attended the most marvelous wedding today . . . that of Rosalie Buckingham and Harry Gordon Selfridge. It was indeed like a royal marriage, with its disregard of expense, its carefully thought-out details.

Harry Gordon Selfridge.

Three thousand persons thronged Central Music hall, where Central church, of which the two young people are members, holds its services.

The bride has been conspicuous in Chicago society, for she is not only a personable young woman, but a fine linguist, a clever artist and a skilled musician. Harry Selfridge, too, has "arrived," being known and respected everywhere, though he's only 35 years of age. He was born and educated in Jackson, Mich., and began business there. Eleven years ago he came to Chicago and took a position in Marshall Field's wholesale store, from which he was transferred to the retail division of the business. A year ago he was made general manager of the store, and last January he was taken into the firm. So he is really one of the great merchants of Chicago.

But to the wedding! The hall was a difficult place to decorate, but the florist had accomplished the impossible. Blossoming chrysanthemums were massed around the platform. In front of the organ-loft were eight white pillars, with pointed arches of smilax and white roses, simulating a Gothic choir. In addition, there was a great screen of green rose branches, studded with fragrant white roses. In the center of the open space in front of the platform was placed a carved gold-and-scarlet cushioned prie-Dieu, with delicate ferns at its base.

• • •

Harrison Wild, one of our great Chicago organists, sat at the organ, and Madame Chatterton was near him, with her harp. Behind curtains stood W. L. Tomlins and twenty selected voices from the Apollo club. If there had been no wedding at all the musical program would have been worth going far to hear. The families of the bridal attendants sat in the boxes.

When the strains of "Lohengrin" were heard there appeared on the platform the well-known figure of Dr. David Swing, accompanied by Dr. H. H. Sanford of Syracuse, N. Y., a former teacher of the bride. Then the bridegroom appeared, with his best man, Mr. R. B. Macpherson of New York, and in a moment the bridal procession approached from the back of the hall . . . a bevy of lovely young women. Kate Buckingham and May Sturges walked together; Marie Winston and Eva Kimball; Belle Quan and Fannie Moss. Now the bride came, in her exquisite white satin gown, followed by more maids . . . Fannie Cowles and Carrie Griggs; Jennie Grannis and Frances Lee; Ellen Williams and Julia Buckingham.

The personnel of the men's group was interesting, too. There were M. Bruwaert, French consul in Chicago, walking with T. Benton Leiter; Harry Higinbotham and Eli Gage, E. Spencer Sturges and Clarence Buckingham, Harry Buckingham and C. M. Alexander, W. Preston Harriss and James Cary Evans. Little Alice Higinbotham was flower girl and youthful Buckingham Chandler led the ushers. It was a gorgeous sight, as the maids, with colorful Russian girdles fastening their white muslin gowns, swept down the aile.

• • •

Dr. Swing made the ceremony very unusual by reciting Shakespeare's sonnet, beginning:

"Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediments. Love is not love
Which alters when it alteration finds,
Or bends with the remover to remove:
O, no; it is an ever-fixed mark,
That looks on tempests and is never shaken . . ."

This, said Dr. Swing, was the declaration of the man to the maid. Next he recited Elizabeth Barrett Browning's lovely poem, which he called the words of the maid to the man. You probably know it. It ends:

"I love thee with the breath
Smiles, tears, of all my life, and, if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death."

It was really most affecting.

In the evening we attended the reception held in the Frank Chandler home on Rush street, near Chicago avenue. Mr. Chandler is a brother-in-law of the bride. The presents were gorgeous. One of them couldn't be shown . . . the gift of Madame Selfridge, mother of the groom, who had presented her new daughter-in-law with a carriage and pair. The horses are named Prince and Maximilian, and their harness is all silver-plated. This stunning equipage was used by the bride in driving to and from the wedding and was a grand sight, all decked as it was with flowers.

But I have written too long a letter. I must close.

The Cradle Is Dedicating New Nursery Today

"Babies always have been my vocation," this small gray haired woman with keen blue eyes says of herself. Mrs. Walrath had four children of her own before she turned her attention to other people's babies. Through her experiences as a mother she acquired a philosophy that, carried over to the Cradle, has made it the unique institution it is.

Mrs. Walrath's belief is that every normal child, no matter what the circumstances surrounding his birth, has the right to a home and the love of two parents. She believes, too, that parenthood is stewardship, not ownership. Therefore, if a mother has given birth to a child under circumstances which society frowns upon, it is her obligation to give him up to others who can provide for him a normal home life, free of stigma.

• • •

The parents who adopt a child, by doing so become his true parents, Mrs. Walrath contends. A child's body and mind are inherited from his physical parents, but it rests with his adoptive parents how his body and his mind develop.

No husband and wife who come to the Cradle ever select a child. A child is chosen for them. More exactly, they are chosen for the child. The Cradle has developed into a parent-finding institution for babies even more than a baby-finding institution for parents.

The delicate, highly personal process of bringing the right babies and parents together is Mrs. Walrath's own, originated and carried out by her.

When Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler adopted a baby from the Cradle several years ago, a child of Irish and Jewish parentage was given them. Protestant parents always are found for a baby with a Protestant heritage; Catholic parents for a Catholic baby. Nationalities of parents and baby are matched; so are economic and social circumstances.

"By entrusting a child to parents of similar background we try to duplicate as closely as possible the situation of a family bringing up a child of its own flesh and blood," Mrs. Walrath explained.

Human psychology plays its part in Mrs. Walrath's method of parent finding. By the time that the would-be father and mother, carefully encased in sterile garments, with gauze bandages over their mouths and noses, are admitted to the little room where the baby chosen for them awaits them, they are as much aware as Mrs. Walrath herself that parenthood is a privilege.

• • •

The prospective parents have had to give in their applications all their qualifications for parenthood. They have been interviewed. They have had to wait months or even years for this moment. They know that the baby has been picked as carefully for them as they have been picked for him. If they decide not to take this particular baby, they realize it may be years before another suitable child is found. Inevitably it is in a mood of real thankfulness that most parents accept their baby.

Mrs. Walrath has very definite standards for her parents. Cradle babies are not given away to patch up crumbling marriages or to satisfy neurasthenic women's maternal urges. Most parents of Cradle babies, in Mrs. Walrath's own words, "have been married eight or ten years, have established homes, and can prove to the community that they are sound, wholesome persons."

With all her careful winnowing of applications, Mrs. Walrath has found that there are hundreds more desirable parents than there are babies for them.

• • •

To make the new parent and child combination doubly secure, Mrs. Walrath takes another precaution. The baby's story is in her head and nowhere else. Except in rare cases she herself gathers the facts about a baby from the mother. What these facts are even the prospective parents are not told. No records of the child's history are kept. His life really begins the day his new parents take him from the Cradle.

Yet Mrs. Walrath always urges parents to tell their child that he is adopted. "Let him know from the first that he's adopted, but that he's just the same as yours. Then he won't be hurt later on," she advises.

One more factor in the Cradle's success: the physical care given the babies during the six or seven weeks most of them spend there. Infants only a few days old when they are brought to the Cradle are established on an artificial diet under the best possible auspices. Leading physicians and psychiatrists supervise their care at this critical stage, and make certain that they are quite sound mentally and physically before they are placed in their new homes.

• • •

A mortality rate of less than one per cent has been achieved by the Cradle. Four to six per cent is the prevailing rate for babies elsewhere. During an epidemic of enteritis at the Cradle in 1927, Dr. Gladys H. Dick, noted bacteriologist, discovered that the disease is spread by nonsterile food and flaws in nursery technique.

Since then the Cradle has adopted the nursery technique worked out by Dr. Dick, and has succeeded in eliminating cross-infection by hand borne germs. From the moment he enters the Cradle, a baby lives in his private glass enclosed cubicle, shut in with everything he needs for his own use, and his alone. His nurse never approaches him without putting on fresh sterile garments and a gauze mask.

In the new Cradle building it is expected that this death rate will be lowered still further. Scientists are experimenting with the prevention of infection by air borne germs. Invisible "walls" of violet rays will protect each infant in his cubicle from infection by air.

• • •

This model equipment, as well as the attractively appointed lounge and offices of the handsome new three story stone building, will be on view at the dedication today, and will be open for public inspection the balance of the week.

Many of the men and women who are taking part in the dedication exercises can look backward to the Cradle's modest beginning in 1923. That year the Evanston hospital, where Mrs. Walrath had kept her babies prior to their adoption, decided that the babies could no longer be cared for there. Mrs. Walrath turned to her friends for help. She already had placed more than ninety babies. Now this work must stop unless suitable quarters for the babies could be found.

At Mrs John C. Slade's home in Evanston the Cradle society was formed. Frank S. Cunningham, Sewell L. Avery, Henry M. Dawes, Frederick H. Scott, and the late Rollin A. Keyes made possible the purchase of the Cradle's first home, a small red brick house across the street from the Evanston hospital. Mr. Cunningham has been president of the Cradle society ever since its founding, and Mr. Avery, vice president.

• • •

Mrs. Walrath always emphasizes that the Cradle's record of 3,600 babies placed in normal homes has been made possible by the unfaltering support of these and other interested men and women through the years. Particularly she speaks of Mrs. Slade and the late Mrs. Michael F. Gallagher, who shortly before her death several years ago published a book giving the fruits of her Cradle experiences. Mrs. Slade, Mrs. Gallagher and she herself have been a "triumvirate," Mrs. Walrath says.

But Mrs. Walrath's friends will testify that she, in fact as well as in name, is managing director of the Cradle, true arbiter of its destinies and those of her babies. "Dynamic" is a word they often use in talking about her. Dynamic she must be to have developed the Cradle to the complex organization it is today and to keep it moving forward.

To begin with, the Cradle now requires an annual budget of $50,000. Since it is not endowed, most of the money must be raised by voluntary contributions. The Cradle's auxiliaries on the north shore, the south shore and in western suburbs help to defray expenses. Funds also are raised through a layette shop, a gift shop, and a tearoom at the Cradle, all under Mrs. Walrath's supervision.

The Cradle's four buildings now house, besides the babies and the three money making enterprises, a staf of seven graduate nurses and fourteen undergraduate nurses. There are half a dozen office workers. What with keeping in personal touch with all these activities, and finding her babies and parents, Mrs. Walrath rarely misses a day at the Cradle, and a very long day at that.

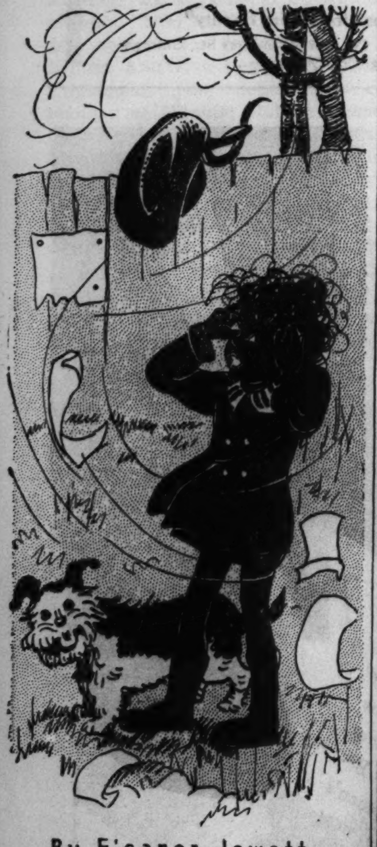
HOUSECLEANING



By Eleanor Jewett.

From its peg in the sky Mother Goose in March
Takes her broom (the wind) and with suds and starch,
The finest clouds in lathery bits,
Throws winter into conniption fits.
She brushes and dusts and sweeps so fast
There's no chance at all for snow to last.
She brushes Old Winter right off his feet
And washes the world 'til it's clean and neat.
"And now," she nods, with a last quick swing,
"We're ready for robins and flowers and SPRING!"

Social Events of Week to Be Distinguished

By Judith Cass.

The presence in Chicago of a number of men distinguished in fields of education, literature, the theater, arts, and adventure is providing the major interesting events of the week. The Rev. E. J. Flanagan of "Boys' Town," Sinclair Lewis, Nobel prize winner; André Maurois, member of the French academy; Capt. John D. Craig, underseas explorer, and Dennis King, are some of the visitors.

The Chicago Drama league is giving a breakfast on Tuesday at the Blackstone for Mr. Lewis and Mr. King. Mr. Lewis will bring with him to the breakfast some of the cast of his play, "Angela Is Twenty-Two," which opens tonight at the Selwyn. Other special guests will be members of Mr. King's "I Married an Angel" company.

The English-Speaking Union will give a tea for Mr. Lewis on Thursday at the Arts club at which he will express his views on American life from Main street to Broadway.

• • •

Father Flanagan's talk tomorrow at the Knickerbocker hotel will be one of the highlights of a series of Lenten lectures arranged by the Chapel guild of the Cenacle. It will be given at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Harriet McLaughlin, Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin, Mrs. Charles Spalding, Mrs. William J. Stenson, Mrs. Leslie Cooke, Mrs. Edward H. Ball Jr., and Mrs. Louis H. G. Bouscaren are some of those giving luncheons and taking their guests to hear Father Flanagan.

The Alliance Française is giving a luncheon at the Arts club tomorrow for M. Maurois, biographer and novelist. Réne Weiller, French consul general, and Mme. Weiller will be special guests at the luncheon. Among those who will meet the French author are Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Ralph James, Mrs. John Storrs, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Carter Harrison, Mrs. George Cragg, and M. and Mme. Henri David.

Count Jehan de Noue, owner of a celebrated old château outside of Paris, will give an illustrated lecture on French châteaux on Tuesday afternoon at the Cercle Française. Mme. Edith Mason and Mrs. Royden Keith will pour tea following his talk.

• • •

Drama League members will be especially busy this week, for, in addition to the luncheon for Mr. King and Mr. Lewis, the league is departing from its custom of concentrating on the living stage to sponsor the première of the motion picture "Peg of Old Drury" on Wednesday night at the Esquire theater. The film is a historical production of special interest to drama students. Produced in England, its stars are Sir Cedric Hardwicke as David Garrick, greatest actor of the eighteenth century, and Anna Neagle as Peg Woffington, an Irish girl who became the darling of the London stage. Sir Cedric was seen on the Chicago stage tihs winter.

Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon is chairman of the committee in charge of the première. Among those assisting are Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Howard ReQua, Mrs. J. Bernard Mullen, Mrs. Daniel Burnham, and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr.

A recital by Martha Graham will attract a number of dance enthusiasts to the Civic Opera house next Saturday night. "American Document," Miss Graham's newest dance, will be featured on the program.

Chicago alumnæ of the University of Michigan will meet for luncheon next Saturday at the home of Mrs. Nathan William MacChesney to make plans for a benefit fashion show and tea to be held at Marshall Field & Co. on March 25. During the afternoon Saturday the alumnæ will hear the first world-wide broadcast from the university, intended especially for its alumnæ.

Exhibits of Water Colors to Open Soon

By Eleanor Jewett.

This winter of art is going out in a burst of glory. The galleries are filled with exhibitions of first importance, and other exhibits of equal merit are waiting for their openings. Two exhibitions which anticipation usually presents in bright colors, and which usually fulfill our anticipation, are the water color shows put on by the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts at the Stevens hotel and by the Art institute in its east wing galleries.

The All-Illinois water color show will open next Saturday with a formal reception in the afternoon at the gallery, while the eighteenth international water color exhibit will open at the Art institute on March 23. It will continue to May 14 and, in addition to a representative showing of the work of many painters, it will offer group shows of the work of Matisse, Edward Hopper, and John Whorf.

• • •

The All-Illinois water color show will be shorter than usual this year, continuing probably into the third week of April, because the gallery has been given to Mrs. Frank G. Logan to house a national exhibition of paintings and sculpture by artist members of the Sanity in Art movement, from the first of May. This exhibition will run to June 1. Money prizes and a Sanity in Art medal will be awarded. Each participant is entitled to two entries. The exhibition will be juried.

Exhibits are to be sent to Society for Sanity in Art, Inc., room 453, Stevens hotel, 7th street at Michigan avenue, Chicago. They must be sent before April 15. For further details write Society for Sanity in Art, Inc., 1150 Lake Shore drive, Chicago.

One of the most impressive shows at the moment is that of paintings and drawings by John Steuart Curry at the Lakeside Press galleries. These same galleries have given us two other American shows of importance, one of paintings by Grant Wood and the other of paintings by Thomas Benton. The Curry exhibition sustains the fine character of the previous exhibits.

Personally I find Curry an illustrator on a magnificent scale. He had his first experience as an artist in illustrating and something of the tactics of the craft has remained with him. The dozen or so large canvases in the present show could easily fit, on a reduced scale, into a story of the life of the middle west. He is showing us the events and adventures that make up the life of the people in Kansas and Missouri and other of those states where nature is still an enormous menace not to be trifled with.

Curry paints the cyclone area, the country where each home must have a cellar in which to hide against the onrushing tornado. It is also a land of flat and fertile fields and a land of little water. We gather both facts from his accounts. For baptism a watering trough is used, and again a watering trough makes an excellent swimming pool. In a less arid country one would take these diversions to a lake or river. Curry does not let us forget the Negro question nor the thrill of the revival hour. His rendering of a Bible meeting is one of the most effective illustrations in this history of the middle west.

• • •

Besides the landscape with its rapidly changing aspects and his groups of people engaged in dramatic episodes such as escape from the elements or undergoing a religious ceremony that has all the urge of a Salvation Army band, Curry is interested in the circus and gives us several circus paintings. These cover the ground inside and outside of the great tent. His portrayals of acrobats are among his finest work. When he paints animals, that is a different story. He is not a great animal painter. He apparently enjoys the well padded bulk of the Belgian horse and features that magnificent creature in a number of studies, but look closely and details, such as knee action or the turn of a leg, are to be criticized.

There are a few portraits in the exhibition and a nude, rather hard and unsympathetic. His self-portrait is pleasing; so, too, is the full length portrait of a lady which you will find installed above the elevators.

This can be said for Curry without quibbling: He is a truly American painter and one of the big figures of today. He and Benton and Wood each stand for a definite type of creative art which borrows nothing from Europe and is the better for it.

The Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, opened last Monday to continue to March 27 a group of three exhibitions. Chief among them is the memorial exhibition of paintings by Pauline Palmer, whose death in Europe is still felt among us. We lost a great painter in her going, perhaps the greatest woman painter of the middle west. Her talents were diversified. Mrs. Palmer had an enviable reputation in portraiture, landscape painting, and still life. She was as great a person as she was an artist, and her humor, her wit, her generous appreciation of others, and her intrinsic kindness made her a beloved figure in many circles.

The other two exhibits at the Chicago galleries are a new group of twenty-five paintings of Chicago by Richard A. Chase and paintings of Colorado by Alfred J. Wands.

The Business Men's Art club opened its annual exhibit of oils and water colors by members, at the club woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, on March 4 to continue to April 1. Like last year, this is an excellent show. It illustrates to the full how much pleasure one may get from a hobby and how proficient the exercise of a hobby may make one. There are pictures in this exhibition which would not shame a professional artist. The exhibit is well worth seeing.

"Opinions of the Ballet," an amusing series of studies in pastel, by Carl Austen, are on view in the Leo Buntman gallery to April 2.

There is a delightful group of recent water colors by the Englishman, W. Russell Flint, at the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue. Flint has long been a top-notcher and these particular paintings would put him there had not his previous work done so. They are charming, sensitive and delicate in color, and exquisite in composition. The three nudes by the sea, a sea that is lost between water and sand and sky—a most marvelous blending of elements and color into a delicious vague wash of atmosphere in which each is felt rather than seen—is the most exciting initiation into sheer beauty that has been offered in Chicago in years.

The Arts club opened three exhibitions on March 3. There are paintings by Maurice Grosser, paintings by John Kane, and drawings by Herman Webster, who is an ex-Chicagoan. The exhibit will run through March.

An exhibition of portraits in oil by Evelyn Bargelt is on view this month under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts at the Drake hotel. It is an interesting exhibit with a number of portraits of well known persons painted most attractively.

The statue of Moses, among other new work, by Archipenko, has been placed on exhibition in the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue, to run through the month. Archipenko is a leading modern and his exhibits always arouse keen discussion. The "Moses" will undoubtedly have both partisans and opponents. But the show is worth seeing.

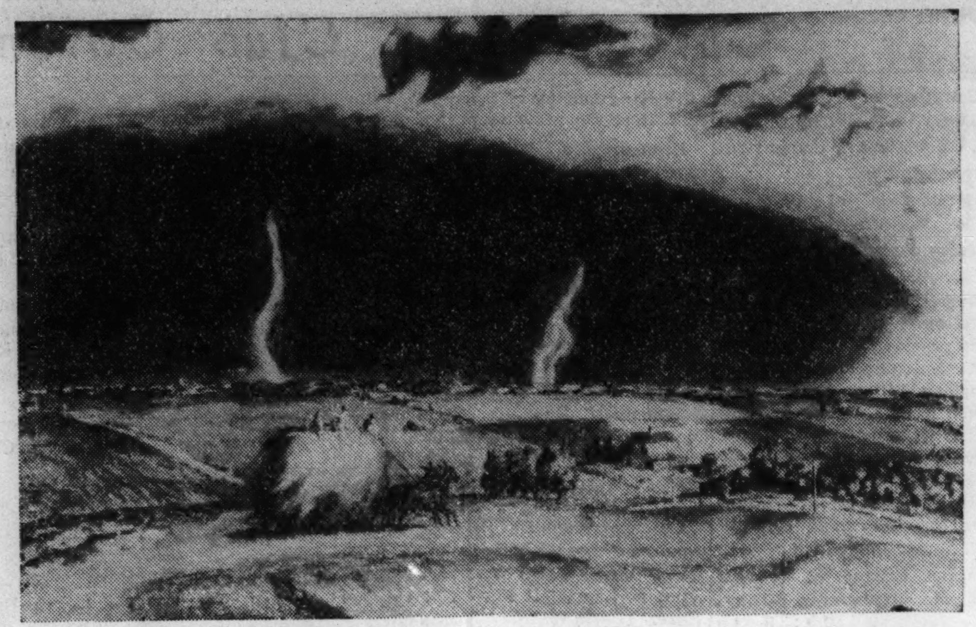
The Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, on Tuesday opens an exhibition of landscapes by Karl Brandner of THE TRIBUNE, flower arrangements in pastel by Mrs. Brandner, and paintings by Paul Beem, whose "The Church, the Cardinal, and the Angel" was one of the most exquisite paintings in the recently closed Hoosier salon.



''LINE STORM,'' BY JOHN S. CURRY

John Steuart Curry is showing this dramatic canvas with a number of other similar "thrillers" in a one man exhibition at the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street, to April 28.

Faiths to Pay Tribute to the Late Dr. Levi

Catholic, Protestant and Jew will pay tribute to the late Dr. Gerson B. Levi at a meeting of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow at its headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Judge John P. McGoorty will represent the Chicago Round Table of Jews and Christians, of which Dr. Levi was a board member. Other speakers will be Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of Northwestern university's settlement, and Jacob Kepecs of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, which Dr. Levi served as director. Robert Spiro, baritone, and Ralph Gerber, pianist, also will be on the program.

• • •

Dr. Levi, who died Feb. 15, had been a leader in Chicago religious and civic circles since 1906, when he came to Chicago as rabbi of Temple Isaiah. From 1924 with Temple Isaiah united with Temple Israel, until his retirement in 1937, he headed the combined temples. He also was editor of the Reform Advocate. Dr. Levi's wife, daughter of the late Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, has been a leader in the National Council of Jewish Women.

Following the memorial program a symposium on "The Refugee Comes to America" will be presented. Mrs. Louis Ascher will describe what the council is doing for the refugee. She is technical director of the council's department of service to the foreign born.

Miss Virginia Frank, executive director of the Jewish Social Service bureau, will discuss "Absorbing the Immigrant Into the American Scene." Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs, Viennese neurologist and psychiatrist, will speak on "The Refugee's Adjustment to the American Community." Rosa Siegel will sing. Tea will be served. Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris heads the Chicago section of the National council.

• • •

The teen aged Infants' Aid Juniors are sponsoring a fashion show and dance as their annual benefit this evening at the Hotel Sherman. Members themselves will model in the fashion show. Proceeds will go to charity. Miss Bette Ruth Levin and Miss Elayne Osherman are chairmen. Miss Ida Eisenstein is president.

The Gail-Marks Memorial Foundation will present Rest Haven Convalescent home with complete dental equipment at a ceremony at 2 o'clock today at the home, 1919 Prairie avenue. Herman T. Gail is president of the foundation, and Mrs. Sam Mandel is chairman of the social service committee.

The Metropolitan district of Hadassah will present Dorothy Crost and Berenice Jacobson, young Chicago duo-pianists, in concert next Sunday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club theater. Proceeds will go to the Youth Aliyah movement to settle Jewish children from Central Europe in Palestine. Miss Beatrice Feingold and Miss Reva Ganansky are in charge of the program and ticket sales. Miss Ruth Dennen is president.

• • •

The eighteen auxiliaries which maintain the Daughters of Zion Infant Home and Day Nursery will celebrate the home's 25th anniversary with a bazar next week. The event will open Saturday evening and will continue through Sunday, March 26, at the home, 2754 Hirsch boulevard.

Mrs. Charna Rieger.

Fifty-two boys and girls from the ages of ten days to six years are cared for at the home at one time and, in addition, there is a day nursery which is attended by some 25 children a day. Since many of the children need only temporary care while a family adjustment is being made, the home actually shelters hundreds of children each year.

Each auxiliary is running a booth at the bazar. Mrs. Charna Rieger, founder of the home, will have one of her own at which articles from Palestine will be on sale. Mrs. Rieger headed the home until 1927. Her successor, Mrs. Edwin Romberg, who still is president, is working on arrangements for the bazar with Mrs. Sylvia Grossman, chairman. Mrs. Jane Shaffer, co-chairman, and auxiliary presidents.

• • •

Saturday evening, April 1, has been selected by the Mothers' Service club of the Chicago Maternity Center as the date for its annual spring jamboree dinner-dance at the Standard club. Mrs. Albert Lindauer is general chairman.

The annual fish dinner of the Lechem Loanien Ladies Aid society will be held this evening at the Douglas Park auditorium. Rabbi Abraham Elman will speak, and Robert Kohn will be toastmaster. Mrs. Anna Harris is president.

Matched and Blended Tones Assure Beauty

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large room seem smaller and a small, difficult-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

One of the most interesting displays we saw at the winter furniture show was a group of related pieces for the living room, designed for the young home planner. Nowadays most young married people start their first home in rooms that are not large. It is often a problem to find furniture that is comfortable and at the same time not bulky, for massive chairs and a couch will dwarf the size of even a large interior.

Another puzzler for young people who are their own interior decorators is that of blending colors in upholsteries so that a pleasing harmony will result. And of course, still another item is to keep the cost of furnishings within the budget.

With all these things in mind the manufacturer whose furniture we saw has brought out this new line, designing it in charming but simple 18th century style, building it for comfort, but scaling it down so that it will fit neatly into a small apartment or house. And more than that, he has supplied a number of upholstery fabrics: ribbed mohairs, striped velvets, damasks, tapestries, reps, brocades, and handsome figured linens that have all been selected to go together. The young planner has the burden of matching and contrasting lifted from his shoulders.

• • •

Eleven colors are found in this symphony of harmonizing tones. Of course, you don't choose all eleven. You select ones that you like best—probably three, or at most four. But you're sure when you do your choosing that the intensity of a blue, for instance, will not be so much stronger than a rose or coral as to spoil the effect of the latter.

When a couch is displayed, in this grouping, the nearby barrel back or lounge chair will repeat one of the colors found in the upholstery design. If the couch covering has a design of flowers, for example, the chair may be striped in two of their tones. Monotony is avoided without sacrificing color harmony.

Following are some of the colors used: field green, rose, pistachio, eggshell, turquoise, amber, plum, blue, mauve, gold, and mocha. Top grain leathers in all these colors are also available.

• • •

The photograph today shows a living room furnished with this planned to go together furniture. The chair is large enough to be thoroughly comfortable even for a big person, yet it is not massive. The couch, too, has long, slender lines. The frames of these pieces are of mahogany. The seat cushions have both a spring and a down filling. The springs assure a trim shape, one that does not have to be fluffed up by hand constantly, and the down makes for softness.

The good looking little coffee table is a copy of an 18th century English butler's tray. And notice that the couch side table was made at exactly the right height.

[Willming Photo.]

These pieces are part of a large family made especially to be used together and upholstered in fabrics that afford a choice of eleven colors, all planned to blend or contrast, all keyed properly and all harmonious.

Correct Glass Curtains.

When selecting glass curtains or buying material to make them, allow in length enough to reach down to the top of the baseboard and sufficient fullness to equal two widths of the window. For an informal room, scrim, marquisette or cotton crash is suitable; for a formal room, sheer voile, rayon or net.

Chicago Dietetic Association Will Meet at Dinner

Former presidents of the Chicago Dietetic association will address the organization's twenty-third annual dinner meeting Wednesday evening in the west ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The Harcourt trio will give a musical program. Speakers at meetings during the last year will be special guests.

Among former presidents who will speak are Miss Ann Boller of the national live stock and meat board; Miss Elizabeth Tuft, head dietitian of Wesley Memorial hospital; Miss Millie Kalsen, head of the food service department at Cook County hospital; Miss Margaret Cowden, head dietitian at Michael Reese hospital, and Miss Lida Jamison of the Chicago Detetic Supply house.

Miss Sue Head, dietitian at Michael Reese hospital, who recently was re-elected president of the association, will conduct the meeting. Miss Leila Colwell of the Evanston hospital is chairman in charge of arrangements.

Milady's Hat Bill.

American women will spend 200 million dollars for a hundred million hats this year, it is estimated.

"This is what gives you a slim waist, Mother—'Sta-Up-Top'!"
"And it's so comfortable, too!"
(Pat. No. 2,136,742)
Daughter knows that Fashion's highlight today is the slender waist. And she has found that "Sta-Up-Top" Le Gant hugs and slims her waist like an extra set of muscles! There are girdles and pantie-girdles, many with "TwoWay-OneWay" for back hip flatness. Like all Le Gants, "Sta-Up-Top" is the corset that's different, because it has the comfort of elastic with the control of cloth.
Both wear A'lure, the s-t-r-e-t-c-h-a-b-l-e bra with "Sta-Up-Band" $3.50. Other A'lures for all figures $1.50 to $5.
"Sta-Up-Top" and other Le Gants—$5 to $35

Two Patriotic Societies Will Have Meetings

Two of the state's largest patriotic organizations are meeting this week, the Illinois American Legion auxiliary Thursday at the Hotel Sherman, and the Daughters of the American Revolution on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Danville, Ill. The Legion auxiliary's meeting is its annual patriotic conference; the Daughters', their annual state conference.

[Daguerre Photo.]

A contest for the office of state regent will loom large on the prospectus of the Daughters' conference. Mrs. Charles William Pflager of Evanston and Miss Helen McMackin of Salem both have been nominated for this office to succeed Mrs. Jacob Fredrich Zimmerman of Harvey.

• • •

Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr. of Annapolis, Md., president general of the national organization, will arrive in time to attend the entire conference and to conduct a round table discussion Thursday morning. Wednesday evening good citizen pilgrims past and present and their parents are invited to a meeting at the Masonic temple, where the Danville Masonic players will present "The Framing of the Constitution." These pilgrims are the outstanding high school girls who each spring visit Washington, D. C., as guests of the D. A. R.

A tea Thursday afternoon at the late "Uncle" Joe Cannon's home with his granddaughter, Mrs. Russell Abdill, as hostess, and a state dinner Thursday evening are other conference events of special interest.

Both Mrs. Pflager and Miss McMackin are particularly well qualified for the office of state regent by reason of long service to the organization. Both have been regents of their chapters and have held high state offices. Mrs. Pflager also has been national vice chairman of the Ellis Island and Americanism committees and a member of national house and resolutions committees. Her chapter is the Kaskaskia.

• • •

Mrs. David J. Peffers of Aurora is to be proposed for the office of vice president general of the national society at its forty-eighth continental congress in April. She is a former state regent who has served the Illinois society in many capacities for twenty years. Mrs. Peffers also is state regent of the Daughters of American Colonists.

Other candidates are Mrs. Edward Lyman Cornell, De Walt Mechlin chapter, Chicago, state chaplain; Mrs. George Edwin Harbert, Park Ridge chapter, state historian; Mrs. Manfred E. Cox, Springfield, state recording secretary; Mrs. George Conrad Gumbart, Farmington, state registrar.

Mrs. James Morris of Bismarck, N. D., national president of the American Legion auxiliary, will be a guest at the patriotic conference Thursday afternoon. Patterned after the recent patriotic conference in Washington, D. C., the program will emphasize national defense and Americanism. A dinner for Mrs. Morris will conclude the meeting.

• • •

Among those who will address delegates from the auxiliary's 590 state units will be Mrs. Myron Miller of Anthony, Kas., national chairman of national defense; Maj. L. N. Bittinger, senior vice commander of the Illinois American Legion; Leonard J. Applequist, past department commander of Illinois; Robert Clement, governor of boys' state; heads of fifteen Illinois patriotic organizations, and leaders of the army and navy.

Mrs. George Heckenkamp of Quincy, president of the Illinois auxiliary, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. Myron Omlie, president of the Cook county council, is in charge of the dinner. Arrangements for the meeting have been made by Mrs. George Cassidy, first vice president of the Illinois auxiliary, and Mrs. John Shimkus of Westville, state Americanism chairman.

Junior Yacht Owners Wait Miami Regatta

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. Even the annual Miami Beach regatta, the oldest American yachting event, takes second place when the children here announce their annual regatta. This year it will be held in the Roney Plaza pool, and boats in seven events will compete for prizes worth a king's ransom to contestants.

Rules quite as strict as those governing events of older sailors are strictly enforced. For instance, no boat may be entered whose overall length exceeds 24 inches and they may not be less than 12 inches.

A number of Chicago children will compete. Earliest entries include Ronnie and Joy Golan, children of the L. E. Golans, and Donald and Joan Albin, children of the J. A. Albins. Casualties which always attend the event furnish much more pleasure to adult spectators than the youthful owners. This year alcohol powered boats will be admitted in a recently added classification.

Chicago's Mayor Kelly and Leonard Florsheim who came to Miami to participate with more than 3,000 persons in the unveiling of a memorial to former Mayor Cermak, arrived in time to attend the closing day at Hialeah Park and to watch from the box of the Warren Wrights. Others in the Wright box were Mrs. Kelly, the Charles McCullochs, the Britton I. Budds of Chicago, and the Byron Foys, who came down from Palm Beach for the day.

Most of the Chicagoans who came on the special train returned Thursday and many prominent citizens were in the group, but thirty or forty of the 172 who arrived last Sunday made up a cruise party to spend a few days in Havana and other Cuban cities, planning a stay of several weeks in Miami before going north.

• • •

Opening of Tropical Park on Monday found many vacationists entertaining friends at luncheon in the clubhouse. Mrs. Theresa Whipper of Chicago was in the party entertained by the E. E. Kimballs of Vineland, N. J. Mrs. Harry J. Bosworth was a luncheon guest of the Benjamin O'Sheas of New Rochelle in a party of eight, watching the races following the luncheon. Mrs. E. M. Meder was hostess at luncheon with Mrs. John B. Ortland of Evanston, and the Harry L. Vaughans and Mrs. Carl Stuckrath, all of Chicago in her party. Charles A. McCulloch, chairman of Arlington Park's board, entertained his house guest, Britton I. Budd, a member of the board at luncheon and later in his box.

Ralph J. Mills of Chicago caught a fish. All fishermen in southeastern Florida acknowledge that it was a fish. It was the fourth largest white marlin ever taken in United States costal waters. It weighed 141 pounds, which not only tops the Miami municipal tournament, but leaves a margin of 23 pounds. It only took Mr. Mills an hour and a half to boat his prize.

Mrs. Gertrude Schneider, Chicago, caught her first sail fish during the week. In the same party were Miss Betty Harbison, Evanston, and Ernest J. Leclaire, Oak Park. Betty Harbison caught a sail fish and Mr. Leclaire a 48 pound king fish.

The Patrician club party, an annual event, was held at the new club house Tuesday night and found the Fred D. Breits, who are busy renewing friendships here, the Fred Snites, the Peter T. Potts and a lot of other Chicagoans attending.

• • •

The second hospital charity ball, sponsored by the Indian Creek, the Bath and Surf clubs and the Committee of One Hundred, staged at the Indian Creek club Thursday night, undeniably was the outstanding party of the week. Mrs. Arthur Eugene Chapman of Chicago, house guest of the Walter J. Merrills of Golden Beach, shared honors Wednesday with the Edwin McCullochs who are visiting the Edwin Raynors, at a cocktail party given by the Merrills at their home.

The Theodore Garys spent the week-end on a cruiser to Angel Fish creek and among the keys on the Alberto Santos yacht, Jane.

Clubs to Hear Views of the Spanish Crisis

With the Spanish civil war at a crucial stage, Chicago audiences this week will find particularly interesting two informed points of view on the Spanish situation. Charles J. Ewald, who recently returned after directing relief work for the American Friends' committee on the Nationalist side, will give his impressions of the civil war before the Chicago College club at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the clubhouse, 196 East Delaware place.

Because of his knowledge of the Spanish language Mr. Ewald was able to study the plans of Franco's divided followers. He and Mrs. Ewald will be guests of the club at luncheon. Hostesses will be Mrs. R. O. Johnson, Mrs. John Garfield Jordan, and Mrs. Nathan William MacChesney.

Irving Pflaum, for two years head correspondent for the United Press in Spain, will describe "The Present Situation in Spain in its Relation to the World Picture" at a luncheon Friday at the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue.

• • •

Another interesting lecture in store for the Chicago College club is Diego José Fallon's on "Progress and Development in Colombia in Recent Years" on Friday evening. Mr. Fallon is consul general of Colombia in Chicago. A dinner and motion pictures of South America will precede his talk. Gen. and Mrs. Nathan William MacChesney, Miss Mabel J. Shapcott, and members of the travel and "issues of the day" groups will be hosts.

"Ladies, Women and Controversial Subjects" is the intriguing title Miss Mary Gilson has chosen for her talk at 3 o'clock tomorrow at the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue. This is one of two interesting talks scheduled for the club this week. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Walter F. Heineman, new member of the board of education, will discuss "What the Chicago Schools are Doing to Train for Citizenship."

Miss Mary Gilson.

Miss Gilson, member of the department of economics at the University of Chicago, at one time or another in her varied career has worked as a salesgirl behind the counter in Boston, vocational counselor at a girls' trade school, employment manager in a men's clothing factory, has studied labor conditions on Hawaii sugar plantations, and British unemployment, established employment departments in munitions plants during the war, worked in the international Labor Union at Geneva, Switzerland, and organized a plan of employment for textile mills in New England and the south.

• • •

Members of the American Association of University Women themselves will present a program, "Women in Education," at the association's luncheon meeting Saturday at the Chicago Woman's club. Miss Josephine T. Allin will speak on "Women as Elementary School Principals"; Miss Elizabeth B. Oakes on "Women as High School Deans"; Miss Eloise R. Tremain on "Women as School Heads." Miss Shirley Farr will lead the discussion. Miss Vesta Condon will conduct a study group on recent books at 4 o'clock Wednesday at the club.

Members also will give a program, "My Employer and My Employés," when the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago meets at 6 o'clock tomorrow at the Chicago Woman's club. This theme has been proposed by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, and will offer for discussion questions such as: "How much do I know about my employer's problems?," "How does my employer compare with other employers?," "How much responsibility do I feel for my employés?"

Speakers will be Mrs. Margaret Hewitt, director of the Hewitt School for Continued Education; Miss Dorothy P. Hummel, assistant secretary of the American League of Professional Baseball Clubs, and Miss Mary A. Kennedy, personnel director of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

• • •

Pi Omicron national sorority will sponsor a benefit lecture on European conditions Tuesday evening at the Art institute in order to raise money for its educational and philanthropic activities. Miss Maye Glessner, state corresponding secretary, is in charge. The Pi Omicron glee club will sing under Margaret Lester's direction.

The Central Eleanor club will sponsor an illustrated talk by Sam Campbell, "Philospher of the Forest," for the benefit of the Eleanor league Friday evening at headquarters, 16 North Wabash avenue.

"Poetry in Prose, or Old Books in Spring Clothes," will be the title of Mrs. Richard H. Clinton's talk at another benefit meeting, a fellowship luncheon of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Milk Foundation's Colonial Club theater, 75 East Wacker drive. Mrs. Silvester Schiele is president of the department.

• • •

Another talk on international affairs will be given by Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, before the Women of the Rotary Club of Chicago at a luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Hotel Sherman. A nominating committee will be chosen. Mrs. C. N. Cahill is president.

Radio artists will be presented before the Chicago Woman's Ideal club Thursday at the Blackstone hotel. Harold Isbell of station W-G-N and Florence Keena of the Chicago Conservatory of Music will appear on the morning program. Adele Brandt, contralto, and J. Parnell Egan, tenor, will give the afternoon program.

WILL BE WED IN AUGUST

Miss Ruth Renata Bell, whose engagement to Donald Raymond Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Horn of La Grange, has been announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Bell, of 2956 West 63d street. Both Miss Bell and Mr. Horn were graduated from Northwestern university. The wedding will take place in August.

Music Educators' Club to Present Cantata and Mass

The In-and-About Chicago Music Educators' club will present the cantata, "Dona Nobis Pacem" and the G-Minor Mass, both by Ralph Vaughan Williams, at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Blue room of the Auditorium hotel. A chorus and orchestra composed of club members will give the cantata, with Miss May Strong and Roy Schussler as soloists. The Northwestern university a capella choir will sing the Mass and other compositions under Max Krone's direction. This program is presented as the culmination of the vocal and instrumental clinics which the club has sponsored this season. Mrs. Avis Schreiber, district supervisor of music in the Chicago public schools, is president.

Linoleum Soap.

Whether the linoleum on your kitchen is expensive inlaid or an inexpensive printed oilcloth, bland soap and warm water are the best cleaning agents. Avoid using harsh soaps and powders that will dull the surface and destroy the pattern. Use water rather sparingly, too, since seepage between the joints causes the linoleum to loosen and the backing to rot. The life of inlaid linoleum is lengthened by frequent treatments of a good floor wax, well rubbed down. Inexpensive printed linoleums last longer if given a coat of colorless varnish when they are very new.

Visitor Finds Madeira Isle of Real Beauty

By Frederic Babcock.

FUNCHAL, Madeira.—One of the best descriptions—to our way of thinking, at least—of the universal desire to travel was given by that young fellow in Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon." You may recall it: "When I was a kid I knew the world was over beyond those hills, and I used to wonder what the world was like, and try to form a picture of it in my mind. And I promised myself that some day I'd find out what it was all about. I came to believe that all the wonders of the world were on the other side of those hills.

"Sometimes—I suppose you would call it self-hypnosis—I could actually hear them calling to me in soft whispers. They sang their songs to me, songs that told of all the marvelous things they had in their homes on the other side of the hills. The wonder which makes everything else in the world seem sordid and pitifully selfish by comparison. Now I can hear the old voices calling me, and this time I'm going. It isn't the end; it's the beginning of life, and everything I've always wanted, and everything worth while."

The young man should have come to Madeira. Here he would have found those voices calling, not in soft whispers, but in strident overtones. For this is one of the earth's closest approaches to Elysium. It is the epitome of those blessed isles that the ancients used to sing about. O'Neill's hero would have been perfectly satisfied to begin life all over again here.

• • •

No matter what the calendar may say, it's always springtime in Madeira. Bougainvillea, poinsettia, begonia, heliotrope, and bird of paradise make it an endless garden. Mountains terrace upward from the blue sea. Life moves along at a pace no more hurried than when Columbus lived here and laid his plans to sail westward into the unknown.

Ever been tobogganing when the mercury was hitting it up at 70 degrees? Come to Funchal, board the car in front of the fussy little engine that snorts and pants its way up the mountainside to Terreiro da Lucta, and there begin your four mile slide back to earth again. As most travelers know by this time, the descent from the 3,280 foot elevation is made in wicker chairs on steel shod runners, with strong armed natives providing the brakes and with slippery cobblestones doing the rest. After that, there's a jaunt through the blue, pink, and white toy town of Funchal, with bullocks, and sometimes mules, taking you on another snowless sleigh ride.

The Madeirans dress like comic opera bandits, but, like the stage folk, they are only playing. Of Portuguese origin, they practice no banditry except that encountered wherever the tourist dollar is to be had. It's true that some of them do an unmerciful amount of begging, and there is even a story to the effect that children have been intentionally crippled at birth here in order to gain the attention and sympathy of visitors; but, after all, these conditions are to be expected in lands where the people look upon Americans as easy and wealthy prey.

• • •

When we were here three years ago a cloud was sitting on top of Terreiro da Lucta, so that the view was far from satisfactory. This time the peak was again shrouded, but just as we were starting downward the fog lifted, and before us was spread a panorama such as we'd never seen before. Below lay the toy town. Beyond it was an enchanted expanse of silver. It was impossible to determine where the sea left off and the sky began.

We were to sail at dusk. Tiny lamps were beginning to light up the town; a lone string of them was tossing itself up the mountain. Madeira was about to slip away from us like a tinted dream.

Vacationists who can't decide whether to go to Florida, the gulf coast, Texas, Arizona or California will now have the opportunity to test the claims of "perfect vacationland" of each of these sections of the country. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway Travel bureau announced recently that it will institute a new and unusual service to travelers—the opportunity to visit all these places during the same trip. The announcement pointed out that many vacationists desire to see the most and the best and that their choice is no longer limited to a few spots. The giant circle trips, to include the southeast, south, southwest and west, will go into effect April 1, offering unusually low fares for both the traveler who prefers Pullman cars and for the user of coaches.

Gay Pasadena Turns Out for 2 Turf Parties

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Tomorrow's charity race will close the season at Santa Anita and one well may take time out to sit down and remember what has happened during the last fortnight. Cocktail parties and dinners have followed each day's racing. And then to top it all off, the two big social events of the racing season, the Huntington handicap ball, which ushered in March as a social lion, and the Turf club's ball at the Biltmore Saturday night after the big Santa Anita handicap.

At the Huntington party every one was costumed as a turf favorite and the entertainers [hotel guests, too] reversed the usual order in the playlet, "Three Horses on a Man," in which the horses talked about their owners and bet on them in a track race.

Mrs. Ral Parr, as Orientalist, won first prize for the most beautiful costume, that of a Balinese dancer. The judges included Mrs. J. Howard Johnson of Chicago and George Marcy of Chicago and Pasadena. Others were George M. Holley of Grosse Point and Samuel Hinds of Pasadena.

• • •

The Marcys had a table of young friends for whom they provided colorful jocky blouses and caps. The William W. Lakes and the Harlan Eldreds were among the Chicagoans represented and later the Hallett Thornes and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews joined the party.

Among the Ral Parrs' guests were Mrs. Iris Masters Rogers of Chicago and the Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, the Lionel Atwills, Princess Pignatelli, the Walter Mains, formerly of Chicago, the Basil Rathbones, A. Atwater Kent, Guy Charrington, and Alfredo Zanchino.

Another film celebrity, Joe E. Brown [wearing a string of sleigh bells around his neck to represent "Lovely Bells"], and Mrs. Brown were guests in the party of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Howard, owners of Seabiscuit, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward S Moore of the Circle M ranch, who entertained jointly. The Eric Pedleys and Tom Braggs were also in that party.

George Reis, star of the show in the rôle of "War Admiral," entertained with Mrs. Reis, the Stephens MacIvers [Mr. MacIver cleverly impersonated "Malicious," having written his own lines], the Robert Finkbines, the Walter E. Boeings, the Byron McNultys, and the Paul Hunters [Betty Hixon], among others.

Mrs. Ferris White of Chicago was a guest of the John Bundbyes. The Albert Bailey Potters were in the same party.

The Armin Brands of Chicago had as their guests the Walden Shaws, who now make their home here; Mrs. C. G. Rehm of Chicago, sister of Mrs. Brand, and the Edward Hurleys of Chicago, who are visiting the Shaws.

The J. Howard Johnsons were guests of the William L. Van Wagenens of Pelham Manor, N. Y. In the party of Mrs. William B. Stewart of Toledo were Mrs. A. W. Cutten and the John Grassells.

The C. Herbert Porters had in their party the E. W. Tiegles of Chicago and the Howard T. Abbotts, together with many others. Mrs. Orin Clifton and Mrs. George Macdonald were other Chicagoans spotted in the crowd that filled the ballroom, where caricatured steeds looked down from the walls from horseshoe frames.

• • •

The Turf club, on the contrary, went ultra-formal. The usual descent by winding stairs into the Biltmore bowl was closed off and guests entered from the entertainers' tunnel and mounted a short flight of stairs to enter a spring paradise. Pink peach trees flowered in the four corners. Gardenias and lilies gave off heavy fragrance. Camellias and orchids bloomed lavishly. The flowers were springing from tables and garlanding every possible spot.

Only members of the Turf club and their guests, names of whom had to be submitted for approval long before the event, were admitted to the affair. "Invitations" to the members [at $20 a plate] were large, engraved folders with several engraved enclosures.

Even champagne was on the "house" and breakfast was served early in the morning to top off the big function of the year.

The Norman MacLeods of Pasadena were among those entertaining. They had with them the Herbert Hendersons of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago were among the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Strub. Others in the list of attendants were the Robert W. Campbells. The A. D. Plamondons and Townsend Netcher of Chicago were in the party of Hal Roach, Turf club president. In the same group were the Alfred Vanderbilts and the John Hay Whitneys.

Hundreds Hunt a Lost Mine in Arizona Desert

By Lolita Quinn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

There's a gold mine in Superstition mountains. And last Sunday, hundreds of winter visitors to Arizona went out to find it. The annual trek given by the Dons club of Phoenix was unique among gold rushes. The searchers for gold seemed to find all they are looking for in the spooky legends of the "Lost Dutchman mine"—There are men in Phoenix today who claim they saw bags of gold taken from the mine. In their beautiful mountain camp, the dons and their lovely donnas created a day of unusual entertainment and unequalled hospitality—with the brooding Superstitions as hosts.

House building is a favorite vocation of Chicagoans who have found Arcadia, the beautiful desert country around Phoenix. Just now hardware is the major concern of Mrs. James Troxel of Highland Park who is living this winter in a house near Arcadia Lodge, and building a desert home into which she hopes to move by late April. Mrs. Troxel has spent four winters in Arizona, two of them at the Johake Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher G. Simpson, who spent their summers at Duneland beach, Michigan City, Ind., bought and remodeled a house in Arcadia this fall. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Louis, who came to Camelback inn in its first year, now have a desert home. Visiting them this coming week are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor of Glencoe, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dobson of Minneapolis. Mrs. Louis' mother, Mrs. Herbert Johnson of Racine, Wis., will join them on Saturday.

• • •

The flowers, which bloom on the Arizona desert, and the gardeners who nurse them, deserve a whole story in themselves; but just now there is a new blooming, and the African lilies and sweet peas which are putting on a good show are finding some serious rivalry in the costumes of the ladies seen hereabouts. Over at the Jokake inn last Sunday, summer apparently had arrived with a blooming of pastel shades and cartwheel hats. While, over at the San Marcos, chiffons and laces provide the perfect accompaniment for the full moon which has been favoring us for the last few evenings.

New arrivals at the Jokake inn are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burgess of Glencoe. Mrs. John Le Laittre and Mrs. H. H. Erminger are spending some time at the inn with their friend, Mrs. R. Winfield Ellis. Walter H. Johnson arrived Tuesday to join Mrs. Johnson and their daughter, Shirley Anne. They will stay at Jokake until May 1. Teddy Schneider, for many years accompanist of John McCormack, gave a concert at the inn Sunday evening. Mr. Schneider is spending the winter at Jokake. Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Evans, owners and managers of Jokake—are not expected to spend much of their time in Chicago from now on, for they are building a summer ranch up in the pine forests of Greer, Ariz.

• • •

The guest ranches of Arizona are as varied as the scenery. Beaver Creek ranch at Rimrock is set down among the high and colorful walls of Beaver Creek canyon. Visiting there at present are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenks Stuart of New York and Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Bland Runyon and their tiny son, Jonathan. Mr. and Mrs. William Williams of La Grange expect to stop at the ranch on their return from Honolulu.

Quite in contrast to Beaver Creek is Vah-Kilcnn at Coolidge, a little desert resort which we found on our way to Tucson. Vah-Ki is on property which adjoins the Casa Grande ruins, and tiis a haven for those who love to dig, including many an archeologist from the University of Chicago. We are no good at digging, but at Vah-Ki we did find treasure in a line drawing by Charles Crawford, a full blooded Pima Indian. Mrs. Walter C. Smith, the charming mistress of Vah-Ki tells us that Charles is so lame that his father brings the drawings to her to see; but with his pen, Charles apparently knows no limitations. His work has tremendous action, and great simplicity.

For the annual Gold Diggers' ball at the Camelback Inn, guests were warned "no Sunday-go-to-meetin' duds, park yore shootin' irons outside, no horses or burros allowed on dance floor." As a matter of fact, Snowball, the Camelback burro, not only made the dance floor sitting down but had his picture taken signing the guest register. Chicagoans may not know much about gold dinning on their home territory, but when they come to Camelback inn, and particularly when they join the grand parade of the Gold Diggers ball, they take on all the color of the old west.

The "Indian squaw" who never changed her expression all evening, and carried away first prize was Mrs. A. F. Gartz Jr. Miss Mary Louise Corley came as a cigar store Indian, squired about by an oldtime western sherif, Edmund Eppig of Wilmette. Mrs. Margaret Eppig and her daughter Rita were decidedly coquettish in hoop skirts and bonnets. Allison Armour II., was a courtly Spanish don to Mrs. Armour's Mae West. Somehow, one heard overtones of the St. Louis blues when Mrs. William A. Whittier of Kennilworth strolled in as Sadie Thompson. Appropriately enough in a world of Sadie Thompsons and tough gold diggers, Mrs. Frederic D. Chamberlain of Lakeside, Mich., appeared as a Salvation Army lassie. Very charming Mrs. Chamberlain looked, dancing demurely with Mr. Chamberlain rigged out as a French chef in the wild west.

But the great impersonation of the ball was that of the owner of the inn, John C. Lincoln of Cleveland, O., who came as Abraham Lincoln, with Mrs. Lincoln as Ann Hathaway. Amid all the hilarity, there was a feeling of awe at the striking resemblance of Mr. Lincoln to his distinguished relative.

Recent arrivals at Camelback are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice H. Karker of Barrington and their daughter Mrs. Paul Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Dutton of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hock of Oak Park. Spending the winter at the inn are Mr. and Mrs. Wilder A. Pickard of Evanston. Mrs. Pickard is president of the Garden Club of Evanston. Alastair Valentine of Riverside is visiting his sisters, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and Miss Margaret Valentine, and brother-in-law, Patrick A. Valentine.

Women's Unit of Mining Engineers' Institute to Meet

A luncheon at Kungsholm restaurant, 631 Rush street, next Friday will bring together members of the woman's auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Chicago section. Wives, sisters, and mothers of members of the institute are invited to join the auxiliary. A benefit card party, a dinner dance, and monthly luncheons and programs are on the auxiliary's calendar each year.

Members take turns giving luncheons, and proceeds of these parties, and of the annual card party, together with dues, go to a scholarship fund. This fund is to help young men who wish to study mining or metallurgical engineering. Mrs. J. R. Van Pelt recently was elected chairman of the auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. Donald Colwell.

Balsam Smells.

They call it a jug, since it is shaped like one, but it is really a little pillow, and might be used for one. And very restfully, too, as it is filled with delightful, pungent balsam, bringing the Maine woods to you. It is, however, designed to be hung in your car by its handle, and make the interior aromatic as you ride along.

Chicago's Star Shines Brightly at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Chicago's star shone with a bright and particular radiance this last week in Palm Beach. A lecture at the Four Arts by Daniel Catton Rich, director of the Art Institute of Chicago, left this resort worshiping at the shrine of modern art. On Saturday afternoon the wedding of Miss Veronese Beatty and Melville C. Branch Jr. of Richmond, Va., was solemnized at the ocean front home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross James Beatty of Highland Park.

One of the most distinguished Palm Beach audiences ever to greet a speaker was at the Four Arts on Friday to hear Mr. Rich's lecture on modern art. There were, to mention a few, Jules Bache, world famous art connoisseur and collector; Dr. Frank Gair Macomber, venerable curator of the Boston museum, and gracious Mrs. John Elliott, daughter of Julia Ward Howe, upon whose shoulders her 85 years rest as lightly as the folds of her lace mantilla. All of the art minded members of the Chicago colony also were in attendance. The lecture was sponsored by the Palm Beach committee of the Museum of Modern Art of New York City, of which Mrs. Charles Chadwick is chairman. Accompanying Mr. Rich to Palm Beach was Charles H. Worcester, chairman of the board of directors of the Art Institute of Chicago. Both Mr. Rich and Mr. Worcester were house guests of Mrs. Chadwick during their stay here.

• • •

The living room of Casa Degna, the Beatty home, was decorated with pink and white carnations, gladioli, and smilax for the wedding of Miss Beatty and Mr. Branch. The couple stood before an improvised altar of blossoms and greenery. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Tagge Tiesen, pastor of Bethesda-by-the-Sea Episcopal church. The bride wore a pink net dress, with full skirt and tight bodice. Her veil was pale pink and she also wore a headdress of rose point lace, which had belonged to her grandmother. She carried a trailing bouquet of white roses and pink bouvardia.

Miss Elizabeth Dunscomb of Memphis, Tenn., maid of honor, wore a floor length frock in chartreuse with shirt waist top, and small feather hat. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty Jr. and Mrs. John T. Beatty, wore frocks and hats in similar style but in aquamarine. Mrs. Beatty, mother of the bride, wore yellow chiffon. Ushers were Ross James Beatty Jr., John T. Beatty, John Green Hayes, and Read and Patterson Branch.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Branch left for a tropical honeymoon and will return for a visit in Palm Beach before going to Washington, D. C., to make their home.

• • •

Miss Elinor Chapman is the guest of her mother, Mrs. John A. Chapman, and is enjoying golf on the superlative greens in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Thomas Bloodgood Peck of New York gave the last in a series of French lectures last Monday at the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Chicago. Tuesday night Mrs. Cudahy entertained with a small dinner in honor of Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross, who is the guest of Mrs. E. Hope G. Slater of Washington and Newport. Mrs. Cudahy and Miss Boardman are old friends.

Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans gave a dinner Wednesday night at the Beach club and also entertained a party at the Everglades tombola luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. McKay Leroy was also among the Chicagoans entertaining at the tombola.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper have as their guests at their Pendleton avenue home Mr. and Mrs. Victor Spoehr of Glencoe, Ill.

Mrs. Orson Welles, formerly of Chicago, recently spent a few days here at the Breakers.

Organizations Are Planning Ahead to Festival Luncheon

Already organizations in Chicago and nearby communities are reserving tables for the third Chicagoland Music Festival luncheon, which will be held Friday noon, Aug. 18, in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

A suggestion that each club appoint a representative to handle reservations has been made by Philip Maxwell, director of the festival and chairman of the luncheon arrangements. Last year every available seat for the luncheon was taken, and early reservations are advised for those who do not want to miss the luncheon this year. The charge again will be $1.50 per person.

This will be the tenth annual Chicagoland festival, and more than 100,000 persons are expected to attend the entertainment in Soldiers' field.

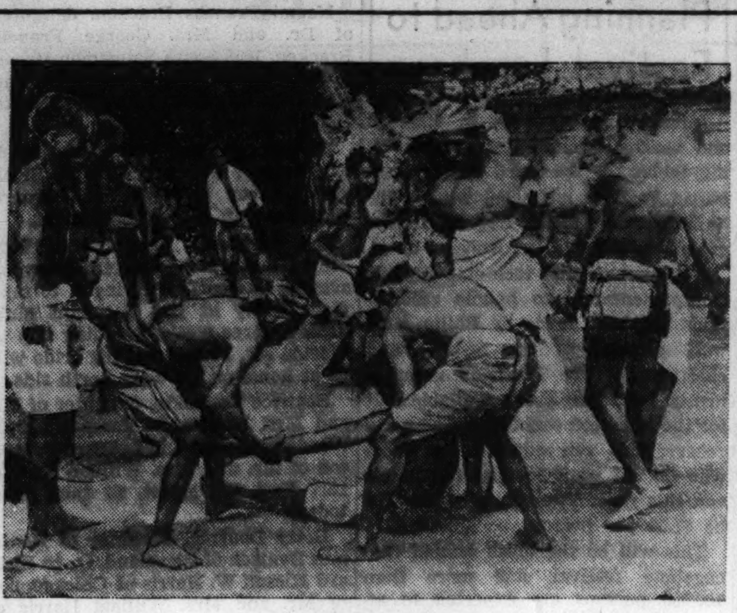
TOURS—CRUISES

All Play and No Work for Men of Bali

By Mason Warner.

A friendly but critical reader wrote to advise me: "I note while looking over my scrapbook that you are like all travel correspondents who visit Bali. Why didn't you tell about the men as well as the women of that beautiful island?" It seemed a good suggestion; so I searched my notebook for jottings not used in previous letters to THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Here they are:



[Black Star Photo.]

Doing the dagger dance in Bali, with one of the dancers being disarmed to prevent self-injury.

The most recent census shows that women outnumber the men of Bali by almost three to one, and apparently that disproportion has persisted for a thousand years.

Under the circumstances, there is a scarcity premium for men, while women pay a penalty for being around in such surplus numbers that the supply is greater than the demand.

• • •

Polygamy is one result of this condition, and most Balinese men have two or more wives. Marriage is arranged by purchase. The suitor sees a girl he likes, and, after an appropriate and ceremonious approach, he opens negotiations with her father.

In middle class circles the price agreed upon for the bride varies from 20 to 100 Dutch guilders, the equivalent of $10 to $50. It is sometimes paid in cattle in lieu of cash. In the higher classes as much as $500 may be paid for a girl having beauty, grace, and accomplishments.

Some Balinese youths are canny, and do not seek beauty alone in a prospective bride. In addition to the drudgery of her household tasks and labor in the rice fields, the wife must care for the children, handle all the business affairs of the family, do all the marketing, both buying and selling.

To the woman falls also the duty of religious observance for her entire family. In fact, that is the most important of all wifely duties. She must provide the daily sacrifice of fruits and flowers at the altars of the gods in her home and at the temples.

• • •

So, industry, skill in trading, and religious fervor that will keep the husband in good standing with the many gods are feminine attributes that go far in attracting a husband on the enchanted isle.

If a wife is industrious and thrifty, she can readily save enough to enable her husband to buy wife No. 2, and so on.

I was introduced to a Balinese man near Den Pasar—the largest city on the island — who has accumulated seven wives. However, he has lost some of the wisdom of his youth, for the latest additions to his harem are noted for their beauty, not for their industry. He spends most of his time and all of his money at the cockfights, the national and fanatically popular sport of Balinese men, who are as devoted to it as the women are to the temples.

• • •

The men do not perform more than thirty days' labor a year. The work of constructing rice terraces, building houses and walls for the village, and a portion of the heavy work in rice planting and harvesting are all that falls to their lot, while the women appear to be working or worshiping from dawn to dark.

The crowded native villages are surrounded by abode walls three to eight feet high. These walls are erected to keep evil spirits from entering the village. The Balinese are pathetically superstitious, and believe all sorts of malevolent gods, evil spirits, ghosts, witches, and hobgoblins are all around them.

The religion of the people is a blend of the ancient Balinese belief, rites, and ceremonies, upon which has been superimposed Hindu faith and worship. Innumerable old Balinese gods survive, and to these are added the countless gods of Hinduism.

It is a land of temples. Even the smallest village has at least three, and large ones have ten or more. Temples and sacred shrines, many with strange and intricate carvings in stone and wood, are seen along the roads.

The sites of the temples date back hundreds of years, but the buildings are of camparatively recent construction. The climate and the elements compel continuous renewal, and, despite constant care, the temples look old, mildewed, musty, and mangey.

• • •

The Balinese man believes in reincarnation. He faces rather grimly the fate that awaits the return of his soul to another life. Whether he comes back to a happy state of being depends upon the proper ceremony at his cremation, and his wives' observance of his religious duties, as well as his attitude toward the gods of good and evil. He may come back as a toad, or as a dog, if his wives have been neglectful of sacrifices to the gods or temple services.

If all goes well, his soul will ascend to a higher plane. He may be reborn a high priest or a member of the nobility. Anyhow, he will have to live again, and yet again, rising and falling in the scale of happiness in each life, until the final reward of Nirvana is won.

• • •

Having so little work to do, with much idle time on his hands, the man spends many hours in meditating on this life and in contemplation of the hereafter. The result of his consideration of the problems of humanity has led him to the conclusion that women are to blame for most of the ills that befall mankind. They rouse the wrath of the gods by their sins of omission and commission. Therefore, the men have established certain taboos and penalties.

If a woman dies in childbirth, her body is thrown into the nearest ravine, without ceremony. This act indicates the contempt of husband and kin for a woman not competent in what is considered the main duty of her sex.

The birth of a malformed infant indicates that the gods are angry and must be placated. The temples of the village are closed until the rajah can come and reopen them with sacred rites.

• • •

Twin boys bring joy to parents; twin girls are not unwelcome. But woe to the mother who bears twins of opposite sex. The house in which the boy and girl were born is burned. The whole village is under ban. The mother is banished to the cemetery for three moons. Food and water is taken to her, but otherwise she is abhorred.

The father does penance, too. What he suffers, only he knows. He is not allowed to attend a cockfight for a period of nine months.

In my meandering around Bali I kept wondering if the men were happy. If they were, they were successful in concealing their emotions. Those I saw looked forlorn and dreadfully bored with life—as if they did not know whether to go on living or to just quit the whole darn business.

Five Weeks of Music in London

LONDON. — Five weeks of great music are slated for London's spring season. The festival will open April 23 and continue to May 28. Opera, ballet and classical plays will be given, along with orchestral, choral and chamber concerts, and many special events, such as serenade concerts. Participating will be the London Symphony, the London Philharmonic, and the British Broadcasting Corporation symphony. Arturo Toscanini, Bruno Walter, Sir Thomas Beecham, and Sir Henry Wood are among the conductors; Myra Hess, Fritz Kreisler, and many others are among the soloists.

Lost Colony Play to Be Repeated in North Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—"Lost Colony" will enter its third straight year of performances on Roanoke Island with the 1939 premier July 4. Last season 70,000 persons crossed the three mile long Wright Memorial bridge to reach restored Fort Raleigh and witness the play. More than 100,000 are expected to attend performances in the waterside theater this year.

The "symphonic drama" is a dramatization of the poignant episode in colonial history which provided America with its Virginia Dare mystery. A cast of 150 presents it. The set is a permanent stockade, with the scenes changed by lighting various sections and levels, obviating all waiting between scenes. The stage is built beside and over Roanoke sound, on the spot where Raleigh's colonists landed and built their first fort.

Roanoke Islanders plan to present the drama in perpetuity, as a sort of patriotic Oberammergau. Most of the actors are islanders—Tar Heels, who ordinarily are fishermen, housewives, guides, and coast guardsmen. Most of them serve without compensation.

Fascinated by Fish.

Ibanez, the Spanish novelist, was so impressed with the wonders of the great Italian aquarium at Naples, that when he had occasion to introduce it in his "Mare Nostrum" he left his characters behind for fifty pages while he described its fish.

Chicagoans on Trip to Havana and Jamaica

When the De Grasse sailed yesterday for a 12 day cruise to Cap Haitien, Montego Bay, Kingston, and Havana, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. English, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brande, Miss B. Blue, Miss Cecilia Levenstein, Miss Dorothy Johnson, and Miss Evelyn Benson, all of Chicago, were on board.

The Britannic sailed Wednesday for a cruise, calling at Nassau and Havana. At Nassau Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Crawford and Miss Emily Goldthwaite of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Everet of Milwaukee will join the ship for the return trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Boynton of Highland Park sailed last Saturday on the Rex, bound for an extensive trip through the countries bordering the Mediterranean, particularly Egypt and the Holy Land. Among their fellow passengers from Chicago were Mrs. Thomas F. Mullaney and Mrs. Curtis Bird, who plan to tour through Europe; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Payne, who will include Italy, Switzerland, and France in their European itinerary; Mrs. Alma Juergensen and Thomas H. Zosky.

On board the Argentina sailing yesterday for a 38 day cruise to South America, visiting Barbados, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, and Trinidad, will be Mrs. G. Frankel and her daughter, Alyce, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Straus, all of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Nohl of Milwaukee.

Sailing for California via the Panama Canal and Acapulco were Mr. and Mrs. Ellis T. Kip of this city, leaving on the City of San Francisco yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schinkel and their son, Hedwig, took their car with them for a tour of Europe when they sailed on the Hamburg Thursday.

Penguin Eggs Are African Delicacy

Penguin eggs are a great delicacy in Cape Town and other South African cities. Robin island in Table bay—a barren bit of land that was once a leper colony—serves as a penguin preserve, and enough eggs are collected there yearly to meet the demand. They are the size of billiard balls and are tasty as well as nutritious. They must be boiled from twenty minutes to a half hour, which causes the bluish jelly encasing the yolk to become firm. They are much sought after by South African gourmets.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Lawrenceville, Ill., March 7.—To the Travel Editor: A friend of mine in Cleveland, O., sent my name in to your department, so he now tells me.

Since the publication of his letter I have received many postcards, letters, and stamps. I should like very much to write each one, but that would be quite a job, for, as you know, I am confined to my bed and at times writing is rather difficult for me to do.

I knew nothing about the request, and when the letters and cards began to arrive I didn't know what caused it all. I appreciated every one! It's great to be able to thank all these kind people through THE TRIBUNE.

DONALD HILBERT.

Lost Springs, Kas., Feb. 25.—To the Travel Editor: May we take this way to thank each of you for your interest in our little Bobby? Your letters, cards, and gifts have brought hours of pleasure to him and to us. He is getting better again after having a setback due to flu and bronchitis.

Following are the names of two shut-ins who would be most happy to hear from travelers: Mrs. Chrystene Perry, R. R. 1, Honey Grove, Tex., and Mrs. Maude Smith, 128 Pennsylvania, Wichita, Kas. The latter has not been outdoors in seven years. Her hobby is collecting cards.

MR. AND MRS. J. H. WELLS,
JACKY AND BOBBY.

MEMORIES OF VENICE.

Niles Center, Ill., March 1.—To the Travel Editor: My memory wanders today to the romantic city of Venice where I have spent many happy hours loitering through the tiny streets and on the canals.

A city of slender towers and white domes, it sleeps in the water like a mass of water lilies. Dark waterways, mysterious threads of shadows bind all these flowers of stone together. The splash of the gondolier's oar is heard and he calls, "Ohé" as he rounds a sudden turn.

Early morning in Venice can be cold and one sees a gondolier blowing on his fingers. Visit the Giudecca where all the ships lie basking in the sun, ships that have come from Trieste, Greece, and the mysterious east, up through the Adriatic, wending their way through the patchwork of islands. They lie in the sun like huge water spiders.

By night you drift silently into the marvelous mystery of it all. Then you feel the weight of the centuries in every shadow that lurks in the deep doorways and realize the tragedies that have been played, the romances that have been woven, and the dark deeds that have been done in the making of the history of this city.

To sit in the square of San Marco watching the gay trippers and the pigeons and the lights and shadows is to see a picture one never loses. The shops around the square are a never ending joy to the lover of the beautiful. Here are laces and jewelry and beautifully embroidered shawls that never cease to fascinate.

ANITA CROW.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—To the Travel Editor: My sister, in the tuberculosis sanitarium at Ah-Gwah-Ching, Minn., would greatly appreciate cards and letters from travelers. Her name is Mrs. Ruth Nelson.

MRS. MARTIN HJELM.

Winfield, Ill., March 6.—To the Travel Editor: I am in a sanitarium and will appreciate getting mail or literature of any kind to pass the time away.

LILLIAN GERSHON,
Box 127, Winfield, Ill.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—To the Travel Editor: A young man, who has been bedridden for a year and a half and who can only look out of the window from a prone position, but who is cheerful and uncomplaining, would be delighted to receive mail from your readers. Anything he receives is read and re-read many times. His address is James Fullerton, Therien Nursing home, 6017 Kenwood avenue, Chicago.

A FRIEND.

Centralia, Ill., Feb. 27.—To the Travel Editor: Joy is 15 and has been a shut-in for almost two years. She is still in her wheelchair for an indefinite period. She displays cheerfulness and poise beyond her years and really merits a reward. Any mail she'd receive, especially from foreign countries, would put expectancy into each day for her. Her address: Miss Joy Stivers, 704 South Elm street, Centralia, Ill.

D. E. FORD.

Cudahy, Wis., Feb. 28.—To the Travel Editor: I have been ill almost three years and would be so glad to get something to read. I'd appreciate a small Bible, as I can't afford to buy one.

MRS. JOHN MCDOUGALL,
General Delivery, Cudahy, Wis.

Chicago, March 8.—To the Travel Editor: Hans E. Otto of 2121 Addison street, Chicago, would be delighted to hear from travelers and others among your readers. He is a disabled war veteran and has been ill for the last three years.

MRS. C. B. DEYO.

Lilies Once Fed to Pigs in Bermuda

Bermuda still holds first claim in the affections of Miss Eleanor Early, as revealed in her book, "Ports of the Sun." The first chapter tells of the island's sole industry—the manufacture of perfume.

It started, says Miss Early, when the crop of Easter lilies was so great the market could not absorb it. The result—lilies were fed to the pigs. And then came a thought: Why not use the surplus crop and manufacture perfume? The lily perfume was so successful that it was decided to capture the fragrance of other flowers and imprison them in bottles for feminine tourists. Then came perfumes from sweet peas, jasmine, oleander, rose, and passion flower. The last named is one of the most costly scents in the world.

Milk on the Hoof.

In Sicily there is no milk problem. The fluid is delivered "on the hoof." Goats are driven to the door and their milk is drawn from them there.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Tropic Isle in South Seas Has Its Own Radio

By Anson Brown.

Countless small floral islands dot the warm mid-Pacific waters. Some are uninhabited, all but unknown, and unattainable to the average traveler. Others, such as most of those in the French Society group, may be reached in native schooners. Thus it is with Bora Bora, 200 miles from Tahiti.

Even the romantic name of Bora Bora is enough to lure adventurers away from the cafés and shops of Papeete, but it is impossible to leave the warmth of the beaches and palm trees behind. Each island has the alluring sameness of the one just beyond; the boom of the breakers on the coral reef is just as soothing, the orchid and green of the next lagoon is as brilliant, the sun and rain as temperamental.

Tahiti, closed behind me in the folds of clouds following the sunset. The world about me then encompassed a sixty foot boat, powered by a Diesel engine, churning through a black ocean. Fellow passengers were fourteen dusky islanders and nine seasick Chinamen who had made sleeping in the large cabin impossible. Up forward were tied eight cows and a few pigs. The chickens had been secured in the lifeboat along with my bicycle. The boat was an unpretentious affair; a couple of sails, an engine, and a simple roof over the cabin deck.

• • •

The native men and women were not attempting to sleep for there was a guitar and the popaa had cigarets. We sang until midnight and watched the flying fish stir up the phosphorescence in the water. The Polynesian captain uncrated a portable radio from its box and asked me if I could hook it up. We attached the batteries and strung a piece of wire in the darkness between the masts. The natives were as excited as I. We switched on short wave and in a moment had a California station carrying a broadcast of a popular orchestra playing in a Chicago night club! I shuddered, but something within me lept up in a momentary nostalgic pang. Back home people were dancing, riding in cars, playing bridge. It was all so remote. My friends, sprawled on the deck around me, asked questions I could not answer. I could only tell them I was happier floating with them on their ocean than sweating in a summer night club. They seemed to understand.

I asked about the radio. The captain explained that the people of Bora Bora had been saving their money from copra sales for many months to buy it. [Copra is dried coconut meat rich in palm oils.] They had even built a special hut in the main village for the radio. Most of them had never heard one and I would be there to install it for them. Civilization is slowly spreading over them. Not long from now it will be their eventual doom.

A brilliant day brushed away the dawn and I caught a much needed nap in the sun on deck. I was awakened about noon by two of the native girls. They had prepared some fish and asked me to eat with them. I brought out cheese and we cracked open a fresh coconut for water. We sat on the deck with our backs against the railing and between bites watched Bora Bora loom larger up ahead of us.

• • •

It is a singularly interesting island. One large pinnacled mountain rises out of its middle with its top forever lost in white clouds. As we came to the break in the coral reef ready to slide through to the calm deep lagoon a school of porpoise passed us, leaping, hissing, rolling, as they churned their mad, playful trail onward over the sea. Some were huge fellows, bullies of the school, and they all but landed on the low deck as the Polynesians cheered them ahead.

The natives have no fear of the porpoise—in fact, consider them as friendly aquatic pets. They could almust rub their gray-brown backs as they rolled in close to the ship.

Chugging across the lagoon waters we approached an old wooden pier. The sun was warm and great groves of palms lined the white beach ahead. The water front was crowded with people, chatting and calling to the boat as we tied up. They were dressed in the bright flowering pareu prints, both men and women, and the smaller children had adorned their naked, tanned bodies with nothing more than garlands of flowers; hibiscus, and the gardinia-like tiare. When these youngsters saw there was a popaa on board they clambered all over the ship, begging me to take their pictures and give them bonbons. It was easy to see that other Americans had been there before me.

One of the Chinamen sold me a sack of caramels for a few francs. But before the candy was passed among them the movie camera was set up and an impromptu hula session staged. Loading operations on the small boat momentarily ceased while the children, some in grass skirts, wiggled in utter abandon to tomtoms and singing. It was a brief, festive occasion, and the laughter rang up and down the shore.

They helped me lift the bicycle to shore and in a moment it was gone only to appear every few minutes from some unexpected pathway. They all took turns riding it. It was in constant demand the remainder of the afternoon and I wondered how long it would hold up.

• • •

Meantime the radio was carried to the new hut and they were shown how to fly the aerial between the tips of the two tall palms. The battery was hooked up and when the switch was turned there was a deep silence from the crowd. A few squeals, much static, and then music from the Cook Islands near by. They whooped their approval and hula-ed in and out of the hut. The old chief learned how to tune the radio and he alone was allowed to touch the set.

To show their appreciation I was moved in with the chief's family for two days until the boat was ready to return to Papeete. The radio, however, blared constantly and the mosquitoes were bad, so I slept out on the roof of the schooner's cabin under a blanket of stars and a constant cool breeze away from the din and the tri-motored insects.

During my time there I explored the small island on what was left of the dilapidated bicycle. It was not too difficult to make the complete circuit in a few hours in spite of the condition of the so-called road twisting along the scenic shore. Like Moorea and Tahiti the friendly people greeted me as I peddled past their huts.

Rangi was the oldest native on the island, his years numbering up into the eighties, although he was not sure. He spoke only Polynesian and was known throughout the islands as one of their most accurate historians. I had heard in Tahiti that he had a passion for perfume, so I was well prepared for our meeting. With me I carried two ounces of violent scent, at one franc the ounce.

• • •

Old Rangi, seated at the doorway of his hut, greeted my approach with a broad grin. He pointed to his swollen legs and prattled in Polynesian. He was trying to tell me it was hard for him to rise because he was inflicted with elephantiasis. He was making a shell wreath for the brim of his hat, braiding fibre for string and punching holes in each individual shell. His wrinkled, ancient fingers worked nimbly and he chattered constantly though I could scarce understand a word.

I took the perfume from the bicycle basket and proffered it to him. His eyes gleamed and he squealed with delight. Then he calmly opened the bottle, poured half on his clothes, and drank the rest! He reeked to highest heaven, so I made my farewell and rode on down the road searching for Fereti.

Fereti, I had been told, was the best craftsman on the island. Though a Polynesian, he had taught French in the Papeete school. He also was sitting in front of his hut and wearing an American straw hat. Fereti was carving a miniature toy outrigger canoe from rosewood when I found him. He, too, was gracious, but had no sense of value. I wanted to buy the canoe. He wanted $10. I reached in the basket and pulled forth a worn, double breasted suit coat. He could not trade fast enough. He would reset the buttons to make up for his fat stomach, he said.

• • •

Then he procured a hand carved, two foot tomtom made from the trunk of a cocoanut tree. For this he also wanted $10 until I found a dirty pair of flannel trousers in the basket. We traded again.

"But Fareti," I said, "you can never get in those pants."

"Ah, yes," he answered, "but I have a friend."

With that he called inside the hut and his petite wife appeared.

"There is my friend," he said.

"Is she going to wear the pants?" I asked.

"Mais oui, mon amie, of course."

A Tahitian woman in pants! It was ridiculous. I later heard they practically disrupted the next Sunday's church service when they appeared in my old clothes. The coat and pants made them the most envied couple on the island.

I still have my tomtom and miniature piroque.

I wanted to stay in Bora Bora for weeks, but there was so much more to see. The boat was ready to put out again and everything stowed safely on board. My new friends came down to the pier, bringing me kava fruit, bananas, oranges, and fresh cocoanuts for the voyage back to Papeete. They had been almost overly gracious and kind. The whistle blew and all hands climbed aboard.

But a piercing squeal from down the road made us all pause. There was a swirl of dust and a limping figure. It was Rangi, hobbling as fast as his crippled legs would carry him. He came puffing to the boat and held out his hand to me. I reached out to say good-by and he dropped something in my hand, then turned and hobbled back down the road.

No one said much as we sailed out over the lagoon, least of all I. It was old Rangi's way of saying thanks. He had given me the wreath of shells still smelling faintly of one franc perfume. . . .

Montesquieu's Manuscripts Sold in Paris

By May Birkhead.

Recently the dovecotes of intellect and learning in Paris were fluttered by the sale of Montesquieu's manuscripts. The biggest and most famous of them, the "Esprit des Lois," was taken, as had been foreseen, by the Bibliothèque Nationale, which exercised its right of preëmption. Many Americans remember how Montesquieu's views on government, especially the division of powers into executive, legislative, and judicial, were incorporated by Jefferson in the declaration of independence.

PARIS

• • •

Montesquieu helped along the idea, which had such a vogue during the generation before the French revolution, that mankind was capable of indefinite progress, not to say perfectibility. Later generations have seen something of the progress, but perfection, or the steady approaches to it, leaves us skeptical. Another case of the masterly analyst who is not always the sublime prophet.

When Napoleon was in Berlin, at Sans Souci, the Potsdam palace of Frederick the Great, Napoleon's secretary, Meneval, showed him a book, full of notes in Frederick's handwriting. Napoleon took possession of it, and some months later, at the palace of St. Cloud, lent it to Talleyrand, then his minister of foreign affairs.

• • •

The book in question was Montesquieu's celebrated treatise on the "Greatness and Decline of the Romans." It is said that this copy, which thus passed through such famous hands, was never recovered, in spite of erudite researches without number. But one day, on the quays of the Seine, beloved of the bookish, a Montesquieu specialist found a copy, which a dealer in curiosities had reprinted. It contained the reproduction of Frederick's notes. One of Montesquieu's observations read: "It is easy to make conquests, because they are made with all one's forces, but they are hard to keep, because they can be defended with only a part of one's forces."

Frederick's comment was: "A case in point is Louis XIV., who made a quick conquest of Holland, but had to abandon the Dutch towns as swiftly as he had taken them."

Apropos of Montesquieu's remarks on tyrants such as Caligula and Tiberius, Frederick noted: "A brainy tyrant is a very dangerous animal. Not content with oppression, he wants the people to bless the hand that works the persecution."

Stonehenge One of the World's Baffling Riddles

The imagination of American visitors to the British Isles has been captured in recent years by the mystery of Stonehenge, one of the most baffling of all archeological riddles.

Ten miles from Salisbury, the huge stone pillars and beams may be viewed by the public. All around is a great plain, treeless, and almost uninhabited.

Some scientists say Stonehenge dates from the fifth century, others believe it was built in the Neolithic age, and still others consider it a temple of the bronze age. It has been observed that on midsummer day the sun rises in line with the avenue of stone, and this has given rise to the theory that it was a temple built by sun worshipers, one estimate placing its construction about 1680 B. C.

When complete, Stonehenge consisted of two circles, enclosing two stone rows in a horseshoe position. The outer cricle is slightly more than 100 feet in diameter and consists of 30 upright stones [16 of which are still in position], each having large lintels. The inner circle, nine feet distant, originally consisted of 30 smaller stones, 19 of which remain in position.

Continent Is a Gauge of Europe's Power

By
JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE continent of Africa is the gauge of Europe. By means of it the world can tell just which are the dominant powers north of the Mediterranean.

● When a European nation is expanding its territories in Africa it is a certain sign that this nation is in the ascendency. When it is losing its African possessions it is proof that its power is waning.

● Thus at the close of the World war a defeated and crippled Germany was deprived of its vast African colonies. Today Germany, again strong and greedy for territory, is clamoring to get back a portion of Africa. That John Bull took the customary British lion's share of Germany in Africa at the conclusion of the war was a reliable indication then of England's adroitness at imperial expansion.

● Italy's recent declaration to the effect that there should be handed over to her the French protectorate of Tunisia and French Somaliland, whether a mere bluff or a sincere proposal, is a weather vane that tells the way the wind is blowing over Africa. Mussolini plainly wants more of Africa. How far he will dare go to attain this end can be only a matter of conjecture now. It is possible that some African boundary dispute or some demand for territory on the vast southern continent, such as Italy's declaration concerning Tunisia and French Somaliland, may cause the next European war.

● With the exception of a tiny fragment (Continued on page two.)

Who Owns Africa?

Continental Africa, with approximately eleven and a quarter million square miles of territory and about 153 million people, is almost completely split up among six European powers. Total areas and populations under these powers follow:

	Square miles	Population
Great Britain*	4,235,558	74,611,067
France	4,049,059	37,305,995
Italy	1,010,354	9,939,808
Belgium	922,617	13,575,928
Portugal	796,401	7,499,041

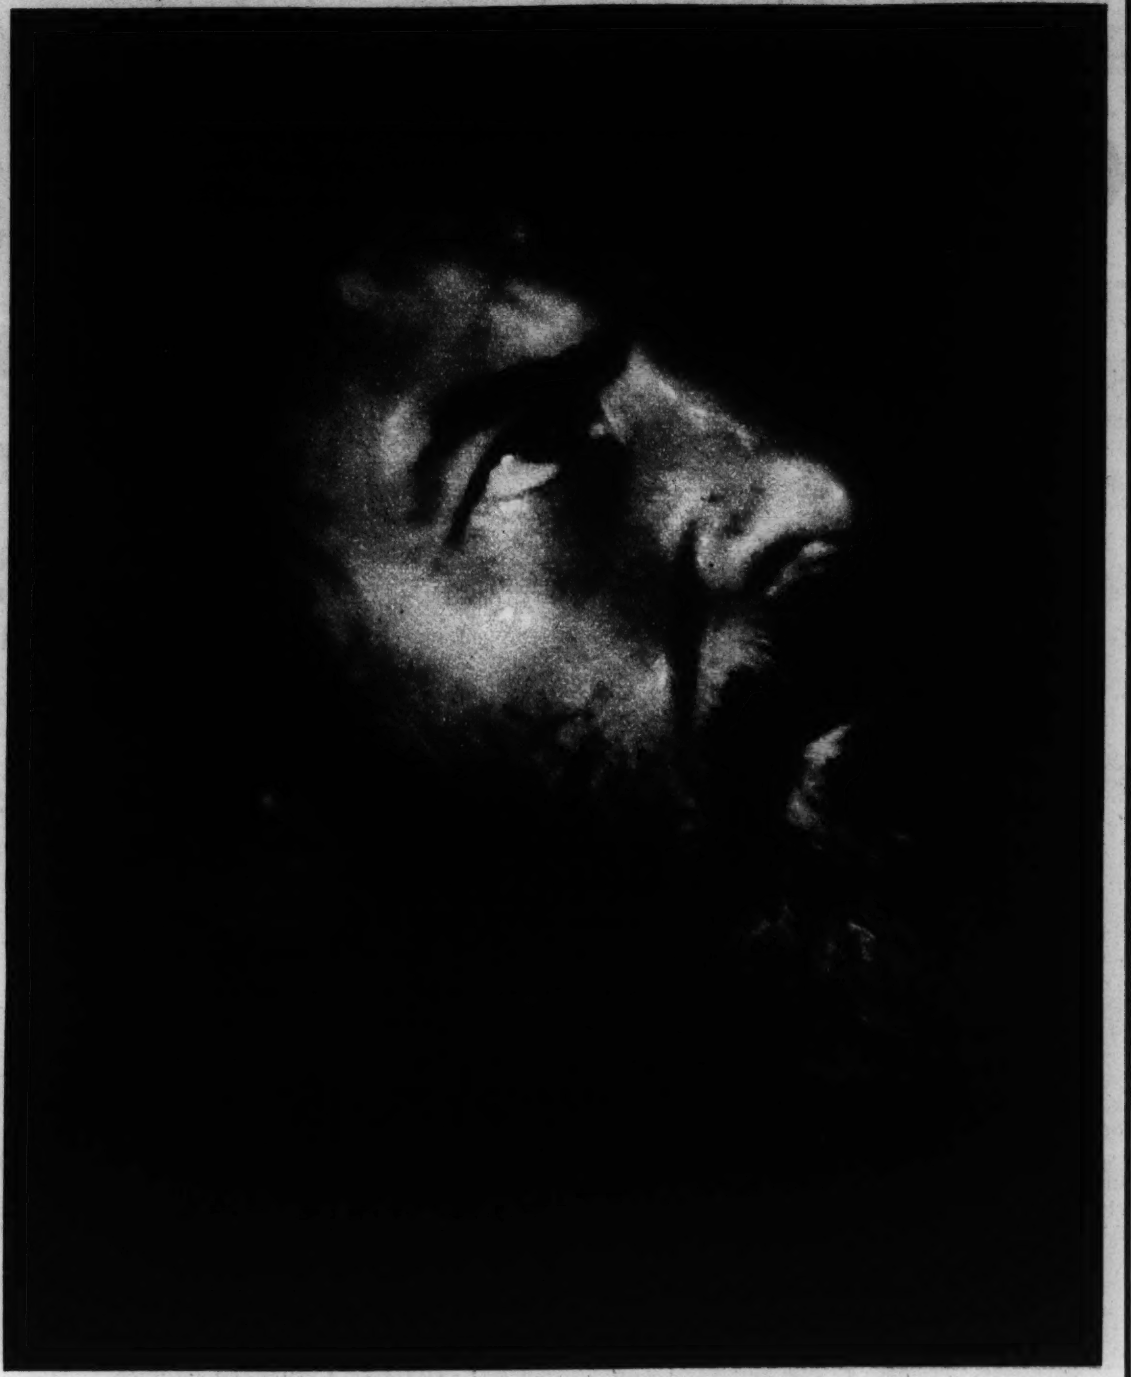
Doctor Looks at Beauty

A Surgeon Draws with a Camera

● Other photographs by Dr. Thorek appear on page 7 of this section.

By GUY MURCHIE JR.



"De Profundis," a typical portrait by Dr. Max Thorek.

WHEN YOU look at the picture illustrating this article, and at others on page seven of this section, can you say whether they are photographs or drawings?

The truth is they are neither one nor the other. They are a combination of both, created by an artistic genius who knows none of the orthodox limitations that keep other artists from mixing drawing with photography or other photographers from overflowing into the realm of graphic art.

Dr. Max Thorek is his name. He is a surgeon, and, true to his character, he finds his relaxation in the creation of beauty. Born in Hungary about 1880 from a lineage of medical men, he was educated in the arts and studied, among other things, drawing and the violin.

• • •

At the age of 19 he migrated with his family to America, where he took courses in medicine at the University of Chicago, earning his tuition by playing in the university band. After being graduated from Rush Medical college in 1904 he started his career in general surgery. Today he is surgeon in chief of the American hospital in Chicago as well as attending surgeon of the Cook County hospital, professor of clinical surgery at Cook County Graduate School of Medicine, and consulting surgeon at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

Next to his chosen profession the work closest to Dr. Thorek's heart is his creative camera art, although, besides his music, he has an additional serious hobby in collecting historical autographs. He always gets a great kick out of being called a camera artist—even though he has been just that for a long time and everybody knows it. In fact, he founded the Photographic Society of America, and he is such a prolific craftsman that he habitually contributes more acceptable prints to photographic salons than any other cameraman in the world. During the last five years he has had a total of 1,555 of his prints actually picked by juries in 341 different photographic salons all over the world, all in keen competition with the best camera experts of every country from Mexico to Japan. No other photographer on earth has even come close to that record, which means a steady creative output of nearly one vote-winning picture every single day, week after week, year in, year out.

• • •

How does he do it? He has a genius for making the most of simple tools and equipment at hand, and he has developed a beautiful but individual style of his own which is unorthodox enough to have escaped the emulation of most of his artistic rivals. He uses the paper negative method of adding his own background and effects. Basically this method is pretty simple. In Dr. Thorek's own words in his 156-page illustrated book on "Creative Camera Art": "From the original negative as made in the camera, make a contact positive print transparency. . . . This positive transparency is now placed in the enlarger and a paper negative made of any desired size (on thin paper). The paper negative is then worked upon as requirements dictate. The finished positive prints are made as usual by contact printing (letting the light shine through the translucent paper negative upon the print paper). . . . A certain degree of definition is lost in the steps that lead to the final print. Much of this may be minimized, however, by attention to certain technical details. Best definition is secured by printing on single weight paper, emulsion surface up. By the paper negative method failures in straight photography may be turned into objects of success."

Dr. Thorek likes to spend his time between his professional duties in a little room beside his office study, touching up his paper negatives with pencil and brush. His vitality is so great that it is actually a refreshing relaxation to him to crouch over his paper, his keen, dark face with its ample nose peering intensely upon the delicate whorls and cloudy shadows he loves to add to his pictures. For models he will stop anybody he sees—perhaps an old man on the street with just the right spark in his eye or gimp in his beard, perhaps a beautiful girl that he first encountered on the operating table. In his basement studio he sets up his subject or model and arranges his lights with tender care. Often his subject is such a simple thing as a bowl with a few tiny artificial birds perched on its rim. The smallest thing is a challenge to the Thorek art, and the indefatigable doctor will spend days and nights if necesary creating skies and shadows and highlights until he has produced exactly what his imagination ordained.

ED SULLIVAN, on his first vacation, will again be LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD in an early issue.

Two Stars in Color

● MERLE OBERON'S father was connected with the English army, and it was while he and his wife were in Tasmania, an island off Australia, that Merle was born. The date was Feb. 19, 1911, and she was christened Estelle Merle O'Brien Thompson. When she was 7 years old her family moved to Calcutta where she went to school. When she was 16 she joined the Cats, a Calcutta amateur theatrical society, and danced in the chorus of several productions. Later her uncle took her to England for a vacation, from which she decided not to return. She hoped to get a break in the movies. Before that break came, however, she accepted a job as hostess in a London café. She was discovered by Alexander Korda and given a screen test. Her first important rôle was the part of Anne Boleyn in "The Private Life of Henry VIII.," starring Charles Laughton. Miss Oberon is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 108 pounds.

● RAY MILLAND was at one time a member of the late King George V.'s Royal Horse guards. He left the service chiefly because he had a yen for the stage. Before going to Hollywood he was a great favorite on the British stage and screen. His real name is Jack Millane. He was born in Drogheda, Ireland, Jan. 3, 1905. He's 6 feet 1 inch tall. Educated King's college. Films in which he has appeared are "Wings Over Honolulu" "Easy Living," "Ebb Tide," "Wise Girl," and opposite Dorothy Lamour in "Jungle Princess" and "Her Jungle Love." Mr. Milland will play an important rôle in the forthcoming production of "Beau Geste," in which Gary Cooper, Robert Preston, and Brian Donlevy are also featured. He's married to Muriel Webber.

Dear Miss Tinée: Orchids to Richard Greene for his great performance in "Kentucky." The Loretta Young-Richard Greene team is the best we've seen for many a day. Let's see more of them.

LORETTA YOUNG
Teaming with Richard Greene wins praise.

Orchids to Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan for their performance in "Brother Rat." They really stole the show.

And now some cabbages for those responsible for the casting of Tyrone Power. Why should America's heart throb play rôles suited for an older actor? Why hide his handsome face behind a mustache or a bandanna? Why does he have to play in old-fashioned pictures? Wasn't he good enough in "Second Honeymoon" and "Love Is News"? Why not co-star Tyrone with Loretta in a modern love story?

Yours for better Power pictures,
DODIE and MIDGE.

Editor's note: Dodie and Midge have spoken!

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please tell me something about Tim Holt? Thank you, and best wishes for success in your column. Truly yours, ANN.

Editor's note: Tim Holt is the son of Jack Holt, film actor. Educated Carl Curtis Grammar school and Culver Military academy. He's 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, and has brown hair and eyes. His hobby is raising cocker spaniels. Thank you!

Dear Miss Tinée: For some unaccountable reason I am particularly partial to villains in any shape, size, or form. It is because of this I am writing to you.

The two actors who portray villains on the screen in whom I am most interested are Boris Karloff and Basil Rathbone. I do not know much about either one, so would you please print something about both men? I have a picture of Basil Rathbone, but do not know where I can send for one of Boris Karloff.

Thank you very much. Yours truly,
HOPE CAREW.

Editor's note: Villains go over pretty well with me, too. Boris Karloff's real name is Charles Edward Pratt. He was born in London, Nov. 23, 1887. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 175 pounds, and has brown hair and eyes. Educated Uppingham Kings college. Appeared on the stage for years before entering motion pictures. Write Universal studio, Universal City, Cal., inclosing 25 cents for mailing, for a photo of Mr. Karloff. Basil Rathbone was born in South Africa, June 13, 1892. Educated in England. He's 6 feet 1½ inches tall and has black hair and hazel eyes. He's married to Ouida Bergere, scenarist and playwright, and they have one son. His theatrical career started in 1912 in Shakespearean rôles.

Dear Miss Tinée: Please print a picture of Tyrone Power, a bit about him, and his address. Give me the full cast of "Brother Rat."

I am only 12 years old but have as many likes and dislikes as any grownup. Here's health, happiness, and success to you.

Sincerely,
JUNE.

TYRONE POWER
One of the "likes" of a 12-year-old.

Editor's note: Glad to print your letter, June—and you're certainly as much entitled to your likes and dislikes as anybody else. We haven't room in this column to print long casts, but I'll give you the names of the principal characters in "Brother Rat." Here they are:

Joyce Winfree	Priscilla Lane
Billy Randolph	Wayne Morris
A. Furman Townsend Jr.	Johnnie Davis
Kate Rice	Jane Bryan
Bing Edwards	Eddie Albert
Dan Crawford	Ronald Reagan
Claire Adams	Jane Wyman

Tyrone Power was born in Cincinnati, O., May 5, 1914. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 155 pounds, and has dark brown hair and brown eyes. His hobby is amateur photography. Thanks for the boost—and the same to you, my dear.

Dear Mae Tinée: Please tell me who the band leader was in the picture "Garden of the Moon." Very truly yours,
MRS. E. LAYER JR.

Editor's note: John Payne. Like him?

Dear Miss Tinée: Could you please tell me the addresses of the following stars? Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Errol Flynn, Olivia De Havilland, and Preston Foster. Thank you. D. E. W.

Editor's note: The addresses you want are: Tyrone Power and Alice Faye, care of Twentieth Century-Fox studio, Beverly Hills, Cal.; Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland, care of Warners-First National studio, Burbank, Cal.; and Preston Foster, care of RKO-Radio Pictures, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal. You're welcome.

AFRICA—WHERE MIGHT STILL MAKES RIGHT

(Associated Press photos.)
Looking north along the Suez canal, control of which means so much to the British "life line" to India.

of territory called Liberia, all of Africa is owned outright or controled in one manner or another by European powers. The table on page one shows these powers to be six in number. They are headed by Great Britain and France, each dominating more than four million square miles of the continent. Egypt is considered in the figures for area and population as under British control because, although it is in name an independent kingdom, it is under British military domination. Great Britain is privileged under a treaty concluded Aug. 26, 1936, to maintain 10,000 troops and 400 airplanes in Egypt for the defense of the Suez canal; to use Port Said, at the northern entrance to the canal, and Alexandria as naval bases; and to move troops over Egyptian territory in the event of war or the threat of war.

Of all the countries of Africa the Union of South Africa is most acceptable for colonization most nearly like the United States. Its position in the British empire is similar to that of the Dominion of Canada. Its climate is warm and dry, like that of the southwestern part of the United States, and for the most part it is an agricultural and stock raising land. It is one of the world's great wool producing lands. The white population of the Union of South Africa is close to two million.

The richest gold mines in the world are found in South Africa. In 1937, the most recent year for which statistics are available, $410,710,000 worth of gold was mined there. The entire continent of Africa produced $459,790,000 worth of gold that year out of a total world production of $1,045,428,000. The production for the United States was $168,159,000.

Africa is the world's chief source of diamonds. In 1936 world production was 8,296,905 carats, and all but about 150,000 carats came from Africa, principally from South Africa and the Belgian Congo.

Great Britain has made considerable advancement in establishing her hold in Africa. Now that Cairo is only two days away from the British Isles by regular airplane service, the British no longer think of Africa as a remote land.

One can travel today all the way from Port Said or Cairo to Cape Town without once leaving British-controled territory. This route traverses the most valuable part of the continent. Great Britain's lands in Africa, including colonies, mandated territories, and the military controled kingdom of Egypt, are more than a third greater in extent than continental United States, and a half million square miles greater in extent than the United States with all its territories and dependencies.

The British were fortunately situated as to territory in Africa even before the World war. After the war they took over from Germany the greater part of German East Africa, which now is the mandated territory of Tanganyika; Southwest Africa, which today is mandated to the Union of South Africa; and portions of what now is called British West Africa, including parts of German Kamerun (Cameroons) and Togoland.

Great Britain, by virtue of its influence and privileges in Egypt, controls the shortest route from Europe to the orient—the Suez canal and the Red sea. Although ownership of the canal actually is vested in a French corporation, it is the British who assume the task of defending it. Of the 652,932 outstanding shares in the canal corporation Great Britain as a nation owns 295,026.

• • •

The British life line to the orient crosses the Mediterranean from Gibraltar to Port Said. Naturally this British life line has to pass close to the Italian naval bases, and it is at this point that the line apparently is most vulnerable. In the event of a war between Italy and Great Britain the line might possibly be cut by Mussolini's naval and air forces. Then it would be up to the British to reëstablish their prestige in the Mediterranean or else reroute their shipping around the Cape of Good Hope.

France's life line to Africa could be gravely menaced by a hostile power in possession of the Balearic Islands. That is why France is concerned with the disposition of these islands at the conclusion of the civil war in Spain. As Spanish islands they would not imperil French shipping. But with Italian or even German defenses and bases on them they would present a serious menace to shipping between France and north Africa.

Justice appears to play an insignificant part in the parceling out of the lands of Africa. Right by might, rather, has been the basis upon which acquisitions on the continent generally have been made.

While France controls almost as much territory in Africa as does Great Britain, it is the last-named nation that possesses by far the choicest regions. Much of France's land lies in the wastes of the Sahara desert.

Italy's colonies in Africa, while vast in extent, do not compare in area with those of Great Britain and France. Italy, coming into the colonization scramble late, has acquired much land that is virtually valueless at present and will require years and fortunes to develop. Libya is for the most part desert. Ethiopia, Eritrea, and Italian Somaliland are cursed with a climate in which Europeans do not thrive.

The possessions in Africa of Belgium, Portugal, and Spain are rich in certain natural resources, especially the Belgian Congo, where diamonds are found in great numbers and where tropical products grow in profusion, but in the main these three countries have taken the leavings.

Our map on page one shows only one country in Africa as an independent state. Liberia still maintains that status in a continent divided among the British, French, Italians, Belgians, Portuguese, and Spaniards. She keeps her independence largely, it may be surmised, from the fact that she has a powerful and influential godfather across the Atlantic—none other than Uncle Sam himself.

In 1912 an international loan of $1,700,000 was raised to keep Liberia from collapsing. Forty-year bonds were issued, and customs duties and certain taxes were pledged as security for the loan. The United States had been interested for years in the welfare of Liberia, the government of the little country having been set up and maintained in large part by Negroes from America. So the United States undertook to act as Liberia's guardian. The control of the customs of the country since 1912 has been in the hands of a receiver general and financial adviser designated by America.

No longer ago than Jan. 30 of this year Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany, in a radio address broadcast in America, demanded return of the colonies lost by Germany after the war.

"The German colonial possessions which the Reich once acquired . . . have been stolen from us," he said, "against the solemn assurances of President Wilson which were the basis of our laying down arms. The pretext that these colonies were of no value anyhow should justify their return without any trouble."

Hitler obviously had the former German colonies of Africa in mind, for they constituted the greater part of his nation's overseas possessions.

France, Italy Renew Land Rivalry

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE AGE-OLD territorial dispute between the Italians and the French has flared up again. In the past it was France that reached out for lands at the expense of the Italians. Today it is Italy that wants lands at the expense of France.

Italy's proposals for imperial expansion involve the protectorate of Tunisia and French Somaliland in Africa, the purely French areas of Savoy and Nice in Europe, and the historic Mediterranean island of Corsica, where Napoleon Bonaparte was born. The Italian government in addition wants a share in the control of the Suez canal, which is owned by a French company but defended by the British army and navy.

While Italy, from the fall of the Roman empire until comparatively recent times, was a land without political unity, a land of many states, some independent and some not, the Italian people of today nevertheless have been encouraged by Mussolini to think of their nation as a revival of the empire once ruled by the Cæsars.

Frenchmen centuries ago exploited Italy. During the time of Charlemagne the empire of the Franks (western Europeans of German origin) extended down into Italy almost to Naples. In 1495 Charles VIII. of France crossed the Alps, marched to Naples, and there had himself crowned. His invasion is remembered from the fact that it was his soldiers who spread the plague of syphilis throughout central Europe.

• • •

From 1530 until late in the eighteenth century the Italians had no history of their own, their lands, except those held by the church, being under the domination of the Spanish and Austrian dynasties. Although the quarrels between the French and the Italians extended through the centuries, the modern aspects of their territorial dispute date from the time of the first Napoleon.

As a general of the French republic Bonaparte overran Italy. He destroyed the maritime republic of Venice (Venetia) when he seized it on the pretext that it was hostile to him in his campaign against the Austrians and that it threatened his line of retreat. In 1797, however, he handed it over to Austria by the peace of Campo Formio. It reverted back to France during the time of the empire after Napoleon as the first emperor had crowned himself king of Italy on May 26, 1805, in the cathedral of Milan, using for the purpose the ancient iron crown of Lombardy, a former independent Italian state.

The French empire of Napoleon controled all of Italy except the islands of Sardinia and Sicily. Most of the Italian mainland was under direct rule of France, while the southernmost part, the kingdom of Naples, was a subject state, with a king appointed by Napoleon.

After the collapse of Bonaparte's rule the powers that had crushed him agreed among themselves at the treaty of Paris and the congress of Vienna to restore a large part of the Italian political boundaries to what they had been in the pre-Napoleonic era. There were some exceptions made, however. The old republic of Venice and a portion of north Italy down to a point below Milan were definitely assigned to Austria. In the settlements France ceded to the kingdom of Sardinia the provinces of Nice and Savoy. Also to Sardinia went the territory of the former republic of Genoa, a one-time independent Italian state. Sardinia was to be a buffer state between France and the smaller states of Italy, which at that time were Parma, Modena, Tuscany, the papal states, and the kingdom of the two Sicilies. It should be pointed out that Sardinia, then merely a buffer state, was the nucleus of the present-day Italy which is threatening France.

• • •

The ambitions of another member of the Bonaparte family later in history led to French interventions in Italy. When King Victor Emmanuel II. of Sardinia sought to expel the Austrians from Piedmont, his territory on the Italian mainland, so that this region could be expanded into a kingdom of northern Italy, Napoleon III. of France agreed to supply 200,000 troops to assist in the task. Austria at this period of history was a direct threat to Sardinia, by trying to halt its growth in Italy. This was in 1858.

But Napoleon III. put a price on his alliance with Victor Emmanuel. He was to get back for France the provinces of Nice and Savoy. The Sardinians and French were victorious. Napoleon, however, feared Prussian intervention, so he concluded an early peace with Austria, which left the Italians with the suspicion that they had been betrayed.

(Three Lions photo.)

Memorial to Corsica's 40,000 war dead.

Francis Joseph of Austria ceded the former territory of Lombardy to Napoleon, who in turn handed it over to Victor Emmanuel. France took its reward—Nice and Savoy were relinquished to Napoleon on May 24, 1860.

These two regions, then as now, were French both geographically and linguistically. A plebiscite held about the time of their return to France was carried overwhelmingly by the pro-French element among the voters.

On Feb. 18, 1861, the first Italian parliament met at Turin and Victor Emmanuel was proclaimed king of Italy. Modern Italy was born. This was just two weeks to the day before Lincoln's first inauguration as President of the United States—an event introduced into this article to show the relative youthfulness of the present-day kingdom of Italy. While Italy, as pointed out, is only seventy-eight years old, its king comes from an ancient line, the house of Savoy, which for nine centuries reigned over Savoy and Piedmont.

The war between Prussia and Austria in 1866 led to the incorporation of Venice in the united Italy. It was not until 1871, however, that Victor Emmanuel entered Rome and the Eternal city became the capital of Italy. Napoleon all those ten years from 1861 to 1871 had refused to permit the occupation of Rome. He had maintained French troops there for the purported protection of the pope—he didn't want to lose the support of the French clericals.

Italy's participation in the international scramble for far colonies naturally came after its establishment as a kingdom. It actually began to reach out for foreign possessions in the early eighties. It never, as the kingdom of Italy, owned Corsica. Its claim to that island presumably is based upon the fact that the republic of Genoa, a former independent Italian state, possessed Corsica uninterruptedly for 161 years, from 1568 to 1729. From the last-named year, which marked the outbreak of a rebellion in Corsica, until 1768 there was almost constant trouble in the island, in which Great Britain and Sardinia both intervened.

In 1768 Genoa signed a treaty transferring the sovereignty of the island to France. Two years later a general assembly of Corsicans was called, the deputies swearing allegiance to the French crown.

For the next nineteen years Corsica remained a dependency of France. Then came the rebellion of 1789 and the island was incorporated into France as a separate department. As the result of another insurrection the Corsicans offered their sovereignty to Great Britain, and British troops occupied the island for two years. Bonaparte in 1796 sent an expedition against the island and regained it for the French. For a short while after the fall of Napoleon the British once more occupied Corsica, but in the settlements of 1815 it was restored to France and ever since then has remained French.

• • •

Italy's annexations in Africa had their beginning in the eighties. Her control over Libya dates from 1912, after her successful war against the Turks.

Italian claim to Tunisia, in which Mussolini wants a share of the administration, is based largely upon the fact that there were more Italians than French there when the French took possession in 1881. In addition there is the purely sentimental claim built upon the memory of ancient Carthage. The Romans took Carthage, in what is now Tunisia, as an outcome of the third Punic war.

In 1869 Tunisia was under the joint domination of Great Britain, France, and Italy, and in 1880 the Italians acquired a railway in the land from British owners. The following year French troops moved into Tunisia from Algeria to punish hostile tribesmen. They have been there ever since. They persuaded the ruling bey at the muzzle of a gun to accept the protectorate, and in 1896 Italy formally agreed to the protectorate, with the understanding that Italians in Tunisia should be permitted to retain their nationality. On Jan. 28 of this year the French took their first step toward direct annexation of the country.

They have constructed an elaborate system of fortifications in Tunisia facing Italian Libya to the east. This system, called the Mareth line, is four miles deep and extends from the coast near Zarsis to a point far down in the desert. Zigzagging through mountains and marked all along its extent with mud-camouflaged gun positions, it is said to compare favorably with the famous Maginot line of France. Of late newspaper correspondents have taken to calling it the Maginot line of Africa. The only way invaders from the east could get around this system of fortifications would be by a detour of several hundred miles into the waterless desert. France's African native troops are said to be the best desert fighters in the world.

Italian claim to French Somaliland, which has brought a demand for outright cession of the port of Djibouti and the French-owned Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway, linking Ethiopia with the coast, is founded on confusing diplomatic exchanges that reach back more than a generation.

The French acquired French Somaliland through treaties with Somali sultans in the years from 1883 to 1887. By a treaty with Great Britain in 1888 the southern limits of this land were defined, and by protocols with Italy in 1900 and 1901 its northern limits were fixed. The French railway from Djibouti to Addis Ababa was completed in 1917.

Italy's first hold on Italian Somaliland dates from 1889. Its first colonization venture in Eritrea was in 1885. Its conquest of Ethiopia was only yesterday—1935 and 1936. The country is not yet completely pacified.

• • •

Out of the dispute over French Somaliland the Italians make two points that seem fairly clear. They are:

That French Somaliland, particularly the port of Djibouti, is the actual gateway to Ethiopia and as such should be Italian territory.

That Italy has a claim on French Somaliland because in 1935, through a Franco-Italian agreement, a portion of the country was ceded to Italy.

But Italy herself has repudiated this agreement on the pretext that it never was formally ratified by the two contracting nations, and the French have reoccupied the ceded area.

Back of the aforementioned specific claims of Italy is what may be termed a general claim to territory. This is founded upon the treaty of London of 1915. In this compact, as a reward for Italy's entry into the World war as an enemy of Germany and Austria, the Italians were to have a share in any African territory acquired as a result of the war.

What they actually got was a sliver of land known as Jubaland, which was detached from Great Britain's Kenya colony; a bit of worthless desert land on the southern fringe of Libya, the gift of the British and the French; and a few islands in the Ægean sea which they had occupied since the war with Turkey in 1912.

What some observers, including Dr. Arthur Scott of the history department of the University of Chicago, believe to be the underlying cause of Italy's current cry for territory is the feeling on Mussolini's part that Germany is getting all the "pork." Germany's annexation of Austria and Sudetenland, in other words, has given the Italians the idea that they, too, can get land by asking for it or making a bluff at taking it.

SIRENS OF THE SEA

An "ama" looks out toward sea where she and her fellow divers are about to go to work. The white hood is worn all the time.

Swimming toward the oyster fields from the sampans, the girls push ahead of them the tubs that serve both as buoys and as containers for the oysters.

Girl Divers Are Colorful Part of Pearl Industry

By KIMPEI SHEBA

MIKIMOTO, Pearl Island, Toba, Japan.

WHEN the sky is clear and the sun beats down on the translucent waters of this lovely bay hundreds of mermaids come out from the fishing villages which dot the coast and spend the day diving for oysters, so that women from Chicago to Zamboanga may adorn their necks and fingers with pearls.

The girls are dressed in spotless white cotton garments not unlike abbreviated nightgowns. This is to protect them from sharks. A white cloth, according to Japanese fishermen, has exactly the opposite effect on a shark that a red cloth has on a bull. In former times, when the girls wore only a piece of loin cloth, sharks were known to enter these waters occasionally. Since the white gowns were introduced no shark has been sighted within miles of Toba.

Now that there are no sharks one would imagine that the girls would relax a little, for the cumbersome robes undoubtedly hinder their work. But no. They all wear these unusual costumes. The explanation, delicately put by our guides, is that, while the sharks have gone, a lot of tourists have taken their place. According to Mr. Kogirima, our host, about 1,000 Americans visit Mikimoto Pearl Island each year.

The diving girls, who are called ama, or girls of the sea, work in groups of from three to six and are usually accompanied by sampans. They bring enormous wooden tubs with them. These are attached to their bodies by long cords. The tubs act as a float when the girls are tired or when they wish to pull themselves up to the surface and are used as containers in which to put their catch.

Five girls from the Mikimoto pearl farm here were waiting for me as I arrived on the island on the company's fast motor boat with Mr. Kogirima. They all carried round glass masks to cover their eyes and nose.

In the water these vigorous and muscular girls remind one of seals. They are under water most of the time and some remained under the surface a full three minutes! The average is said to be a minute and a half. As the girls rise to the surface they breathe heavily through the mouth. As they exhale their breath strikes the water and the rubber around the mask, producing a weird sound like "Wheeee! Wheeee! Wheeee!"—as though they were not human beings, but mermaids or some other creatures of the seas.

Like all Japanese girls these pearl divers have sturdy legs. In diving for oysters they go down from five to seven fathoms, but for other shell fish they have to descend as much as twenty.

No boys or men do the diving, although most of the divers one sees in Honolulu and in the Malay peninsula are boys. Mr. Kogirima explained that this is because it is necessary in Japan to work in midwinter as well as in summer. Women, he said, seem able to stand cold better than men. Toba girls plunge into the chilly waters of the bay even when it is snowing and think nothing of it.

The girls refuted statements of some Japanese scientists who declare that it is injurious to the reproductive system for them to chill their bodies, saying:

"We all bear children after we marry just like any one else and we go through childbirth much more easily."

Married woman divers often continue to work until the very day of their delivery, they said. The babies are almost invariably husky.

The girls start diving soon after they leave primary school when they are about 14 years old and continue until they are 40 or even older. The best divers are women between 25 and 30.

When the pearl oyster season, which starts in June, comes to an end in the fall the girls and women turn to other shellfish and lobsters. Abalone is a Japanese delicacy. It is found usually in 20 fathoms of water. Only experienced divers can go for them. They usually work in pairs, a man and wife.

The man remains on the sampan. His wife is let down by a rope on the end of which is attached a 20 pound piece of lead. The woman carries a sharp knife and pares the abalone from the sides of the rocks. Sometimes, of course, a woman will remain under the surface too long and faints as she is pulled into the boat. Occasionally her line fouls when she works in rocky sections and there is a dramatic moment or two until she is free.

I asked Mr. Kogirima why diving equipment was not used. He explained that the girls must move from one spot to another and it is impractical to move diving equipment every ten minutes or so.

On the Mikimoto pearl farm, where the majority of the girls are employed, the work is comparatively easy. It is unnecessary to dive more than 10 fathoms at most. Consequently the girls earn less than abalone divers, but their wage scale is still considerably higher than that of factory hands and maidservants. They make about 3 yen a day (a yen is 28 cents). Abalone divers frequently clear 15 yen a day. Amas work usually two hours in the morning and three in the afternoon.

Although amas are good divers and spend most of their life in the water, they are not particularly good swimmers. None of the swimming champions has come from this district.

Unlike the pearl divers of the South Seas and the Indian ocean, these girls do not dive for pearls. The oysters they procure are a special variety of bivalves, differing from ordinary edible oysters. The life of an oyster is about 7 years. When they are 3 years old they are taken by the divers from the ocean bed. A delicate operation, perfected by Kokichi Mikimoto, Japan's pearl king, is performed at the Mikimoto laboratory and the oysters are returned to the water to remain for 3 or 4 years.

The operation consists of inserting granules of mother-of-pearl in the flesh of the oyster. In natural pearls this takes place by accident. In about three years the oyster covers the granule with a hard, lustrous substance.

One way of improving luster of pearls is to give the oysters plenty of sunlight. To do this Mikimoto places his oysters in wire cages and hangs them a few feet below the surface from open-work bamboo rafts. Oysters are menaced by akashiwo, or red current which sweeps into the bay at intervals of a few years. In former times entire stocks valued at millions of dollars were ruined by the akashiwo, but since Mikimoto put his oysters in cages they can be removed to places free from the unwelcome waters.

I asked the diving girls if they had any exciting experiences. One girl described a battle with an octopus. These creatures usually flee when they see a diver, but sometimes they will attack. Even though she carried a knife the ama was able to save herself only with difficulty, she said. Such encounters, however, are rare.

"Our greatest excitement," one of the amas told me, "was during the recent heavy rains and floods. There was a cloudburst. All hands were called out. There isn't a moment to waste at such a time, for fresh water is fatal to an oyster. We worked day and night slackening and unwinding the thousands upon thousands of cables which hold the cages to lower the oysters into deeper water. As the night advanced we cut the cables, for the oysters were growing weak."

There are several hundred amas on the coast of Mie prefecture. About 250 are employed on the Mikimoto farm. They are all daughters of fishermen. They do not undergo any special training.

After the day's work. At one time girl divers wore only loin cloths such as these, but presence of sharks made necessary the white costumes.

Oyster rafts being made ready for towing to open water. Cages containing oysters are attached to the rafts and submerged a few feet to give the bivalves more sunlight.

Closeup of two divers with their tubs. The circular masks are used instead of goggles and cover both eyes and nose. There is no provision, however, for breathing under water.

After taking a deep breath the girls dive backward, and down as far sometimes as twenty fathoms.

Most oyster diving is done around ten fathoms. The white blotch at left center is a girl seven fathoms down.

TALE OF A TUB IS STORY OF BEAUTY

Soap One Bar It Doesn't Hurt to Patronize Often

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1939: By the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

DOES THE STORY of soap suggest itself to you as a fascinating romance? Unless it is a perfumed soap we doubt if the average user ever thinks of it other than as a practical and necessary bathroom and laundry necessity. Yet we cannot conjure up a romance between boy and girl without realizing that soap and water influence the laws of attraction. Perhaps Cupid has triumphed over soap avoidance in the past, but today you simply cannot visualize a boy being attracted to a soap avoider, or vice versa. But we can visualize romance springing from an appreciation of meticulous personal care necessarily involving soap use.

However, we learn from Everett G. McDonough, Ph. D., that for the masses soap became a common commodity only a little over a hundred years ago, and that there is a fascinating story in the romance of soap. Soap was brought to the cultured civilization of Rome by the barbarians, and became so closely associated with the Roman's daily routine that with the fall of Rome the Christian, despising all Roman customs as sinful, abandoned its use. Rediscovered by the crusaders, soap and cleanliness soon gained such popularity, at least among the nobility, that many honorary orders such as the Order of the Bath were formed, McDonough tells us.

Well, today, from information gleaned from employment organizations, employers, personality builders, teachers, directors in all kinds of fields, honorary orders such as the Order of the Bath are the most respected and commendable references that can be brought with an application. We never get over being surprised to hear this cleanliness item stressed as often as it is.

One naturally assumes that no girl or woman today would be caught neglecting her daily bath. There is so much at stake economically, for one thing. For another, the pursuit of beauty exacts it. Yet we are informed of one employé in a group annoying her fellow workers with evidence of carelessness in respect to bathing.

We are told of unwashed heads of hair, of unwashed sweaters worn day after day with every one knowing how absorbing they are of perspiration odor, which could be kept down with frequent soap-and-water bathing. We hear of unwashed feet, which are as unpleasant to mention as they are to have to suffer in close proximity. Naturally we hear more of this unesthetic condition in the winter and in the spring than at other times, because, we must suspect, not until the warm weather comes are certain persons willing to indulge in the daily or twice daily tubbing.

• • •

Together with a common lack of sufficient water drinking daily, the aforementioned lack of daily bathing, and the heated rooms, bathlessness creates a most unpleasant problem at this time of year especially. And there's only one way to combat the problem, simple as can be —bathing and more bathing.

Of late we have heard it said of an attractive girl or woman, "She always looks so very crisp and clean!" We think that a perfect compliment. And you do see countless women deserving of the compliment. On the other hand you see, and regrettably your nasal sense registers, women who are not, like Cæsar's wife, above suspicion.

The two great motives that inspire women today are economic security and personal attractiveness. The economic security may be a job, or a man you want to get, or one you want to hold. We don't say that job or man can be gotten and held on soap and water alone, but we do say that great cleanliness of person is a powerful recommendation and a lure in itself. Furthermore, personal efficiency is reflected in everything else one does. Slatternly housewives are slatterns in person. Business and professional women only half succeed when shiftless about their persons. Outside of a few geniuses who defy all rules anyway it is a fact that there is an indisputable tieup between cleanliness and efficiency. As suggested above, our current employment circles give higher desirability rating to the immaculately clean girl than to one with greater actual skill but carelessness of person.

Finally, because complexion beauty, skin beauty, has become so definitly a major beauty point as to overshadow irregularity of features or negative coloring, cleanliness becomes the most imperative beauty order. Even beauticians with creams and lotions to sell will wax eloquent on the subject of soap and water as a necessary step in the beauty ritual. Physicians will tell you that soap is required to remove grease and oil found on the skin; that in cases of acne and excessively oily skin soap and water are the best and most effective cleansers. They will tell you, too, that sweat gland secretions are best and most quickly dissolved by means of soap, and odors therefore are reduced to a minimum.

Food Gets Green Light

Tint Hints Favor the Irish

By MARY MEADE

THE BUFFET table has been wearin' o' the green since the last of February's patriotic parties.

Shamrock canapes are dainty and attractive. The ones pictured were cut from white bread, spread with a soft cheese, and sprinkled with minced parsley. Finely cut chives or green onion tops will serve the same color-giving purpose and sharpen the flavor of the canapes, too.

Shamrock cookie or canape cutters may be found in any good housewares department. There are shamrock molds for salads and cakes, too.

Green-tinted gelatin salads or jellied salads which contain green fruits or vegetables are favorites for St. Patrick parties. Lime or mint gelatin, with any kind of fruit you like, suggests spring as well as old Erin.

Sliced avocado gives an added green to the lime-flavored gelatin ring in the picture and furnishes a part of the Irish color for the veal aspic sitting beside it. Veal aspic makes an excellent main dish for a light buffet supper.

VEAL ASPIC

(Serves six to eight)

2 pounds veal shank
1 medium onion
2 medium carrots
2¼ cups broth from veal
1 teaspoon plain unflavored gelatin
Salt
¼ teaspoon onion salt
2 teaspoons sherry wine
2 cups diced avocado
⅓ cup chopped sweet pickles
⅓ cup sliced stuffed olives

Cover veal with cold salted water, add onion, and simmer slowly for 2½ to 3 hours, or until meat is tender. Add carrots during last half hour of cooking. Lift out meat and carrots, strain liquid, measure, and boil down to the required amount if necessary. Dice cooked veal and carrots, discarding onion. Soak gelatin in a small amount of cold water and dissolve in broth. Combine the broth with seasonings and chill until it begins to congeal. Add meat, sliced carrots, avocado, pickle, and olives and blend lightly. Pour into an oiled mold and chill overnight. The veal broth will congeal of itself, but the added gelatin makes a firmer mold.

An avocado ring mold with a center of cottage cheese is another very attractive green salad for the buffet. Soft, fully ripe fruit is necessary, for in this salad the avocado must be sieved.

AVOCADO RING MOLD

(Serves six)

1 tablespoon plain unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 cup sieved avocado
4 teaspoons lemon juice
Salt
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few drops tabasco sauce
½ teaspoon celery salt
1 canned pimiento, chopped

Soak gelatin for five minutes in cold water. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add other ingredients, blend well, and pour into a ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold and fill the center of the ring with cottage cheese mixed with chopped chives. Individual salads may be made from this recipe, using small ring molds or shamrock shapes.

Chicory, or curly endive, as it is sometimes known, makes an attractive green for any jellied St. Patrick's salad. But watercress, if it is crisp, is even more attractive, especially if served on light or neutral toned plates.

Shamrock canapes for a party may be cut with a shamrock cookie cutter. These dainty sandwiches are spread with creamy cheese and sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Here are two jellied salads which answer the St. Patrick's party requirement for green. One is a veal aspic with sliced avocado, pickle, and olives contributing the color; the other is lime gelatin containing sliced avocado.

The Return of PETER QUILL

1 Red Circle spies are busy again. . . . At Fort Knox, Ky., where ten billion dollars in gold lies in an underground vault, strange things are happening . . . for gold means power.

2 Not far from this vault, in an old mine, Petrovich and Sonya, Red Circle spies, direct tunneling operations toward the vault, unknown to authorities.

3 But not unknown to Peter Quill. With Sharon, who planted the pickup device of a radio dictograph in Petrovich's shack, he listens to the spies' plans for attacking the vault.

4 The commanding officer at the fort receives a strange call: "Go to the old mine . . . spies are tunneling toward you! . . . This is P-E-T-E-R—Q-U-I-L-L!!!"

5 Not to be caught napping, Petrovich has his secret tunneling equipment well concealed when officers arrive. "A practical joke, captain. You see, I have authority to work this shaft."

FREE TO FINISH HIS WORK, PETROVICH REACHES THE VAULT.

7 His warnings in vain, Peter Quill acts desperately. A portable generator of the type that destroyed the Red fleet is wheeled into position to blow up Petrovich's mine.

8 Sharon, back at the mine to give the signal, is horrified to see Stephen Blade, secret bureau agent, going down into the shaft after the spies. . . . He, too, will die by Peter Quill's man-made thunderbolt!

9 Desperately Sharon rushes in after Blade . . . comes upon a scene of battle. Blade has the better of Petrovich, but Sonya enters the melee . . . her weapon is upraised . . . Sharon acts quickly . . .

10 With a shout of warning to Blade she leaps on Sonya, but is herself struck down . . .

11 Blade, trying to revive Sharon, hears her almost incoherent warning: . . . "Peter Quill . . . lightning . . . blow up the mine . . . run . . ." Sonya and the limping Petrovich hear her warning, and flee.

12 Escape! . . . Blade staggers from the mine, carrying Sharon, just before an earth-shaking blast . . . "The Red Circle's threat to Fort Knox is ended!" gasps Blade.

First, Drene sweeps away that ugly, dulling film soap shampooing leaves—because it contains an amazing, new, patented cleansing ingredient never before used in a shampoo! Second—because Drene is not a soap—not an oil, it leaves no dulling film of its own on hair! Nor greasy film to catch dust! What's more, Drene cleans away dirt, grease—even loose dandruff flakes. Leaves hair so sparkling clean—lemon, vinegar or other special after-rinses are unnecessary!

No soap shampoo can give Drene's amazing results! Women bought over 24 million bottles of Drene last year alone! Approved by Good Housekeeping. Guaranteed by Procter & Gamble.

Nickel Is Put to Many Uses

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

(Thomas photos, courtesy International Nickel Co., Inc.)

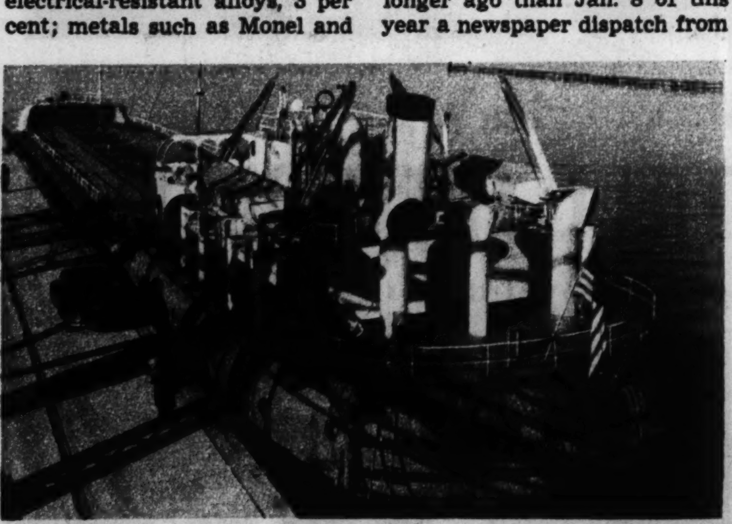
AT THE mention of the word nickel the average person is apt to think of objects plated with this metal or of the 5-cent coin in use in this country. Unless he is of an inquisitive turn of mind he does not know that only 6 per cent of the world's annual consumption of nickel actually is employed in nickel plating. And he may not know that the coin called the nickel is not made of pure nickel but of an alloy called cupronickel, which is three-fourths copper and only one-fourth nickel.

There are countries, however, that do mint pure nickel coins. In fact, since 1881, when the metal first was adopted for coinage, a total of 33 countries have issued pure nickel coins in 87 denominations and 102 designs to the number of about four and a half billion.

Cupronickel coins, such as the present Jefferson nickel and its predecessor, the buffalo nickel, have been coined since 1880 by 84 governments in 231 denominations and the number of 16 billion.

The making of coins uses up only a small fraction of the grand total of nickel consumed by the world, which for the first ten months of last year was approximately 168,000,000 pounds and for the whole year of 1937 was 201,000,000 pounds.

The most important use of nickel from the standpoint of volume is in the making of steel. Sixty per cent of all of the nickel consumed in 1938, it is estimated, went into the making of steel—structural steel, stainless steel, corrosion and heat resisting steel, and steel castings. Nickel cast iron consumed 3 per cent; nickel-iron alloys, 1 per cent; nickel-copper alloys and nickel silvers, 14 per cent; nickel brass, bronze, and alloy castings, 2 per cent; heat-resistant and electrical-resistant alloys, 3 per cent; metals such as Monel and Iconel, 9 per cent; nickel plating, 6 per cent; nonmetallic materials for the chemical industry, nickel salts, etc., 1 per cent; and miscellaneous and unclassified uses, 1 per cent.



Dolomite-4, equipped for ocean service. It is unique in that its hold tanks are lined with pure nickel, hence noncorrosive.

Nickel is one of the basic elements. Its atomic weight (its weight in relation to that of hydrogen, which is 1.0078) is 58.69, and its chemical symbol is Ni. Its melting point is 1,455 degrees centigrade, which is slightly below that of iron and considerably higher than that of gold or silver.

A. F. Cronstedt is credited with having discovered nickel in 1751, when he first isolated it in an impure state, but it actually had been known from earliest times. The Chinese many centuries ago employed it in an alloy known as pakfong.

Nickel occurs in combination with a number of minerals (chiefly in combination with arsenic), including kupfernickel, white nickel, nickel glance, nickel blende, and melonite, and also in association with cobalt in speiss. Kupfernickel deposits are found in North and South America, Norway, Germany, France, and Hungary, and other ore deposits occur in Ontario, New Caledonia, and South Africa.

The principal source of nickel today is Canada, where by far the greater part of the output is obtained from the Sudbury district of the province of Ontario. Relatively small quantities are obtained from the deposits 150 miles north of Sudbury and from the cobalt-silver district in the same province. Still additional Canadian sources are in other regions in Ontario and in Vancouver Island, British Columbia. Canada's annual productions of nickel range from 69 to 90 per cent of the total for the whole world. The second most important source is New Caledonia, a French possession about 1,250 miles northeast of Australia. No longer ago than Jan. 8 of this year a newspaper dispatch from Amsterdam carried the information that a new source of nickel soon would be exploited on Celebes Island, Dutch East Indies. Nineteen concessions covering a large area near the coast of Bingkoka bay, according to the dispatch, have been claimed by the Netherlands East Borneo company, and the mines therein are expected to produce from 2 to 3 per cent of the present world production of nickel. The ore is to be smelted on the spot by a new process developed by the Krupp works of Germany.

• • •

Nickel is known to the chemist as a black powder. But to the average person it is the bright, lustrous metal commonly employed for plating other metals. Used in the manufacture of steel, it tends to toughen that metal. It is especially valuable for plating other metals, such as iron and steel, as it does not readily tarnish in the air.

Nickel has been put to a specialized practical use in recent years as a lining for tanks of liquid-carrying ships. The Dolomite-4, a vessel built for service on the Great Lakes or the ocean, is said to be the largest of this type of craft equipped with nickel-lined tanks. On Aug. 12 of last year it put into Chicago after its maiden voyage from Oswego, N. Y., with a cargo of a million gallons of kerosene stowed away in five tanks lined with pure nickel sheets. The use of nickel in this connection is said to permit of easy and rapid cleaning of the tanks by the use of steam. Petroleum products, caustic soda, or molasses may be carried in the ship, as the nickel-lined tanks are noncorrosive.

Many are the chemical compounds in which nickel is found. It combines with oxygen to form nickel monoxide, nickel hydroxide, and nickel peroxide. It also combines with various salts to form nickel salts, and with a number of other elements. It is in the form of nickel salts that it is used advantageously for electroplating.

In the "Review of the Nickel Industry in 1938" Robert C. Stanley, chairman and president of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., points out that nickel consumption in the year in question fell off from that of the previous year, owing for the most part to an abrupt drop in business in the United States during the latter part of 1937 and the early part of 1938. The United States, Mr. Stanley discloses, normally consumes half of the total output of the metal.

The review, which was published in January, covers the use of nickel in virtually all branches of industry. While it points out that consumption of the metal in 1938 showed a marked falling off, it calls attention to the fact that new uses are constantly being found for nickel. In the automobile industry, for example, it tells of an increasing use of nickel in steel and of a tendency to increase the thickness of nickel plating as much as 50 per cent. The metal, it is emphasized, is highly important in railway transportation and aviation. The structural parts of modern airplanes are more and more being made of chromium-nickel stainless steel.

Shipbuilding, mining, and the petroleum industry are large users of nickel alloys and nickel alloy steels, while the paper and pulp industry is using in increased volume chromium-nickel stainless steel and Monel metal. Monel metal is defined in the review as a high nickel-copper alloy with good mechanical properties and corrosion resistance. Monel is a trade name. Among other trade name metals bearing nickel are Constantan, Hipernik, Iconel, Invar, Hastelloy, Nihard, Ni-resist, and Permalloy.

• • •

The review stresses the point that, although it has been widely practiced more than sixty years, commercial nickel plating continues in increasing volume.

"During the year," says the review, "many new advances were made both in the art of application and in the uses of nickel plating. The technique of producing bright deposits without grinding or buffing became widely established. Deposits of extreme hardness and strength were effected. A new interest appeared in nickel plating for general utility purposes, which is additional to the continued world-wide interest in nickel plating for decorative purposes.

"Nickel plating to protect steel and iron against corrosion has become more fully recognized, and during the year successful trials were made of important applications in fields where there is opportunity to increase the use not only of nickel but also of steel."

The review goes on to tell how the use of coatings of nickel several thousandths of an inch thick protect strong alloy and mild steel structures against abrasion and corrosion. In this case there is no thought of beautifying the metals. On the other hand, for decorative purposes, the review continues, bright nickel plating has greatly increased.

"While the hardest nickel," says the review, "is softer than chromium, laboratory tests have shown that its physical properties can be controled, and the toughness and ductility of the softer deposits are being used." In other words, under certain circumstances nickel plating, the review indicates, has advantages over chromium plating.

Nickel has important uses in armaments—especially in artillery, in armor plate, and in armor-piercing projectiles. Five thousand tons of this metal went to uses of this kind in the United States and Great Britain in 1938.

Boy Scouts Do Another Good Turn

IF THE Boy Scouts of America have anything to say about it this country soon will have thousands of dog owners who really know the fundamentals of correct feeding and general care and training. The Scout organization has adopted a merit badge to be awarded for genuine interest in the health, care, and conduct of dogs. Scouts, to win the badge, not only must look after their pets and keep a record of what is done but also are required to learn about other breeds. One of the optional questions, for example, is to list three distinguishing breed characteristics of fifteen breeds of dogs.

This pure white Samoyede, Champion Prince Kofski, represents a breed which has served mankind for centuries as companion and sledge dog.

Own and give proper care to a dog for a period of not less than six months, or have responsibility for the care of his family's dog for that period.

Present a record showing the care he has given to his dog during a period of six months, including such items as feeding hours and kinds of food, housing, training, exercise, grooming and bathing, care of the dog's habits and health, including precautions to keep dog in good condition.

Report the approximate cost of feeding and caring for his dog for a six months period.

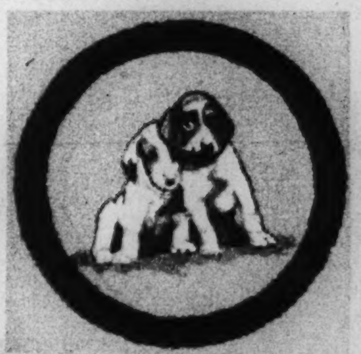
Describe from personal observation or point out from pictures three distinguishing breed characteristics of fifteen breeds of dog; or give a brief history of some one breed of dog, including the origin (if possible), any cross breeding that has taken place, characteristics that have been gained by cross breeding, great champions of the breed, persons who have been instrumental in furthering the breed.

Explain the symptoms and first aid treatment for at least one illness and one accident common to dogs.

Explain proper methods of training dogs to do the following: Obey simple instructions, such as "come here," "stop barking," "lie down," etc.; walk to heel; carry and retrieve objects; herd cattle or sheep; one or more tricks, such as "speaking," "begging," "dead dog," etc.

Know the state and county laws and town or municipal ordinances (if any) involving dogs, including ownership, control, and humane treatment.

If suggestions are in order as to possible revision of any one of the requirements, the one on training comes first to mind. In view of the fact that most dog owners neglect the training of their dogs and do not teach them obedience and good manners, we believe that the requirement might well be that a Scout teach his pet at least two fundamental commands, such as "come here" and "sit down," rather than ask him to "explain proper methods of training dogs." As the Scout manual points out, "Like Scouts, dogs learn by doing." No better application of this truth could be made than in this question of dog training. If the Boy Scout were required to train his dog the fundamentals of obedience, thus demonstrating how simple training eliminates bad habits in dogs and develops them into more lovable and valuable pets, he would be making a valuable contribution to the world of dogs.



The merit badge worn by Boy Scouts who pass requirements on dog care.

DOG NOTES

Although many dog owners are not aware of the fact, dogs may have jaundice. And it's usually fatal. We know because we lost a valuable dog which developed jaundice.

Very few pure-bred huskies are found outside the most remote Arctic regions, mainly because the white man has carelessly crossed the husky with the Newfoundland, Great Dane, German shepherd, borzoi, collie, and mongrels. The Royal Canadian mounties at their headquarters in Ottawa have been experimenting by crossing the husky with the borzoi.

Story of Eddie's Flight to Fame and Success

● Eddie Rickenbacker, mechanically minded youngster, grew up to be a race driver, chauffeur for General Pershing during the early years of the war, and finally an army flyer under the guidance of such aces as James Norman Hall and Raoul Lufbery. How Eddie became the ace of aces and a post-war business success is told today.

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

ONE OF THE many things Eddie Rickenbacker learned in his first weeks at the front was how to get himself in the proper frame of mind for shooting to death his fellow men in German uniforms. Rickenbacker's "smile campaign" at the auto race track has been described. But here in the grim atmosphere of war Eddie no longer wanted to keep cheerful. "Now I had to learn to hate," he says. "Deliberately I assumed an antagonistic spirit with my friends and associates. . . . I made enemies of my best friends. For how could I leave the ground in jolly, laughing, wholesome mood and shoot foe ships to earth? I reasoned."

But when the time came he was glad to discover he could leave the ground in a cheerful mood and still put himself whole-heartedly into the fight to kill a German foe. He said afterward: "It suddenly dawned on me that I was pitting my wits and energies against a gigantic evil, and not any individual. I assumed the attitude of a competitor in a huge game that must be played. I forgot at all times that the human element was present. To me it was merely destroying another plane or a 'flying machine gun.' It counted so many points. . . ."

Shortly after Rickenbacker's second victory in the air his friend and flight leader, Jimmy Hall, fell behind the German lines and was taken prisoner.

• • •

Eddie was promoted to command No. 1 flight in his place. He was now the first flight leader in the proud 94th squadron. He felt his new responsibility keenly, and he resolved to be intelligently cautious, so that he might not only prolong his own life but help school the pilots under him in some of the life-saving tricks he had learned.

Yet, for all his painstaking care to avoid unnecessary danger, Eddie Rickenbacker could accept the necessary risks of combat with the most furious and reckless fighters of Germany on more than equal terms. He did not believe in closing with an enemy at a time when he himself would be at a disadvantage. He would maneuver for a favorable opening and bide his time until he saw his chance. But, once his chance came, he would seize it with the fury of a flame. He was a fighter who used his head and calculated the odds—which is the greater glory to him and the greater measure of his courage.

Well Eddie Rickenbacker knew, for instance, the dangerous frailty of the wing fabric of the Nieuport plane, which had been the undoing of Captain Hall. Yet when he saw a chance to down an enemy he would willingly dive at him at what he knew was a death-flaunting speed. To him it was a justifiable gamble.

On the occasion of his third victory Eddie took just this kind of a chance—and came within a hair's breadth of losing. It was the most terrifying experience he had in the war. Let him tell it in his own words:

"I noticed three graceful Albatross machines. . . . I put on the sauce [gas] and dived down headlong at the rearmost of the three. . . . Fully 200 miles an hour my Nieuport was flying. Without checking her speed I kept her nose pointing at the tail of the rear Albatross, which was now darting steeply downward to escape me. As the distance closed to fifty yards I saw my flaming bullets piercing the back of the pilot's seat. . . .

"As the enemy plane fell off and began to flutter I pulled my stick back. . . . The notorious weakness of the Nieuport quickly announced itself. A ripping crash that sounded like the crack of doom to my ears told me that the sudden strain had collapsed my right wing. . . . Deprived of any supporting surface on this side, the Nieuport turned over on her right side. The tail was forced up despite all my efforts with joy stick and rudder. . . . I was caught in a vrille or tail spin, and with a machine as crippled as mine there seemed not the possibility of a chance to come out of it.

"I wondered vaguely whether the two Albatross machines would continue to fire at me all the way down. Twice I watched them dive straight at me, firing more bullets into my helpless craft, not withstanding the apparent certainty of her doom. I felt no anger toward them. I felt somewhat critical toward their bad judgment in thus wasting ammunition. . . .

"Where would I strike? I wondered. There were the woods of Montsec below me. . . . I had been experimenting constantly with rudder, joy stick, and even with the weight of my body, but I found I was totally unable to modify in the slightest the stubborn spiral gait of the airplane. Fully ten thousand feet I had fallen. . . .

"With a vicious disregard for consequences I pulled open the throttle. The sudden extra speed from the newly started engine was too much for the perpendicular tail, and before I had realized it the tail was quite horizontal. Like a flash I seized the joy stick and reversed my rudder. The pull of the propeller kept her straight. If only I could keep her so for five minutes I might make the lines. They seemed to beckon to me only two miles ahead. I looked above and below.

"No airplanes in the sky. My late enemies evidently were sure I was done for. Below me I saw the landscape slipping swiftly behind me. I was making headway much faster than I was falling. Sudden elation began to sweep over me. I boldly tried lifting her head. No use! She would fly straight, but that was all. . . .

"Over the lines I slid, a good thousand feet up. . . . I succeeded in persuading the damaged craft to one more effort. I saw the roofs of my hangar before me. With the motor still running wide open I grazed the top of the old 94 hangar and pancaked flatly upon my field."

And so Eddie Rickenbacker fought his way on to the end of the war—to the rank of captain and to the title of American ace of aces with twenty-one German planes and four German balloons officially to his credit. During those terrible months he saw many a faithful comrade go down to his death, and he had to steel himself against growing too attached to any of his fellows because of the weakening effect of grief at such a loss. "All the pilots of 94, I believe," said Rickenbacker after the war, "eventually came to look with a callous indifference upon the sudden death of their dearest chum. This necessity is to my mind one of the greatest horrors of the war."

Illness was another of Rickenbacker's ordeals. He was in hospitals for some two months in the summer of 1918 with a high fever and with serious ear trouble caused by breaking his ear drums in a power dive after a German plane. Some of the time after he returned to the air against doctors' advice he led his patrols suffering silently with earache.

In summing up Eddie Rickenbacker's fighting career it is interesting to review the qualities and the factors that made him supreme. First of all, Rickenbacker was an experienced, intelligent, and mature man at the time of the war. He had had long experience in traveling at high speeds on the race track in competition with daring rivals under dangerous circumstances. He had a keen, straight-thinking mind that enabled him to outwit other men and to learn quickly by his own errors of judgment. He was 28 years old, while most of his fellow aviators were almost ten years younger. He was cautious to exactly the necessary degree for high efficiency in battle. He took pains to get the best planes and equipment available for himself and his squadron. He made a practice of flying at very high altitudes, which gave him an advantage over his foes, and he never attacked until he felt sure that he was in a superior position. He was an expert mechanic himself and an inspiring leader who got the best out of all his mechanics as well as his flying mates. He spent more time actually flying than any other aviator in the American air service despite his long periods of absence due to illness. He had a sincere love of sport—in this case the sport of outwitting and defeating the enemy—that kept him going out again and again on voluntary patrols. He was canny enough to get credit for most of his victories by driving up to the front in a car afterward to hunt up observers who were able to give him the required confirmation. He understood his German enemies, being of German blood himself. Last, but not least, he had luck—more than once missing death by inches as enemy bullets peppered holes through his cockpit.

It was typical of Rickenbacker that he bemoaned the lack of parachutes that allowed many of his comrades to fall to needless deaths. "For the last six months," he wrote at the end of the war, "the German airmen have been saving their lives by airplane parachutes. A parachute is a very cheap contrivance compared to the cost of training an aviator. We air fighters cannot understand why we cannot have parachutes."

• • •

Great as Rickenbacker was as a war flyer, he would have been even greater were it not for three unfavorable factors. The first was the fact that he was asked to lead others rather than fly free lance.

The second factor was that he was ill much of the time, preventing him from gaining a single victory between the dates of May 30 and Sept. 14, 1918.

The third factor was that the war ended just as he was about to be given command of a group of 100 airplanes and a new promotion. According to General Mitchell, head of the American air service in France: "Had the war continued, and had Rickenbacker lived, he undoubtedly would have commanded a brigade of air force in the spring of 1919 and been a general officer."

After the war was over Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker began a new life, but one no less active than before. After writing a successful book about his war adventures he began manufacturing a new automobile bearing his own famous name. He also got married. Unfortunately, the automobile didn't go over. "It was too good a car," explained Eddie. "It introduced vibration dampeners and four-wheel brakes to America, but there was too little difference between what it cost us to build it and the price for which we had to sell it. So we folded up."

Next Business Man Rickenbacker, the undaunted, bought the Indianapolis motor speedway on which he had ridden to fame before the war, and built up attendance to its present high level. He also became vice president and sales manager of the La Salle division of the General Motors company, and in 1934 general manager of Eastern Air Lines. In that same year he found time to make a new transcontinental speed record by piloting three passengers from Los Angeles to Newark in 12 hours 3 minutes 50 seconds in a transport plane. He was not growing less cautious with the years, however, and under his leadership his company maintained its enviable reputation for safety.

Last March the latest big step in Tycoon Rickenbacker's career occurred when he was able, by shrewd management and timing, to outbid T. W. A. and buy Eastern Air Lines, thus making it independent and practically a one-man organization with complete operating control in the hands of General Manager Rickenbacker.

(THE END.)

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know, almost always uses powder.

All Cleansing Properties

As it is only the powder part of most dentifrices that cleans, a dentifrice that is all powder just naturally cleans effectively. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—all cleansing properties.

For over seventy years many dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's because normal teeth simply cannot remain dull and dingy looking when it is used.

No Acid, No Grit or Pumice

Dr. Lyon's cleans and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling with natural brightness. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is a special dental powder developed for HOME USE by a distinguished practicing dentist. Free from all acids, grit or pumice, it cannot possibly injure or scratch the tooth enamel as years of constant use have shown. Even as a neutralizer in acid mouth conditions. Dr. Lyon's is an effective antacid.

Costs Less to Use

Brush your teeth with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder regularly — consult your dentist periodically—eat a diet rich in minerals and vitamins, and you will be doing all that you can possibly do to protect your teeth.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is more economical to use. In the same size and price class Dr. Lyon's outlasts tooth pastes two to one. Even a small package will last you for months.

NOW GET EXTRA "SKIN-VITAMIN" IN YOUR POWDER BASE*

Today it's easy for you to give your skin Vitamin A, the important "skin-vitamin." Now it's in a famous powder base — Pond's Vanishing Cream! Skin that lacks this vitamin becomes rough and dry. But when "skin-vitamin" is restored, it helps make skin soft again. Use before powder and for overnight. Same jars, labels, prices.

*Statements concerning the effects of the "skin-vitamin" applied to the skin are based upon medical literature and tests on the skin of animals following an accepted laboratory method.

Kre-mel is tempting, smooth, delicious. More important to mothers, however, is the outstanding food value of this fine dessert. It is rich in pure Dextrose, the sugar used directly for energy by the body.

Serve Kre-mel once, and you'll serve it often. It's quickly, easily prepared—and very economical. All grocers sell Kre-mel in 4 different, delicious flavors. Try them all.

Seven Facts YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DEXTROSE

1. Dextrose is a pure white sugar. It's the sugar your body uses directly for energy.
2. Doctors call Dextrose "muscle" sugar. It is the chief fuel of the body.
3. Dextrose helps your brain and body to sustain activity, to forestall fatigue.
4. All other sugars and starches (carbohydrates) must be digested—and so changed into Dextrose before your body can use them for energy.
5. Dextrose is promptly absorbed—it is almost instantly made available for use as energy.
6. Dextrose is recommended for new-born infants, for growing children, for athletes and active people generally—yes, even for invalids and the aged.
7. Candies, beverages, ice cream, desserts, etc., which are enriched with Dextrose, are all sources of quickly assimilable food-energy.

. . . try a laxative with exercising action

SARÁKA
FOR CONSTIPATION

TODAY make a fresh start towards better intestinal health—away from constipation worries. Try Saráka—the "exercising laxative" that helps turn lazy intestinal muscles into stronger workers for better health.

Saráka* comes in the form of tiny brown granules, easily swallowed with a drink of water. Inside the intestines, these granules absorb water and turn into soft, smooth BULK. This extra bulk gives the intestinal muscles something they can catch hold of—encourages them to exercise.

But Saráka does not rely on bulk alone. Saráka gives Bulk Plus Motility. This laxative contains a specially treated cortex frangula which mildly stimulates the intestinal muscles to do their work more thoroughly.

Results of this balanced action are not violent—or embarrassingly urgent. Most users recall healthy youth when constipation was seldom thought of. Ask your doctor about Saráka and the safety of Bulk Plus Motility. The coupon will bring you a free trial-size tin.

"I've lived an extra month this year"—

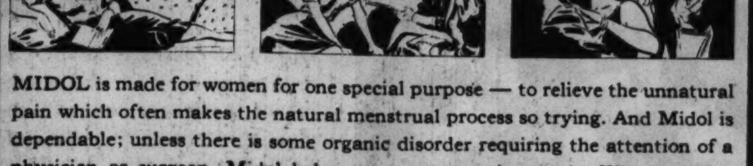
Like so many women, Janice always believed menstrual pain had to be endured. Each time her dreaded days came on, she stopped "living" and gave up all pleasure to give in to suffering.

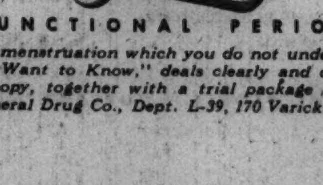
Then, a year ago, a thoughtful friend told Janice about Midol; how it relieves functional periodic pain even at its worst, and how it often saves many women even slight discomfort.

Now Janice is "living" again — not just part of the time, but twelve full months a year. Letting Midol take care of that needless menstrual pain has restored to her a full month of wasted days!



MIDOL is made for women for one special purpose — to relieve the unnatural pain which often makes the natural menstrual process so trying. And Midol is dependable; unless there is some organic disorder requiring the attention of a physician or surgeon, Midol helps most women who try it. Why not give Midol the chance to help you? It acts quickly, not only to relieve the pain, but to lessen discomfort. A few Midol tablets should see you through your worst day. Ask for the inexpensive purse-size case at any drugstore.

MIDOL



RELIEVES FUNCTIONAL PERIODIC PAIN

Is there anything about menstruation which you do not understand? Midol's new booklet, "What Women Want to Know," deals clearly and completely with this vital subject. For free copy, together with a trial package of Midol, send your name and address to General Drug Co., Dept. L-39, 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.
